To Preserve? Not Preserve? At Stake May Be A Family's Financial Future

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

POINT PHILLIP (Northampton Co.) — Daniel Schlegel, like many farmers in the slowly disappearing agricultural area north of Allentown, understands how hard it is to continue farming. Especially with some lots selling to development at $30,000 per acre.

What's the sense of trying to maintain a small cash cropping operation, when the land is more valuable for developing than to continue to make a living as a grain farmer?

But Schlegel, who farms about 285 acres below the Blue Mountains in Moore Township, worries about the future. Will he have enough money to see him through retirement?

Will there be enough for his childrens' education?

During an interview recently at his farm, Schlegel, who farms part-time and works full-time as an air compressor mechanic, described how one farmland preservation meeting went with some of the local farmers. "It was not really an upbeat meeting," he said. "A lot of full-time farmers had serious doubts about the program."

If some lots sell at $30,000 an acre, then is their farm worth $3 million?

"Most of them don't have a son coming behind them that wants to farm, unfortunately," said Schlegel. "And they feel that they're going to go until they can't do it anymore and then they're going to start to sell."

But not Schlegel.

Instead, the third generation farmer wants to provide a future for his children.

Recently, he signed away development rights for his property. About 95 acres went through an easement purchase agreement through the state Farmland Protection Board.

PDA Advises Beef, Dairy Herd Owners Tighten Biosecurity

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff Thursday advised owners of Pennsylvania beef cattle and dairy herds to tighten biosecurity practices at their operations due to a disease that has affected dairy herds in western counties this spring.

Testing has indicated that the animals may have been afflicted by BVD virus (bovine viral diarrhea) or PI3 virus (parainfluenza), or a combination of both.

"Although the present outbreak of this disease appears to be subsiding, it is wise to take measures to ensure that it doesn't spread to other herds," Wolff said.

Cattle owners are advised to minimize unnecessary contacts with other herds and to consult veterinary practitioners for advice regarding protective measures.

Dairy Issue Coming Next Week

The annual dairy issue will come to you from Lancaster Farming next week. Special features on farm and herd management are scheduled, as well as messages from our advertisers.

In addition, the first of the annual dairy recipe presentation in Section B will be published, and our livestock, grain, and auction reports and regular columns will be in place.

Watch for next week's special tribute to the dairy farmers and agribusinesses which help provide the consumer with milk and all those other wholesome dairy products.

Special Note: Our office will be closed Monday, May 30 to observe Memorial Day. But our office will reopen for business at 8 a.m. Tuesday morning.

Bovine Stars Bring Milk Message To Millions At Baseball Game

EVERETT NEWSWANGER

PHILADELPHIA — Andy Stoltzfus, the Morgantown dairyman who has "gone to bat" for dairy promotion before, did it again for a Veterans Stadium full-house crowd prior to the Phillies/Mets baseball game Sunday. Well actually, it was Andy's two, mostly white, squeaky-clean registered Holstein cows that came up to home plate to be milked for fun by two competing city-slicker teams that hardly knew which end of the cow to sit down to. But the teams were good sports and had a lot of fun.

And, like the Phillies who won 8 to 3 with a barrage of home runs, the cows performed well too. No extra deposits on the green astroturf meadow, no kicked buckets, no fighting the halter, very professionally relaxed, to give the winning team of Philadelphia radio and TV celebrities six-plus pounds of milk while the losing Philadelphia school district food services

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, May 25, 1994

Trucklot buying interest was fair. Trading for the upcoming holiday weekend was slow to develop but the trade expects fairly good demand the balance of this week. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were in close balance with current needs. Trading was reported at fairly steady prices but asking prices trended higher with very little resistance noted. The trade sentiment was fully steady. Line run breasts were adequate at steady prices. Buyers were looking to book product for next week deliveries. Leg quarters were fully adequate, competitively priced, and pushed to clear the market. Wings were well cleared.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, May 25, 1994

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds continued to slow and was no better than moderate at most plants, Offerings were at least adequate and were generally more readily available on 3.5 to 4.0 pound sizes. Live supplies were at least moderate; weights were often heavier than desired. Processing schedules remained very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 60 to 70 cents. Trade sentiment was about steady. In the parts complex, supplies were at least adequate. Breast items were irregularly distributed with bone-in breasts in closest balance. Wings were adequate for the lighter buying interest. Leg items, particularly leg quarters were available and slow in clearing.

New York & Phila. Frozen Eggs

Tuesday, May 24, 1994

The market tone continued fully steady to firm. Buyers were cautious as higher asking prices were met with some resistance. Raw materials were usually adequate, but further processors were selective and limited receipts to regular commitments. Floor stocks were in good balance to cover current dealer needs.

Wednesday, May 25, 1994

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY GRAIN AND SOYBEAN PRICES CONTINUED LOWER, WEDNESDAY, ESPECIALLY SOYBEAN PRICES, PRESSURED BY HARVEST PRESSURE, WEATHER CONDITIONS, AND CONTINUED LACK OF SUBSTANTIAL EXPORT SALES. WHEAT UNCHANGED TO 3 CENTS LOWER. CORN UNCHANGED TO 1 CENT LOWER. SORGHUM 1 TO 3 CENTS LOWER. SOYBEANS 17 TO 20 CENTS LOWER. WHEAT HARVEST IS GOING WELL IN TEXAS AND SPRING WHEAT SEEDING PROGRESSING. CROP ARE LOOKING GOOD. EXPORT DEMAND HAS BEEN VERY SLOW AGAIN THIS WEEK FOR WHEAT BUT POSSIBLITY OF U.S. RENEWING CHINA'S MOST-FAVORED-NATION STATUS LIMITED PRICE DECLINES. CONTINUED PROFIT TAKING IN CORN AND SOYBEAN PITS FORCED PRICES LOWER AGAIN TODAY. MUCH NEEDED MOISTURE IN MIDWEST AREAS WERE ONLY SCATTERED THIS WEEK BUT FORECASTS FOR MORE RAIN ADDED TO LOWER PRICES. EXPORT SALES ARE DOWN THIS WEEK FOR CORN AND BEANS.

Baytan® 30 for wheat
Gives you effective early season protection against powdery mildew. And MORE.
Baytan 30 fungicide seed treatment is worth the money for powdery mildew protection alone. And it's worth the money if you haven't seen powdery mildew in 10 years. That's because Baytan 30 enhances the overall health of your wheat and delivers more benefits than do other seed treatment products:
MORE extensive, fibrous roots
MORE tillering
MORE disease protection
MORE yields
If you are trying to maximize your yields, then Baytan 30 is the perfect fit. For more information on having your seed treated with Baytan 30, contact the certified Baytan 30 conditioner near you, or Gustafson at 800-248-6901.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

"AND YE EARTH SHOOKE . . ."

On Friday June 1 1638 2:00 P.M., the first recorded earthquake in America rocked the settlement at Plymouth, Massachusetts Governor William Bradford reported this event in his History of the Plymouth Plantation "However, it was very terrible for ye time, and as ye men were set talking in ye house some women and others were without ye doors, and ye earth shooke with ye violence as they could not stand without catching hold of ye posts and pails yt stood next them but ye violence lasted not long And about halfe an hower or less, came an other noyse & shaking, but neither so loud not strong as ye former, but quickly passed over, and so it ceased"

Earthquake before eleven, rain same day. — Japanese Proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

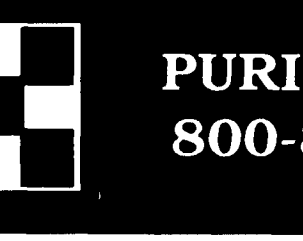
EARTHWISE

Dogs and cats just naturally mark their territories If your shrubs and gardens are considered part of their turf, here's an easy nontoxic way to redraw the boundary lines Grind a few cloves of garlic and 3 or 4 red hot peppers in the blender Combine this mixture and a few drops of dishwashing liquid in a bucketful of water Sprinkle around your garden and bushes Your furry friends will seek out greener (and less aromatic) pastures



OLD FASHIONED SODA CRACKERS

4 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup sour milk
1 cup butter

Sift together dry ingredients Cut in milk and butter, mixing well to form a stiff dough (To sour fresh milk, add 1 scant tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice) Roll and turn over repeatedly until the dough is very stiff Roll very thin, cut into squares, and prick with a fork Bake at 400 F until the edges are lightly browned

Makes about 50 to 60 crackers

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Cool rain, heavy west, then clearing and warming

SOUTHEAST: Sunny and warm, rain Florida, turning cooler with showers

MIDWEST: Sunny some showers rainy and cold north, warm and rainy

NORTHWEST: Rainy and warm then cooler, few showers some sun coast

SOUTHWEST: Clear and hot then cooling, showers and cold mountains

OPINION

Don't Be Fooled: Worker Protection Standards Apply To Your Farm

You should have heard by now that the new federal worker protection laws for handling agricultural pesticides will change the way you farm. You may not think so, but the laws will in some way apply to your operation. And the penalties and potential liability if you are in violation when an inspector walks in or an accident occurs on your farm should make you sit up and take notice.

It doesn't matter if you don't like them. You still must comply with the laws if you want to continue to farm.

Yes, recently, some of the requirements have been delayed until January 1 of next year. But don't let this fool you. Not all the provisions of the law have been postponed. If the requirement is on the label now, you must act now. In addition, you need to become knowledgable about what you must eventually do so you are ready before you need to ask an uncertified worker or family member to help load the corn planter, drive the spray rig, or work in a treated field or orchard in the rush time of seeding or harvest. Fathers-in-law and others, usually considered part of the family, may not be according to some of the regulations.

Among the provisions not delayed and therefore need to be followed now include: protective clothing requirements; restricted-entry intervals for certain pesticides, and "double notification" requirements for the most toxic pesticide products. The delayed entry requirements alone could force you to idle planting equipment at the critical time when you must get the seed in the ground to beat the weather and the clock. The laws apply to pesticide products used on farms forests, nurseries, and greenhouses.

Eventually, agricultural employers will need to provide pesticide safety training, decontamination sites, and pesticide application notification in areas where work is performed. In addition, information about pesticide applications, emergency assistance, and safety posters will need to be displayed around the farm.

You need to prepare for the pesticide education and safety of the workers on your farm. When information meetings are scheduled by your farm organizations, government agencies or extension services make it a point to attend. And don't say we didn't warn you.

To Clean Forage Equipment

Since we cannot use fungicide sprays to control diseases of forages as we do in other crops, we must do everything we can to reduce disease losses.

One way is to start the harvesting season with clean equipment. Clean merely means not littered with plant debris from the last harvest.

Ideally, all equipment should be cleaned before it is stored for winter. This is necessary because many of the pathogens that attack forage crops have a hard time surviving our Pennsylvania winters, but will survive very nicely in plant debris on equipment under shelter.

When debris-laden equipment goes out for harvest, it carries disease inoculum into your fields. Ideally, plant debris should be removed from equipment after each field but at least after each harvest. It is worth the trouble.

To Mow Forages Properly

A little "common sense mowing" will help to defray the introduction of pathogens into young stands and minimize the spread of pathogens within stands.

Dr. Ken Leath, USDA Pasture Research Center at Penn State, makes the following suggestions.

Mow your young stands first. Disease-causing organisms are carried on cutter bars and flails. Generally, younger stands are more disease-free than older stands. Thus, keep the direction of disease spread going from younger to older stands. Do not mow when forages are wet.

Pathogens are spread easily in water films. If at all possible, wait until the dew is off. This will keep pathogen spread to a minimum.

Make sure cutters are sharp. Dull cutting edges tear and fray ends provide more opportunities for pathogens to infect the plants.

When leaf spots are becoming severe, consider moving your harvest up a few days. By doing this, you will retain more leaves and have higher quality forage, which will usually offset the small reduction in yield.

By increasing leaf retention, early harvest will remove diseased leaves from the field. This will reduce the disease inoculum in the following regrowth.

Even though chemical sprays to control forage diseases are not available, the use of disease-resistant varieties, coupled with common sense harvesting practices, can slow down the spread of diseases within forage stands and reduce the losses caused by disease.

To Check For Ticks

We are now in tick season and ticks seem to be very plentiful this year.

Ticks may cause several different diseases. The best way to avoid infection is to check your body very carefully for ticks and remove them as soon as possible.

Especially check small children after they have been playing in tall grass or wooded areas. A tick will wonder about for as much as 1 to 2 hours before settling down to the business of feeding.

If you find a tick feeding, you will want to remove it carefully. A drop of alcohol may cause the tick to withdraw. The object is to irritate but not to kill the tick. You must cause it to back out.

Often the best method is to grasp the tick firmly with a tweezers and with a steady pressure pull it out. You must be careful, however, not to crush the tick or pull too quickly to cause the tick's mouth parts to become detached.

Apply antiseptic to the wound. If mouthparts are left in the skin, they should be removed and an antiseptic applied. Be sure to wash your hands after handling ticks since there may be germs in their body secretions.

Destroy all ticks removed by placing them in alcohol or by piercing them with a sharp instrument.

THE MARKS OF JESUS

THE MARKS OF JESUS

Background Scripture:
Galatians 6
Devotional Reading:
I Corinthians 13:1-7

It is difficult for us today to understand and appreciate the Galatian dispute over circumcision. Apparently after Paul left the Galatian church, someone arrived on the scene and pressured the Christians there to accept circumcision as mandatory. We may assume that this person or persons vocally attacked those who either refused to be circumcised or questioned it.

Circumcision was a historic means of identifying one's self as a Jew. Like the dietary laws which we discussed some weeks ago, circumcision was intended to be a sign of Israel's special separateness in the eyes of God. It distinguished the Jew from the pagan. Since many Jewish Christians considered their discipleship as a movement within Judaism, they believed it was essential for Christians to continue to be good Jews. When Gentiles became followers of Christ, many Jewish Christians expected them to live the Jewish way.

Once again, this is an example of a good thing carried too far. Circumcision as an outward sign of a person's inner commitment is a fine thing. But the problem was that circumcision became a thing in itself. It was the circumcision, not what circumcision represented, that had become all important. Jewish Christians were teaching the Galatians that there could be no salvation without circumcision. It began as a way of identifying the person committed to God and became the only way.

A NEW CREATION

Paul attacked this so vigorously because it was obvious that circumcision now stood where Jesus himself should stand. "For neither circumcision counts for anything," he told the Galatians, "nor uncircumcision, but a new creation" (6:15). Christ is essential; circumcision is not. In circumcision, because of the emphasis that had been placed upon it, had become also a divisive issue in the Galatian church. It threatened to spoil all the hard work Paul had put into that Christian community.

The problem was not just that the Judaizers had persuaded some of the Galatians of the necessity of circumcision, but that others were wavering in that direction because they were afraid not to have it. They might not have bought the arguments of the Judaizers, but they were fearful not to get on the bandwagon.

Some of us may ask, well, what's the harm of adding circumcision to the essentials of Christian discipleship? It can't do any harm, can it? Why is Paul making such a big deal over it? Paul's answer is that you cannot commit yourself to Jesus Christ as your Saviour if you also cling to circumcision or anything else. If you say that you trust in Jesus Christ and him alone, then there is no room for trusting "a little bit" in something else. Either Christ's grace is sufficient for us or it is not.

A LITTLE CIRCUMCISION?

Today circumcision is not a point of controversy in Christianity. But although circumcision is no longer a problem, there are things that have taken its place. There are other things, other practices, other beliefs, that some people claim are essential to salvation — doctrines, creeds, rituals, and so forth. And whatever these things are, they are as much a threat to Christian commitment as circumcision once was.

If we are dependent upon Christ alone, then our lives will abound, not with controversies and recriminations of others, but acts of love. As Paul says, "let us not grow weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap, if we do not lose heart. So, then, as we have opportunity, let us do good to all men . . ." (6:9,10). Not: let us make sure they believe or worship or read the Bible as we do. If there are to be any physical signs of our relationship to God, let them be the marks of the service we have rendered others. "Henceforth," says Paul, "let no man trouble me; for I bear on my body the marks of Jesus" (6:17). So should we all.

WORKING WITH BROWN'S SEED DIVISION TO FIND PASTURE MIXES RIGHT FOR THEIR FARM

31 HEAD DHI RHA 24,758 MILK, 801 PROTEIN, 694 FAT

With 61 acres of hillside farm, and a full time job Curt did not want the headaches of owning equipment and renting land. Into his third year of intensive grazing, he likes the idea of only owning three pieces of equipment; a tractor, rotary mower, and manure spreader. Brown's balances his feed program using 34 AMINO PLUS PELLETS and our FLEX—FORMULA system to add the extra energy, minerals, and vitamins top cows on intensive grazing need.

DAVID & CHRIS WILLIAMS — LEBANON

61 HEAD RHA 24,013 MILK, 774 PROTEIN, 808 FAT

In his third year of grazing, David uses 34 acres of permanent pasture, and 23 acres of temporary pasture efficiently to feed 130 head. Last year he grazed from May 1st to Thanksgiving and averaged 70 to 75 lbs. milk per cow. He calls his cows self-propelled forages harvesters. They also spread manure saving him money since he hires custom operators to do both. BROWN'S 30 HM BALANCER and 30 PROLAC PELLETS balance the undegradable protein, energy, and fiber often deficient in high pasture programs. Breeding and body condition are important to Dave, and he credits BROWN'S supplements with helping to maintain both on pasture.

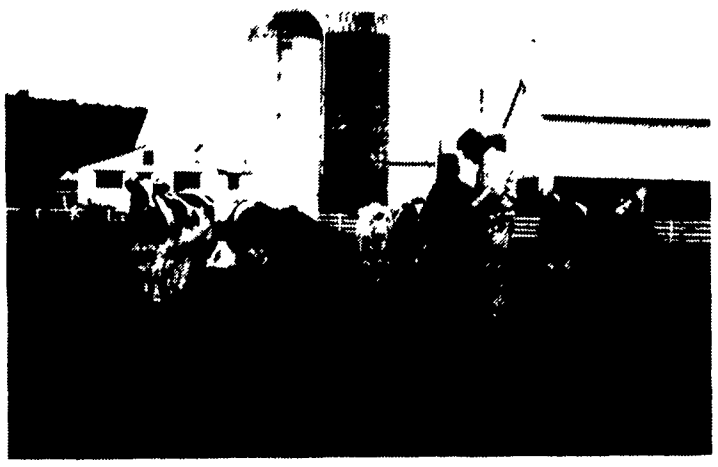
EL-GENE HOLSTEINS — MANHEIM



WITH 42 COWS AND EVEN MORE HEIFERS, EUGENE USES 20 ACRES OF LOW LAND PASTURE EFFICIENTLY BUT DOES NOT RELY ON IT FOR ALL HIS HERDS NEEDS. HE IS SHOWN HERE WITH DAVE McCRACKEN, BROWN'S AREA DIRECTOR.

Low land pasture provides one-fourth of Eugene's forage needs, but permanent well — managed alfalfa and corn fields make better use of fertile Manheim soils. Brown's balances this program with BROWN'S 40 MILKMASTER and uses the FLEX-FORMULA concept to add cooked beans, extra fat, extra minerals, and vitamins. BROWN'S 24 AMINO PLUS C with delinted cottonseed provide top cows with high levels of undegradable protein and extra fiber. In mid May the tank reading was at 80 lbs. of milk, the top cow was over 40,000 lbs. milk, and a young herd had an ME average of over 26,000 lbs. of milk. Eugene says he is happy with his herds progress and is excited about their future potential. He is pleased with the way his herd has done on Brown's feeding programs, and likes the assistance Brown's Area Director Dave McCracken and nutritionist Dr. Walter Kennett provide him in reaching his herd goals.

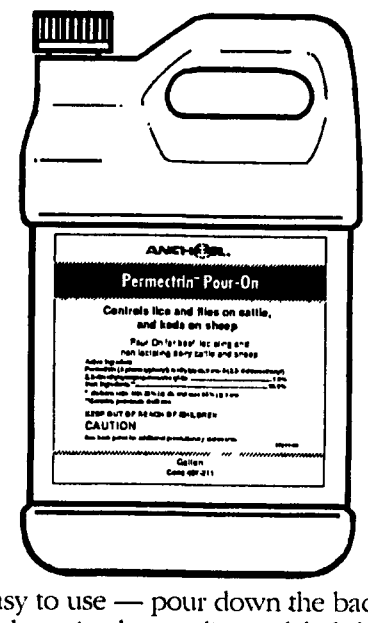
Permectrin™ Pour-On

Kills lice and flies on cattle
Kills keds on sheep



Features:

- Provides broad spectrum activity against a wide range of insect pests, including lice, horn flies, face flies, keds, horse flies, stable flies, mosquitoes, blackflies, and ticks
- Can be directly applied on lactating and non-lactating dairy cattle, beef cattle, calves, and sheep
- Non-systemic — migrates over the animal's hair coat and skin, thus reducing the risk of a toxic reaction
- Can be used with other treatments and medications (follow label direction)
- Low toxicity — can be applied on cattle of any age, breed, or sex, and requires no milk withholding or pre-slaughter withdrawal after use
- Easy to use — pour down the backline of the animal according to label directions
- Convenient ready-to-use product
- Available in 1-gallon and 5-gallon containers

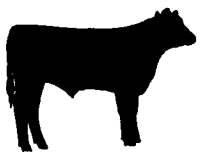
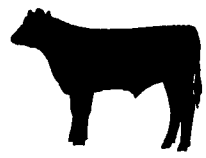
News and Views on the $1 per head Beef Checkoff Program



Beef Council Responds to Declining Fed Cattle Market



As large supplies placed additional pressure on fed cattle prices, checkoff-funded programs are in place to encourage consumers to increase their purchases. Among the activities either scheduled or planned:

Retail Featuring: Nearly 80 grocery store chains nationwide, (representing 29,000 stores) including three chains in Pennsylvania (representing more than 600 individual stores), are participating in a special beef featuring partnership this summer. The program, which has in the past increased beef retail sales in participating stores by 230%, produced a $25 to $1 return on every checkoff dollar invested.
A letter has also been sent by the Beef Council to all retail chains within the state encouraging them to aggressively feature beef.

Beef Means Business: This retail newsletter regularly reaches more than 30,000 stores with useful information about merchandising beef. The next issue will be sent in the coming weeks.

Print Advertising: An aggressive print advertising campaign is currently underway in consumer publications such as "Better Homes & Gardens," "Cooking Light" and "Family Circle." The "Beef. It's What's for Dinner" advertising campaign shows consumers that beef is versatile and easy-to-prepare. The print advertising campaign supports the total consumer campaign by providing recipes directly to the consumer.
The "Family Circle" ad purchase, for example, will include the distribution of 50,000 recipe booklets at Shop Rite stores in August in PA, NY, NJ and CT.

Foodservice Materials/Seminars: Foodservice programs continue to offer menu ideas and product information to help distributors and operators increase beef sales. (See related story)

Television Advertising: Television advertising resumes in June in anticipation of continued heavy supplies throughout the summer months. The advertising will support the retail featuring effort. Consumer recipe distribution will further encourage consumers to prepare beef.

Cut & Save: More than 1.1 million Cut & Save stickers have been distributed to retailers nationwide. This popular, award-winning effort helps consumers take advantage of many special values by providing cutting and storage information on beef primals or family packs sold in grocery stores.

The above programs represent only a partial listing of activities being conducted to boost domestic demand. Additional activities, also funded with checkoff dollars, are being conducted in foreign markets.

Food Safety Seminar Stresses Industry-Wide Coordination

While media attention may have focused on individual food safety incidences, consumer education and product safety is a food industry issue that can be best addressed by all industry segments. That's the message heard by nearly 100 retailers, foodservice distributors/operators and home economists who attended a food safety symposium sponsored by the Beef Council.

"The attendees heard very clearly that food safety is not a beef industry or a restaurant problem, but rather a food industry problem," says David Ivan, Beef Council Executive Director. "The seminar allowed us to proactively present the facts about pathogens, and then discuss how we can collectively manage them."

In addition to discussing various foodborne pathogens, and how best to control them, break-out sessions for retailers, restaurateurs and consumer educators provided specific strategies in developing Hazard Analysis of Critical Control Points (HACCP) procedures and educational programs.

A number of the attendees commented on the proactive stance of the seminar and Beef Council. "Rather than waiting for an incident to occur, I'm impressed in the professionalism and 'heads-up' approach of the Beef Council in bringing together such a diverse group," wrote one attendant on his seminar evaluation form.

Dietitians Learn of Red Meat's Role In American Diets

In cooperation with the Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council, the PBC cosponsored a special session at the Pennsylvania Diatetic Association's Annual Meeting entitled "Dichotomous Dining" which discussed the confusion among consumers when making "nutritious" meal selections.

Presented by Diane Morris, Ph.D., R.D., the presentation discussed how research has shown that much of the fat in American diets is not from meat products, as commonly believed, but rather hidden fats from snack products and foods from the bread group. While the meat industry is often portrayed as a dietary culprit, Ms. Morris' comments stressed the positive role beef plays in a balanced diet.

In addition to the seminar, the Beef & Pork Councils sponsored a reception for the dietitians which included a number of beef and pork appetizers — all of which easily fit within dietary recommendations. The Beef Council also exhibited at the convention's trade show, and distributed numerous patient education materials.

Participation in the state dietetic association meeting is just part of the Beef Council's healthcare education program. The PBC also participates in other professional health conferences and has initiated an aggressive education program designed to improve the nutritional knowledge of physicians.

Foodservice Seminars Increase Beef Sales

With nearly half of every food dollar spent on meals prepared away from home, the Pennsylvania Beef Council is stepping up its educational efforts within the foodservice industry through a series of sales manager training seminars.

"The concept is simple," says David Ivan, PBC Executive Director. "If we can educate food distributor sales representatives about our product, they can become better beef salesmen."

The seminars, which are individually tailored for each distributor, address a range of topics, including beef grading, yield, cookery and pricing. In short, the programs provide answers to many of the commonly asked questions by restaurant managers and chefs.

In addition to reaching sales representatives, seminars have also been conducted for local chef associations and educational materials have been sent to colleges and universities offering a culinary education curriculum.

Summer Veal Promotion Planned in Philadelphia

The Pennsylvania Beef Council, in cooperation with the national Veal Committee, has planned an extensive summer veal grilling promotion in the Philadelphia metro market.

The campaign, which will run in July and August, will include radio and print advertisements, in-store cooking demonstrations, and restaurant promotions.

"The campaign is designed to create awareness among targeted consumers of veal's versatility as a summer grilling entree," says Larry Huttenga, PBC Promotions Director. "The radio and print (in "Philadelphia Magazine") advertisements work closely in tandem with the in-store cooking demonstrations and restaurant promotions to provide a synergistic message."

While the promotion is specifically designed to boost veal sales, increased demand for veal benefits the beef and dairy industries as well. Dairy bull calves marketed as veal versus as dairy beef results in more than 500,000 tons less of carcass beef annually. Additionally, the veal industry annually contributes more than $300 million to the dairy industry — $180 million for calves plus $150 million for dairy products and byproducts used in milk-based formulas.

Cattle Evaluation Workshops for Producers

Beef Quality Assurance

Beef Producers state-wide are invited to participate in a workshop designed to improve upon the knowledge and understanding of important aspects affecting the profitability of the cattle industry. The workshop has been coordinated by Chester D. Hughes, Lancaster County Extension Service, and is sponsored in part by the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

Scheduled for July 27 and 29, 1994, the 2-day workshop will include live cattle grading by all participants, quality assurance tips, and advice on feeding for profit. Demonstrations at the packing plant will focus on beef that fits the box, hot fat trimming, injection site blemishes, and a new grading proposals.

The live animal session will be held at New Holland Sales Stables, New Holland at 7:00 p.m. on July 27, where participants can compare their grading estimates with a panel of experts. The carcass aspect of the workshop will be held at 7:00 p.m. on July 29 at Stoltzfus Meats, Intercourse. During this program, actual carcass data can be compared with estimates, and participants will visualize the disadvantages of cattle that are too big, overly fat, or poorly managed.

A similar program in 1993 was very successful. We hope you can join us for the workshop. For more information contact Chester D. Hughes, 717-394-6851, Lancaster Extension Livestock Agent.

team received four-plus pounds of milk. Jennifer Grimes, Pennsylvania dairy princess, and Jim Barnett, Atlantic Dairy Association, calculated the milk weights. Ivo Otto, president of the MAMMA board, threw out the first pitch.

Meanwhile, the scoreboard kept flashing "Don't forget to drink your milk." And the Phillie Phanatic used crowd-pleasing antics to pretend to drink a gallon of milk to get strength to stomp on a Mets baseball hat.

Of course, the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) ahd its 5,000 dairy farm family members sponsored the event. Fans at the game included more than 3,000 students and their guests from the school district of Philadelphia as a reward for drinking their milk in school. The students from kindergarten through sixth grades were winners in MAMMA's "I Love Milk at Breakfast" contest conducted during March as part of the Association's new school milk program.

Sunday was MAMMA's Dairy Day with the Phillies, and growth posters that featured Darren Daulton and the Phillie Phanatic were given to 25,000 fans ages 14 and under.

Andy Stoltzfus does a little physical therapy to get the cow ready to "let her milk down" before the milking contest.

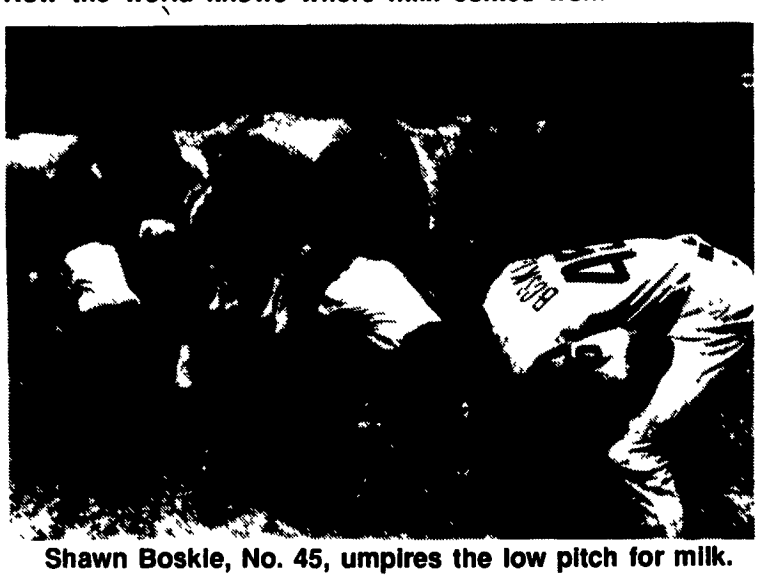
Cameras! Action! Now the world knows where milk comes from.



Shawn Boskie, No. 45, umpires the low pitch for milk.

Back in March, MAMMA launched a school milk initiative to increase school milk sales in their marketing area. The Philadelphia school district was chosen for the first massive school milk promotion effort because of the large number of elementary students and the great potential for increasing milk consumption by expanding the school breakfast program.

According to Dick Norton, MAMMA general manager, school age children are a major target audience. "We want to get them into the habit of drinking milk when they are young," Norton said. "We are taking our marketing program into the schools not only to build current sales, but we also see this as an important step in securing future milk sales."

John Baldwin, president of Balford Farms who supplies the milk to the Philadelphia school district, told Lancaster Farming that the program was very successful. He said milk sales increased noticeably during the campaign.

More than 106,000 Philadelphia elementary school students participated in the month-long "Milk is Phantastic" campaign which featured MAMMA's new milk spokesperson, the Phillie Phanatic. Prior to the contest, the Phanatic visited 30 schools and performed a skit to excite and educate students about the importance of drinking milk and eating a nutritious breakfast every day. These schools were selected for the Phanatic assemblies because of their low student participation rate in the school breakfast program. After the visits, the number of students eating school breakfast increased an average of nearly 33 percent. In 127 other schools the number of breakfasts served each day during the contest week rose by nearly 18 percent.

While increases were expected, the primary goal was to retain a five percent increase or greater to generate a permanent growth in school milk sales. Measured one week after the contest, of the 157 schools participating in the contest, 97 achieved or exceeded the five percent goal of breakfast served each day, and 71 of these schools had at least a 10 percent increase. The long-term increase could mean as much as 1.6 million pounds in additional milk sales during the school year.

The school breakfast program is a federally-subsidized program created to assure that a nutritious breakfast is available to all children. The month-long promotion culminated with the contest. Only those students drinking milk and eating breakfast everyday during the contest week were eligible to win Phillies baseball tickets or Darren Daulton/Phillie Phanatic growth posters.

In addition to the prizes awarded to the contest winners, all students received neon colored book covers bearing a nutritional message, and all students received an oversize baseball card of the Phanatic with a word puzzle on school breakfast on the back. MAMMA plans to return to the Philadelphia school district for the 1994-1995 school year to reinforce the school milk initiative.

By the time the last out was made at the ball game and the fans headed for the exits, the cows were already off to the tunnel leading

Bovine Stars Bring Milk Message

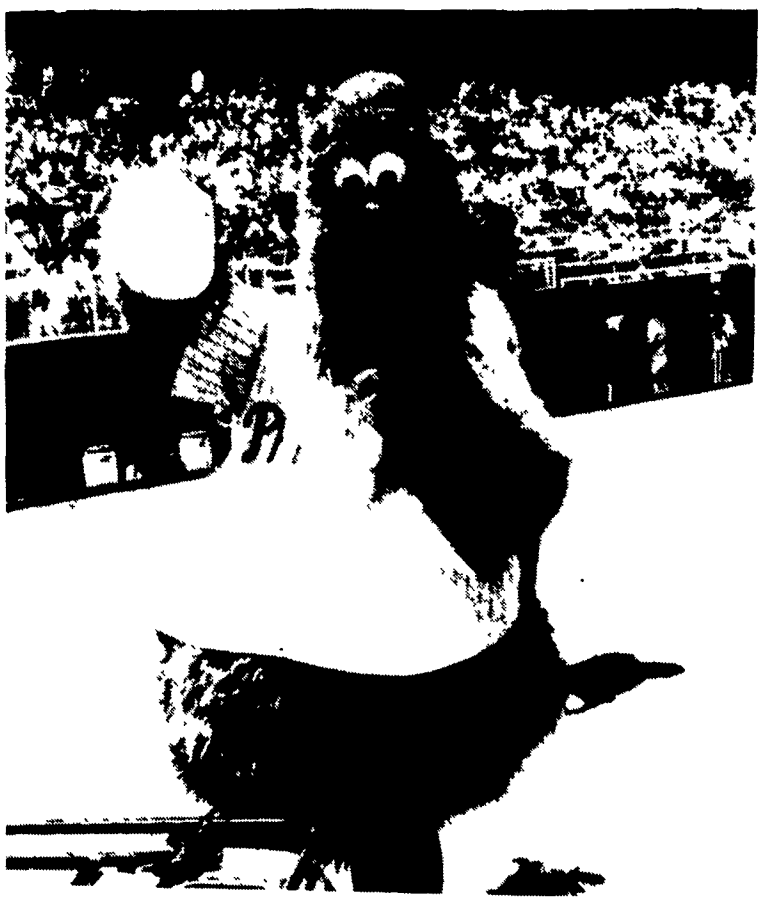
under the stands and out to the cattle truck. The trip back home took the two "heavy hitters" for milk promotion away from the stadium crowds and the city traffic noise to more comfortable pastures. No more synthetic grass or those make-believe milk beverages for these bovine ladies.

As the stars of MAMMA's Dairy Day at Phillie's Veterans Stadium were bedding down on the soft growing grass of the home meadow, one cow is reported by an undisclosed source to have breathed a sigh of relief and exclaimed: "It's not exactly my idea of a good way to spend a Sunday afternoon, but someone has to go to the ballgame and teach those kids (and adults) where milk comes from!"



The Phillie Phanatic likes milk so don't forget to drink your milk too.

Meyers Joins ADADC Communications Department

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Stephanie Meyers has been appointed producer communications specialist for the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC). She replaces Shirley Griffith, who has retired after 17 years with ADADC.

In addition to coordinating the New York State Dairy Princess Program and producing Promotion Focus (the quarterly membership) newsletter for dairy farmer in Federal Order 2), Meyers will be responsible for writing news releases for the farm press and coordinating special events.

Meyers brings a strong background in agricultural communications to the position. Most recently, she was member program director for Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc., Syracuse. Her responsibilities included promoting the young cooperator program, designing a monthlyk newsletter, coordinating fund-raisers, and planning educational seminars. Other communication responsibilities included writing news releases and serving as associate editor of Farmlife, the cooperative's publication.

She is a dairy science and communications graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Blacksburg, Va. During college, Meyers had communications internships with ADADC and Farmshine Newspaper, Brownstown, Pa.

Meyers is a former Franklin County, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and has contributed to the New York State Dairy Princess Program by presenting the news release writing workshop at the training seminar and serving as a judge for the state pageant.

Outside of ADADC, Meyers serves on the boards of the New York Farm-City Council and the Central New York Chapter of the Public Relations Society of America.

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH

Plays Healthy Role In State Economics

ITHACA, N.Y. — The next time you reach for a glass of milk or slice of cheese, think of it as a vote of confidence in one of the country's most enduring industries and its prominent role in the nation's economy.

Retail sales of dairy products accounted for more than 10 percent of all foods last year and amounted to more than $64 billion. Sales of fluid milk alone amounted to more than $28 billion.

The farm income from those dairy products amounted to more than $20 billion, not including the value of beef sales from dairy cows sent to slaughter.

These expenditures help support a dairy industry work force that includes about 128,000 dairy farmers and 65,000 fluid milk industry employees.

The trickle-down effect of these dairy farms translates into employment and economic activity in local communities and generates $3 to $4 for the local economy for every dairy farm dollar earned, according to Olin Forker, an economist at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York.

In 38 states, dairy products rank among the top five farm commodities in terms of cash receipts. Dairy was the leading commodity in California, Wisconsin, New York, Minnesota, and Pennsylvania, followed by Michigan, Vermont, and New Hampshire. In three of those states — Vermont, Wisconsin, and New York — dairy products account for more than half of the total agricultural cash receipts. Dairy was the number two or number three commodity in another 20 states.

Dairy Production Heads West

While milk and other dairy products remain as wholesome and tasty as ever, the dairy industry itself is undergoing big production changes that affect the economics of dairying.

Most milk today is being produced west of the Mississippi, a region that claims fewer, but much larger, dairy farms. While the average dairy herd is 60 cows, in the West it is nearly 250. Even though California has overtaken Wisconsin as the largest milk producing state, the fastest-growing dairy states include New Mexico, Arizona, Washington, and Idaho.

Recent changes in the dairy industry are forcing more dairy farmers to rethink how they will market their milk in the future. Government purchases of dairy products will be less than two percent of all dairy products produced this year so more than ever is going into the commercial market.

Also changing is how dairy farmers are paid for their milk. While dairy farmers used to be paid one price for most of their milk, today they are paid according to the individual components of the milk, including proteins, nonfat solids, and butterfat. On average, only 20 percent of their income comes from butterfat, compared to nearly 40 percent several years ago.

Industry analysts foresee the day when milk processors will not automatically buy all the milk a dairy farmer produces. All purchases will be made on a contract basis, and only for certain components of the milk, they say.

That, coupled with reduced government purchases of dairy surpluses, will mean that the supply of milk will be kept more in line with changes in consumer demand. For consumers, that means more of the dairy products you want — when you want it.

Bupp Completes Course

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — John Wayne Bupp, Lancaster, has completed the basic course in auctioneering offered by the Mendenhall School of Auctioneering in High Point, N.C., and has been awarded a diploma.

The program is designed to educate and train people interested in auctioneering to become successful auctioneers. Included are courses in real estate, livestock, automobiles, antiques, business liquidations, auction galleries, construction and farm equipment, clerking, cashiering, advertising, law, bid-calling, and more. The faculty includes 16 nationally recognized auctioneers and business leaders.

Four classes, each lasting two weeks, are conducted each year. Each class consists of more than 100 hours of professional training. Auctions are conducted where the public is invited and the students do the actual auctioneering.

Producer Commitment Needed Now For Cooperative Lamb Marketing

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Some 30 sheep producers and university and allied industry people met at Penn State last Saturday to discuss the future of the new farmers cooperative, Green Valley Lamb, Inc.

The immediate need for increased membership was emphasized. Also, leaders noted that the cooperative's success depends on sincere producer commitment and a year-round supply of quality lambs. The real task continues to be finding producers willing to invest in and make a three-year commitment to the marketing venture.

Pennsylvania lamb producer Victor Decker addresses the group assembled at University Park Saturday to discuss the establishment of Green Valley Lamb, Inc.

Initial work of the steering committee with representatives from the USDA/Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Service has dealt with how to build a successful cooperative marketing program.

There was consensus at last weekend's meeting that any such program needs time to establish its reputation with packers, wholesalers, retailers, and ultimately consumers. The most important component of a successful program, however, is the producer.

Victor Decker, lamb marketing steering committee member, summed it up by saying, "To be successful, our primary tasks are to (1) evaluate producer interest; (2) define and develop an awareness of problems; (3) design a producer educational program that focuses on the problems; (4) gain firm producer commitment; and (5) have the determination to do the things that will ultimately make the venture profitable."

Near the close of the meeting, steering committee chairman John Shoemaker asked those present to share how they see the cooperative serving their own operations.

Several of the producers agreed with committee member Charlie Cathcart that "a wait-and-see attitude now will ensure failure of the program." He said, "The projected need for 5,000 lambs the first year would be difficult to meet with the current limited membership."

$13.50 For April Milk

ALBANY, N.Y. — Dairy farmers who supplied regulated milk dealers (handlers) under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during April 1994 will be paid by handlers on the basis of a uniform price of $13.50 per hundredweight (29 cents per quart); the price for the corresponding month last year was $12.19 per hundredweight.

Market Administrator Ronald C. Pearce also stated that the price was $13.99 in March 1994. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

A total of 11,647 dairy farmers supplied handlers regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders witih 987,140,305 pounds of milk during April 1994. This was a decrease of .5 percent (about 5 million pounds) from last year.

The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $134,220,746.66. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers, but not premiums, deductions authorized by the farmer, or assessments.

Regulated handlers used 387,604,817 pounds of milk for Class I, 39.2 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For April 1994, handlers paid $14.83 per hundredweight (31.9 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $13.16 a year ago.

Handlers used 148,444,196 pounds of milk for Class II products, 15.1 percent of the total. Class II products include fluid cream, eggnog, ricotta and cottage cheeses, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $13.19 per hundredweight for this milk.

Milk used to manufacture Class III products — including butter, cheese (other than ricotta and cottage cheeses), and whole milk powder — totaled 415,323,689 pounds (42.1 percent of the total). Handlers paid $12.90 per hundredweight for this milk.

Milk used to manufacture nonfat dry milk (Class III-A) totaled 35,767,603 pounds (3.6 percent of the total). Handlers paid $10.25 per hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For April 1994, there was a price differential of 5.3 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received from farms in the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Industry, Government Cooperate To Recycle Pesticide Containers

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The state Department of Agriculture is currently conducting a plastic pesticide container recycling program in three counties in south central Pennsylvania.

The program is open to anyone with plastic pesticide containers, including farmers, golf course operators, and commercial applicators, according to David Bingaman, environmental specialist with the PDA Bureau of Plant Industry.

Not to be confused with the ChemSweep program that the PDA has conducted in order to help roundup and dispose of outdated or unwanted farm chemicals, the plastic pesticide container recycling program is designed to collect and recycle cleaned, triple-rinsed, plastic pesticide containers, rather than having them burned or buried on the farm.

There is no cost to those who drop off the cleaned plastic containers. The purpose of the program — a cooperative arrangement between the pesticide industry, farmers and government — is to take care of a potential environmental problem through voluntary means rather than through a federal government program.

According to Robert Denny, a consultant on environmental policies and regulations, and former executive director of the Main pesticide regulatory agency who developed and wrote the nation's first collection program on a statewide basis, a non-profit organization was formed to support a voluntary cleanup effort.

The name of the organization is the Agricultural Containers Research Council (ACRC), and it is helping to sponsor the Pennsylvania program, according to Bingaman.

Denny, in an article published in the September-October 1993 issue of Reuse and Recycling, stated that the ACRC is composed of 36 member and affiliate supporters, and include "primary producers of pesticides and agricultural adjuvants, formulators of end-use agricultural products, agricultural distributors and dealers, packaging producers, and others interested in making agricultural packaging recovery/recycling a reality."

According to Denny, an effort was made in U.S. Congress to create a legal system whereby a type of surcharge would be placed on the sale of pesticides to cover the cost of developing and carrying out a nationwide, federal-government run pesticide container collection program.

While the political effort failed, it apparently caused industry people to take steps to take care of the problem before political efforts resumed.

In the article, Denny stated, "... it became clear to many packagers and distributors of agricultural products that sharing expenses of these programs was preferable to federal administration or to each company providing collection programs for their own containers."

According to Bingaman, the Pennsylvania program began this year and is initially targeted in Lancaster, Adams, and Franklin counties — areas assumed to have relatively high use of pesticides due to the nature of the agricultural enterprises.

However, Bingaman said that all who use pesticides are welcomed to participate, as long as they follow the rules.

- All sites are to be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. each scheduled collection day. Plastic pesticide containers may only be dropped off at an open, and attended, site. Do not drop off containers at unattended sites.
- All plastic pesticide containers must be triple-rinsed or pressure rinsed and clean inside and outside in order to be accepted for recycling. Only containers up to a 30 gallon size will be accepted. No 50-gallong plastic drums will be accepted.

(Turn to Page A27)

How To Triple Rinse

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The procedure for triple rinsing plastic pesticide containers is not difficult, but does require attention to detail, according to state agriculture officials.

Also some types of pesticides, especially those formulated for surface adherance, may have areas that prove difficult to remove, such as around the mouth of the container.

However, in order to participate in the plastic pesticide recycling program, containers must be clean. The collected containers are used in recycling, or are used for incineration to generate heat and electricity.

Burning or burying contaminated containers on the farm, or even clean containers can present a serious personal health hazard.

To triple rinse:

- Empty contents of container into spray tank, turning the container so that any product trapped in the handle is allowed to flow out. Once flow is down to a drip, allow the contianer to drain for an additional 30 seconds.
- Immediately begin rinsing procedures or the product may become difficult to remove.
- Fill empty container ¼ full of water.
- Replace the cap on the container. With the container opening facing left, shake the container left to right over a distance of 4 to 6 inches. Shake the container about twice per second for 30 seconds.
- Drain rinse water into spray tank as previously described.
- Fill the container ¼ full of water a second time.
- Recap the container. With the capped opening of the container pointed towards the ground, shake the container in the same manner again. Drain rinse water into spray tank.
- Fill the container ¼ full of water a third time.
- Recap, and with the capped opening in the upright position, shake the container again, for 30 seconds, twice per second, with a 4- to 6-inch vertical motion.
- Pour the rinse water into the spray tank. Carefully rinse the outside of the container.

NMPF Requests USDA Help To Offset Milk Price Drop

ARLINGTON, Va. — The National Milk Producers Federation Monday urged Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy to counteract an anticipated 20-percent plunge in milk prices in the coming months.

The Federation's Executive Committee of 30 dairy producers and cooperative officials recently approved a resolution calling for immediate USDA intervention to stabilize milk prices.

In a letter to Espy, Jim Barr, NMPF's chief executive officer, requested USDA revitalize the lagging Dairy Export Incentive Program (DEIP) by adding new countries to the list of those eligible to receive subsidized dairy products.

Barr also urged USDA to make advance purchases of cheese, nonfat dry milk and other products for the school lunch and other government food assistance programs. The Federation also requested that donations of Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) dairy products continue under international aid and development programs.

In the letter, Barr said that "farm-level milk prices will plunge by several dollars per hundredweight, placing severe financial stress on dairy farmers throughout the country."

Barr said prices for milk used to manufacture butter and non-fat dry milk are "already returning no more than the support price for milk."

Block cheese prices on the National Cheese Exchange fell to $1.19 3/4 per pound — a slide of nearly 20 cents in three weeks. Barrel cheese prices were off almost 10 cents per pound last Friday.

"With cheese markets now within 7.75 cents of the $1.12 per pound CCC block cheese purchase price and likely still falling, we see a great likelihood that milk prices overall will fall to support over the next several months," Barr said.

"This would represent a drop in milk prices of about $2.60 per hundredweight compared to price levels during the first four months of the year."

Barr urged "strong action" by USDA to counteract the drop in milk prices and "the upcoming steep erosion in dairy farm income." He urged USDA to:

• Purchase dairy products in advance for the remainder of this year's and for next year's school lunch and other domestic food assistance programs,

• And to continue donations of CCC dairy product stocks under Section 416(b) and Public Law 480.

Industry, Government Cooperate

• Only plastic pesticide containers, or plastic containers that held crop oils, surfactants, and fertilizers, will be accepted. Unacceptable are plastic containers that contained such things as antifreeze, motor oil, detergents, milk containers, etc.

• Plastic pesticide containers are to be examined at the drop-off site by PDA-approved inspectors. Those containers not cleaned properly are to be returned to the owner immediately. They can be taken home and properly cleaned for later drop-off the same day or during another scheduled pick-up.

• There is no charge or limit on quantity of plastic pesticide containers that can be dropped off. However, those in Adams and Franklin counties who wish to drop off more than 1,000 containers are asked to call the local extension office prior to the scheduled drop off. In Lancater County, those wishing to drop off more than 500 containers are asked to call ahead to the state Department of Agriculture at (717) 787-4843.

For more specific instructions, in Adams County, call (717) 334-6271, or 624-4525; in Franklin County, call (717) 263-9226.

Although at least one pickup day has already occured in all three counties, the program is scheduled to continue through the year.

Officials ask that inquiries about the recycling program be directed to the extension offices or the state Department of Agriculture — not to the owners of the drop-off sites.

In Lancaster County, six locations have been selected as pickup points. There are three locations in each of the other two counties.

Lancaster County

• Henry Hoover, 1731 W. Main St., Ephrata — June 17, July 15, August 16, and Nov. 2.

• G&G Feed and Supply, rear 123 E. Stiegel St., Manheim — June 20, July 18, August 17, and Nov. 4.

• Benjamin Landis, Landis Spraying Service, 587 Strasburg Road (Rt. 741), Strasburg — June 1, July 1, August 3, and Sept. 2.

• Gideon King, 5465 Elam Road, Kinzers — June 3, July 6, August 5, and Sept. 6.

• Martin Ag Service, 338 Grist Mill Road, New Holland — June 9, July 8, August 9, and Oct. 5.

• Little Britain Agri Service, 398 Little Britain Road, Quarryville — June 10, July 14, August 12, and Oct. 7.

Franklin County

The Franklin County collection site schedule for the year is:

• Cumberland Valley Co-op Association, Plant 908, Mt. Rock Rd., Shippensburg — June 16, July 21, August 18, and Oct. 13.

• Mountain View Reclamation Landfill, 9760 Letzburg Rd., Greencastle — June 23, July 28, August 25, and Nov. 10.

• McGee & Smith Enterprises, Rt. 641, Spring Run — June 8, July 13, August 11, and Sept. 8.

Adams County

• Adams County Nursery, in Aspers — June 21, July 19, August 19, Oct. 11.

• Oyler's Orchard, 155 Hilltown Rd., Gettysburg — June 28, July 26, August 23, and Nov. 8.

• Mason-Dixon Farms, 1750 Mason-Dixon Rd., Gettysburg — June 14, July 12, August 10, and Sept. 7.

To Preserve? Not Preserve? At Stake May Be A Family's Financial Future

first through a series of ratings on how well maintained and used the agricultural property is. Are the buildings in good shape? Are commodities being produced on the farm? Is the soil prime agricultural material?

If a farm family receives high enough ratings based on these and other questions, they become a candidate for easement purchase. The purchase figure is based on an appraisal which subtracts the farm value from the market development value. In the case of Daniel and Diane Schlegel, they will receive about $184,404 for the development rights.

But they can't sell any property to development under that agreement. They can only sell the property strictly for agricultural use.

Perhaps, according to Schlegel, some landowner can purchase the farm, intact, and use it as a horse farm or some sort of estate.

Regardless, the money, when Schlegel obtains it, will be used to help finance the education of his children — a son, Billy, 11, a 6th grader at Moore Elementary and daughter Corrie, 17, a junior at Northampton Senior High School.

"I feel it's very important for my children to continue their education beyond high school," said Daniel Schlegel. "I went to trade school — never went to college. Do I regret that? Sometimes, yes."

But Schlegel never regrets being a farmer.

"I've been a part-time farmer since I got out of high school," he said. "I don't mind putting in the hours, when I could be golfing or playing softball or whatever. I'd just rather farm."

But trying to make a living is another matter.

Schlegel said that he has had to work full-time to make a decent living for his family. If he would try full-time farming, he believes he couldn't provide for his family as he could with off-farm income. "I think that's a problem a lot of people have."

When farming in the past, Schlegel admitted he lost money. "But I just can't give it up. On the other hand, I'm not going to pressure my son do do the same thing. That would be his choice."

Daughter Corrie wants to study veterinary science. Schlegel said that she shows no interest in wanting to farm on a full- or part-time basis.

"I want my children to have every opportunity. They are good enough to go into college and hopefully move into a profession that they'll be happy with," he said.

"As a general crops farmer, you're not going to make a living off of 100 acres. I don't think this land lends itself to truck farming — it gets dry up here," he said.

Schlegel, by signing the agreement, believes that he didn't devalue the property by obtaining the easement. Rather, the farm can still be valuable as leased land or as an estate, intact.

He spoke about how little importance is attached to farming in the heavily urbanized area of Northampton County, which includes the suburbs of Allentown.

"In Lancaster County, it's different out there," he said. "They farm generation after generation after generation. And this is is a third generation. But I really don't know how much longer I can continue. It really isn't all that economically viable in this area."

Schlegel purchased the farm from his father in 1985. His father was a dairyman, but because expansion was necessary, the older Schlegel quit the business in 1956.

After serving in Vietnam as a combat artillery specialist from 1966-1968, Daniel Schlegel went to work as a part-time truck driver and farmer. He worked for a time at a cement supplier locally and continued farming.

Diane, his wife, works for a local cement company as an order department supervisor.

Today, Daniel Schlegel grows about 140 acres of corn, 60 of soybeans, 50 of wheat, and the rest alfalfa and timothy hay for the horse industry.

He stayed working full-time outside the farm because, he said, "I probably lacked the confidence to take on a real heavy debt load." But he said that it supplied financial security in order to maintain a good standard of living in the county.

Now, however, the urbanizing pressure has gotten great. Years ago, according to the grain farmer, nobody questioned farm practices, such as spraying, like they do today.

He said, "They'll stop you and say, what are you spraying, and some even say, I wish you wouldn't spray.

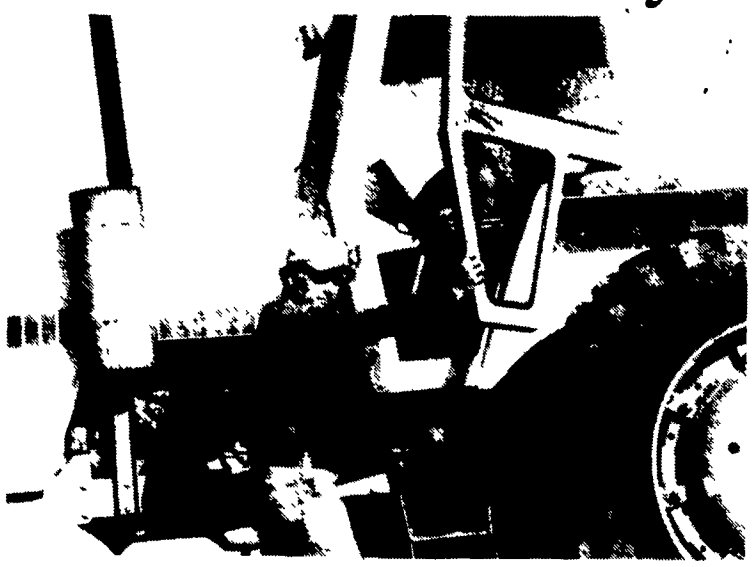
"And we're very careful up here, becauase I have very few fields that don't have a neighbor, a non-ag neighbor. And it's much more of a problem than it was years ago."

Schlegel spoke about how some homeowners will complain about his spraying, and then be out in the lawn, spreading weed and feed, walking behind the drop spreader, while their toddler goes barefoot behind them.

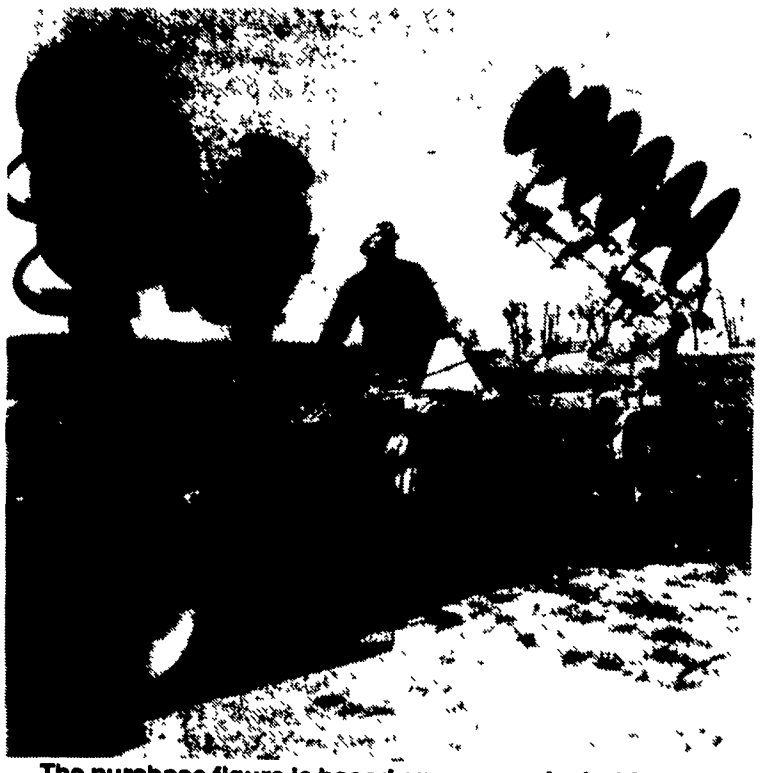
"But when I come in with a 500-gallon sprayer and 36-foot boom, now they have a problem."

In the end, Schlegel believes that he made the right decision to preserve the farm.

"I don't have any qualms about what I'm doing," he said. "And like I say, it may not be an ongoing agricultural enterprise after I'm gone, but it will still be one area of the township that's not developed. And I think that has some worth."



Schlegel farms about 285 acres below the Blue Mountain range in Moore Township. Schlegel grows about 140 acres of corn, 60 of soybeans, 50 of wheat, and the rest alfalfa and timothy hay for the horse industry.



The purchase figure is based on an appraisal which subtracts the farm value from the market development value. In the case of Daniel and Diane Schlegel, they will receive about $184,404 for the development rights. Here, he inspects a 15½ foot disc harrow.

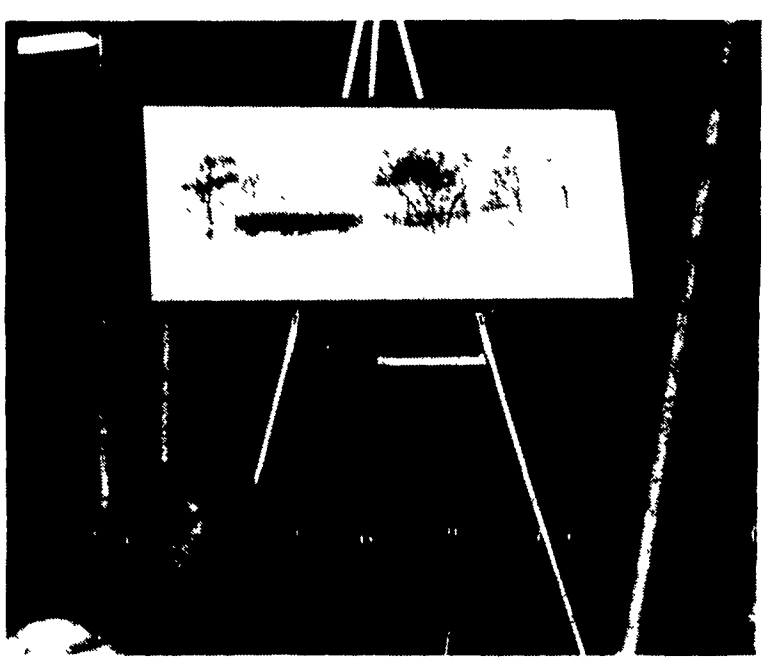
4-H Center Benefit Auction Nets $11,200

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The first annual Chester County 4-H Benefit Auction was a great success, netting $11,200 which will be put to use in the beginning stages of construction of the new site.

A crowd of 200 people attended this first auction, which was held at the Tabas Hotel Sports Center in Downingtown. Approximately 300 items were donated to the sale from various individuals and businesses from across Chester County and some sections of Lancaster County.

Most of the items were handmade items, which included quilts, paintings, afghans, wall hangings, wreaths, stuffed animals, baskets, and dolls. Other popular items included Winross trucks, antiques, cattle and hog supplies, baskets full of Chester County treasures and a wide variety of plants and flats of flowers and vegetables.

The highlight of the event was a lithograph, "The Buck Run Bridge" 12/295, donated by Chester County artist Peter Sculthorpe that sold for $775. A quilt donated by Violet Beam of Elverson sold for $725 to Dr. and Mrs. Scott Gradwell of Allentown.



Buck Run Bridge painting sold to Bill and Joan MacCauley.

A big thank you is extended to all those who donated and purchased items and who donated advertising space, clerking items, etc., according to the extension office. To list all of them would take an entire page. A special thank you must go to Dan Tabas, owner of the Tabas Hotel for donating the use of his facilities for the event and to Edwin Herr of Herr Foods, Inc. Nottingham for the donation of the chips both for the auction and the food stand.

Also, the extension office thanks Lancaster Farming for donating advertising space for the event.

The Chester County 4-H Center Inc. is planning on making this an annual event. Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new facility will be scheduled soon.

For further information on the 4-H Center, contact the 4-H Center office at (610) 268-3110. Private donations are still being solicited.

Ephrata Young Farmers Tour Test Site

Farmers Should Treat For Cutworm Before Corn Losses Escalate

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

SPRINGVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Cutworm is out in force now, devastating many young corn plants. But it's not too late to act to reduce potential crop losses, according to Rob Kauffman and Mike Brubaker, agronomists.

About 15 farmers inspected some of the damage to crops under variety and yield study. This was held during the monthly meeting on Tuesday evening of the Ephrata Area Young Farmers Association (EAYFA) at the Hibshman Farmstead, courtesy of Mary Schantz.

Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service (BACS) President Mike Brubaker, which utilizes the Hibshman Farmstead for BACS field studies, said that the cutworm, which can measure up to ½ inch, has overwintered in some fields and poses a threat.

'We just found out within the last couple of days about the cutworm. Apparently it's a real problem," said Brubaker.

He told the farmers that as a result of the cutworm infestation, the center part of the young corn plant starts to wilt down. Farmers who inspect the fields now who see the telltale wilting, and dig around the roots to find the worm (three plants per 100 is the threshold), should treat the fields with an appropriate, labeled insecticide.

Also, BACS has checked a field along Rt. 272 and also noticed the cutworm, which feeds on plants, especially in fields that use no-till. Brubaker said his office plans to do a pest alert because BACS believes there's enough cutworm pressure right now.

"Cutworms do most of their feeding at night," he said. "Your pesticide will be the most potent then. So if you can treat about this time, it will be an ideal time to spray. We found it just knocks them out real well."

Another pest farmers should be concerned about is the flea beetle.

"We have a lot more injury from flea beetle than what we ever suspected," said Brubaker. The beetle feeds on the leaves. "It's more and more of a concern," he said. Thresholds for treatment are about 3-4 beetles per plant.

Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service (BACS) President Mike Brubaker, which utilizes the Hibshman Farmstead for BACS field studies, said that the cutworm, which can measure up to ½ inch, has overwintered in some fields and poses a threat.

Rob Kauffman, agronomy technician and farm manager with BACS who supervises the farmstead test plots, conducted a tour of the various agronomic crop trials under way. About 71 acres are in test, with a variety of corn, soybean, alfalfa, barley, and other crops.

According to Kauffman, the intent of the test site is to study yields, fertilizer and herbicide use, and variety performance on different crops and to "conduct research in an environment as similar to normal farming practices as possible and stay away from a lot of small-plot replicators," he said. Included is a grain corn variety trial with 27 different hybrids, in plots ranging from 1/10 to 1/2 acre. BACS is working with the cooperation of about 14 seed corn companies (to study variety performance and yield) and about six chemical companies (to study herbicide performance). Also, fertilizer studies, utilizing various amounts of inorganic and organic materials, are under way.

BACS will also be conducting a "Roundup-ready" soybean variety study. According to Brubaker, Monsanto, the manufacturer of the herbicide Roundup, has been working with seed companies for some years to make the soybean plant resistant to Roundup.

"They, along with a number of seed companies, have done that successfully, and it's very significant," said Brubaker. "The technology which will enable farmers to grow soybeans and apply Roundup directly to the plants is being perfected by Monsanto, but is not yet available to the general public."

The soybeans will grow and develop a canopy, and will be sprayed, weeds and all, at about the 3-4 trifoliate.

Also, BACS will be conducting application reviews of the new Penn State chlorophyll meter. The meter can be used, on the spot, to indicate how much nitrogen the plant may need.

Other studies under way include herbicide trials vs. tillage, soybean variety trials, response to soybean varieties with herbicides, alfalfa trials (nine different varieties), and a field silage trial with 11 different varieties. Also, a barley study

PDA Advises

BVD or PI3 should avoid contact with other herds and should change clothing and footwear before leaving affected farms.

The dairy herds currently under investigation are located in Crawford and Mercer counties.

BVD infection may cause fever, loss of appetite, depression, diarrhea, abortion and, in severe cases, death. PI3 infection causes similar signs but also results in severe respiratory disease, including pneumonia.

A vaccine is available to reduce disease from these infections. Neither of these diseases are communicable to man, nor do they have serious consequences for other species.

Penn State-Led Consortium Receives Kellogg Planning Grant

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A consortium led by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences has been selected to receive one of 12 planning grants from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to participate in the foundation's Food Systems Professions Education Initiative.

The $133,000 grant will enable the consortium to design educational program strategies needed to prepare food systems professionals for the 21st century. The consortium will include Penn State's 18 commonwealth campuses, the Rodale Institute, and Cheyney University.

"Penn State's proposal was one of 12 approved by the Kellogg Board after a review of 39 proposals and site visits to 16 institutions," said Dr. William Lacy, assistant dean for research in the college and program director.

An 18-month "visioning" process will be the first step in developing innovations in food systems education. The foundation will conduct six national symposia for the 12 groups to enable them to share their strategies. At the end of this period, participating institutions will be considered for additional grants to help with implementation.

"The visioning phase is designed to engage the higher-education community as well as a wide range of stakeholders in the food system," said Lacy. "Penn State's initiative is to create a model educational system based on the changing values and needs of Pennsylvania's diverse population."

Participants in the visioning process will include agricultural producers, suppliers, processors, and distributors; environmental agencies and advocates; nutrition and food distribution groups; policy makers; community officials and organizations; members of the media; and university leaders.

"By involving university leaders, we hope to encourage a broader dialogue regarding the organization and content of education university-wide," said Lacy.

Leading the Penn State consortium are Lacy; Dr. James Mortensen, associate dean for resident education in the college; Dr. Frederick Gaige, chief executive officer at Penn State Berks Campus; Maria van Hekken, co-director of the Penn State/Rodale Center for Sustaining Agriculture and Natural Resources in Urbanizing Environments; Dr. Clinton Pettus, vice president for academic affairs at Cheyney University; and Dr. G. Gregory Lozier, executive director of Penn State's Office of Planning and Analysis.

Most of the foundation's grants address the areas of youth; leadership; philanthropy and volunteerism; community-based, problem-focused health services; higher education; food systems; rural development; groundwater resources; and economic development. Programming priorities concentrate grants in the United States, Latin America, the Caribbean, and southern Africa.

FOR DOUBLE-CROP SOYBEANS THERE'S ONLY ONE LEADER OF THE PACK.

PURSUIT® herbicide is today's best tool for double-crop beans. It not only delivers the highest degree of overall weed control, it's also the only postemergence product that combines contact and residual activity to give you superior control of more than 40 tough-to-control grasses and broadleaf weeds. Including velvetleaf, foxtails, cocklebur, pigweeds, nightshades, common ragweed, giant ragweed, sunflower, shattercane and seedling Johnsongrass. Without causing crop injury. And because of its advanced chemistry and low rates of application, PURSUIT offers a responsible choice for the environment. That's the kind of leadership everyone can respect. Farmers Should Treat For Cutworm examines various nitrogen application rates and yield results.

BACS, according to Brubaker, will share the data of the results with the EAYFA.

Celebrate June Dairy Month At Park City

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Dairy Promotion Committee will join with Boscov's at Park City to celebrate June Dairy Month on Friday, June 3 at 4 p.m. Members of Kids 'n Kows 4-H Dairy Club will take several small calves and a milking cow to the tent erected in the parking lot near Boscov's Garden Center.

A cow milking contest will be held in the tent at 5 p.m. as several T.V. and radio personalities try their hand at milking "the old fashioned way."

The evening's climax will begin at 6 p.m. when Turkey Hill Dairies will use 150 gallons of ice cream to construct a seven-foot high ice cream sundae. Everyone is invited to come salute June Dairy Month and enjoy a free sample of a Turkey Hill ice cream sundae.

The festivities will resume under the tents again on Saturday, June 4 from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. A petting area with small 4-H calves will be provided by members of the Pequea Valley 4-H Dairy Club. Numerous activities and contests will be held throughout the day under the second tent, including a milk drinking contest, dairy trivia game, and a cheese identifying contest. A special children's corner will have tables and crayons for cow coloring pages, a dairy tic-tac-toe game, and stickers, pencils, or cow erasers for every child.

Many prizes have been donated to be given away at the end of the day by random drawing.

Thick milkshakes and hand-dipped ice cream cones are available at the Lancaster County Dairy Promotion Milk Wagon. Anyone interested in helping or wanting more information about the Lancaster County Dairy Promotion Committee should contact Joyce Blank at (717) 442-8142 or Donna Kreider at (717) 284-4776.

Holtzingers Complete First Phase Of Training

TAMPA, Fla. — Kevin and Karen Holtzinger, owners of a dairy farm in East Berlin, York County, recently completed the first phase of the Young Dairy Leaders Institute, held in Tampa Florida.

Karen Holtzinger

Kevin Holtzinger

The Holstein Foundation, based in Brattleboro, Vt., coordinated the leadership seminar for dairy adults, with the support of individual and corporate business sponsors.

The Holtzingers were among 100 participants selected from 250 applications from across the United States, and spent four days of intensive training, undergoing the rigors of the business world.

Leading authorities in the fields of communications, corporate business, and management companies, traced some of the factors that have been proven effective in the marketplace.

Learning how to handle stress and conflict, personal goal-setting and facing unusual opportunities, were among some of the skills taught during the seminar.

Participants tested their abilities to resolve conflicting views while perform roles during a mock town meeting. A simulated television talk show also provided a scenario for building effective and professional skills in public communications.

The leaders institute is a three-phase, first-of-its kind type of development program. The second phase began with the return of the members to their home community, where they are expected to serve in community leadership positions.

Phase III requires the participants to return to Tampa next year for assessement.

Twin Valley's Ag Science Students Do What Many Classrooms Merely Teach

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELVERSON (Chester Co.) — There's book learning, and then there's the hands-on approach. An age-old question: Which one works?

Just ask the ag students at Twin Valley High School. During the past three years, nearly everyone, from freshman to senior, has been involved in the planning, construction, and utilization of two greenhouses here at the high school.

For the students involved, the study of how a plant germinates and grows can make sense in a book, but planting the seeds and watching them grow — all the while studying factors such as temperature, humidity, nutrients, sunlight, and other factors — adds to their total educational experience.

"Our head of the science department happens to be one of the biology teachers, and she often brings classes down here to show them the application of what they're studying," said Ron Frederick, ag science teacher. "She said we're doing what she's teaching."

About 50 ag science students and Twin Valley FFA members have been involved in all aspects of the construction of the greenhouses. One of the greenhouses, a 14-foot wide by 48-foot long "lean-to" greenhouse, replaces an older greenhouse that was disassembled last fall.

Work involved the efforts of ag students from 9th through 12th grade, according to Frederick. The lean-to uses a ¾ -inch double-wall polyethylene material, "which has real good insulation qualities" all year-round, said the ag instructor.

The facility houses many fresh flowers and vegetable plants, including tomatoes, cabbage, parsley, and lots of geraniums, begonias, petunias, marigolds, zinnias, snapdragons, coleus, and an assortment of hanging baskets.

The school sells the plants to the middle and elementary school students for special occasions such as Mother's Day.

Another greenhouse, to house hydroponics and aquaculture equipment and material, measures 24 feet by 29 feet. The design was created by the ag science department and contains a 1,500 gallon circular tank with a rotating biodisc filter. Two other tanks, each measuring 300 gallons, house about 50 catfish and tilapia.

"This will be part of the first-year environmental ag science class," said Frederick. The greenhouse will be used by the environmental science classes in grades 10-12.

"We hope to, in the future, offer a fish science course," he said.

Students will study the biology of fish, including the equipment and materials needed to ensure a healthy environment. Part of the studies include water quality.

On the fish tank filtration system, the classes use a plastic foam suspension system, making use of plants in a floating bed system to filter the water.

The focus will be on feeding systems and feed conversion studies for fish.

Combined, the cost of both greenhouses totals $15,000. About half of the money was provided by a youth grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Pioneer Seed Company provided $5,000 in grant money and $1,000

Combined, the cost of both greenhouses totals $15,000. About half of the money was provided by a youth grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Pioneer Seed Company provided $5,000 in grant money and $1,000 came from local industries. The remainder of the money was provided by FFA chapter fruit and plant sales. From left, Michelle Powell, FFA chapter president; Tracey Putt; Ron Frederick, ag instructor; and Ben Dodd.

Michelle Powell waters the geraniums, begonias, petunias, marigolds, zinnias, snapdragons, coleus, and an assortment of hanging baskets in the greenhouse.

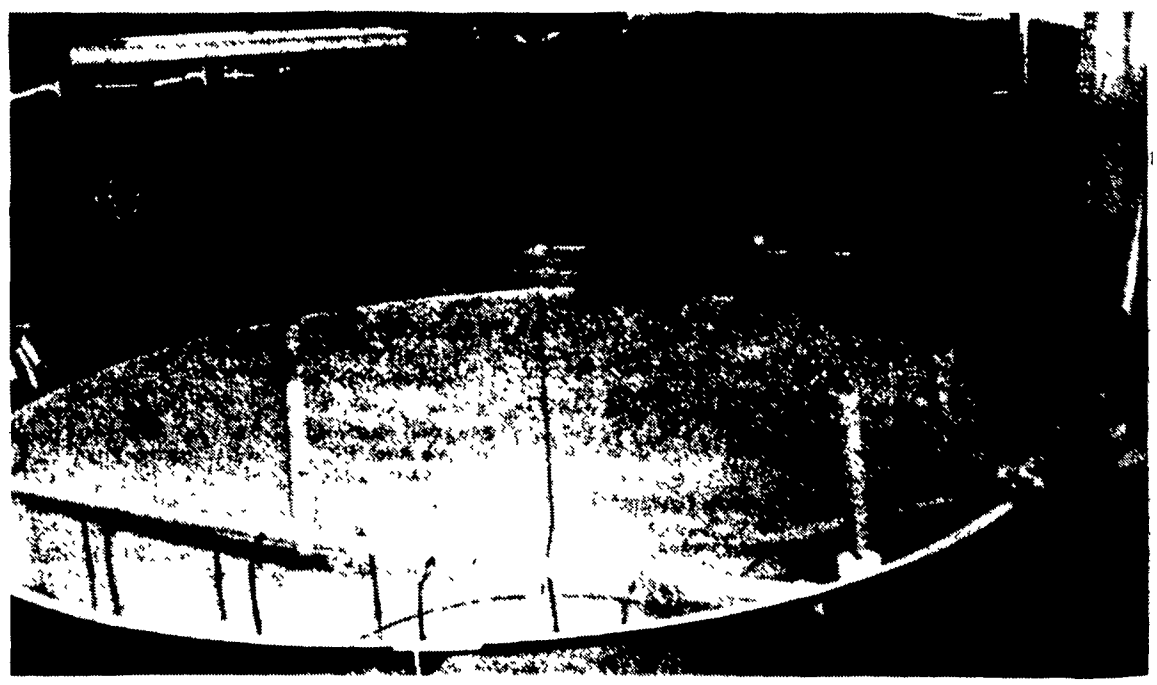
A new Twin Valley High School facility houses many fresh flowers and vegetable plants. Here, Dan Elston inspects the begonias.



Another greenhouse at Twin Valley, to house hydroponics and aquaculture equipment and material, measures 24 feet by 29 feet. Included is this 1,500-gallon circular tank. From left, Bruce Griffin, Jeremy McCallcher, Rich Strausser, Dan Elston, Corey Hostetler, Nick Viscuso, Steve Clark, Elliot Gerard, and Rob Ford.

came from local industries. The remainder of the money was provided by FFA chapter fruit and plant sales.

Frederick would like more students from different parts of the school to use the facility for research and other projects. Unfortunately, the school does not offer science credits in their ag program.

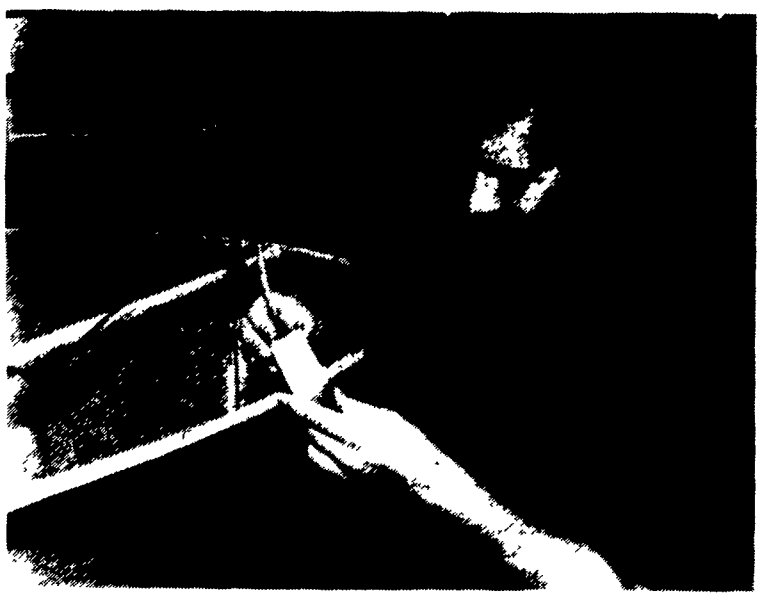
In the future, ag students may be able to secure science credits from taking courses in horticulture or aquaculture. "We've proposed it," said Frederick. "We've also proposed merging the ag and science departments so that we can work more closely together. But right now, it's not happening.

"As teachers, we can' work closely together," he said. "But we're still giving kids the wrong message when we don't give them science credit for ag. We're saying it's science, but if they don't get science credit, they don't really believe it."

The school will soon implement major renovation plans. Frederick wants to include a new biotechnology/plant science laboratory in those plans. Also, the ag science department has asked for a small facility to house all the small animal projects.

However, like many ag science instructors in school, pressure is being placed on them from animal rights groups to back down on animal studies.

"If you kill a few fish, nobody gets excited," said Frederick. "But if you try that with rabbits or chickens or something, you've got animal rights people breathing down your neck right away."



Twin Valley FFA'er Ben Dodd holds an aeration stone from the huge aquaculture tank.

The school sells the plants to the middle and elementary school students for special occasions such as Mother's Day. Here, Jeremy McCalicher looks at a hanging basket containing Schennileover.

Frederick admitted that times have changed for ag instructors.

"At one time, we used to bring a full-sized sow into the shop and have her farrow in here," he said. "But that's not socially acceptable anymore.

"We've raised pigs for the Farm Show under the shed roof already, and we've raised veal calves out under the shed roof, and things like that, but those days are gone, I think."

Some animal studies are still undertaken, including 18 rabbits used for pet therapy and other projects. Also, students study how chickens produce eggs with 20 laying hens. The department raises other small animals for a variety of ag science projects.

Frederick said the department has tried to involve every student from every class in one aspect or another of either the hydroponics/aquaculture system or the horticulture system. Students in shop classes have planted flowers in the greenhouse, and students in ag management system have worked out cost factors in economics.

"We have tried to make sure that every student in the whole program, in one way, shape, or

Maryland Shorthorn Association Announces Field Day

WOODBINE, Md. — The Maryland Shorthorn Association has announced plans for the 8th Annual Eastern Regional Shorthorn Field Day to be held June 17-18, at the Howard County Fairgrounds in West Friendship, Maryland.

The deadline for registration is June 6.

A two-day event this year, the field day activities on Friday evening will feature showmanship classes and a steer show, followed by a potluck supper.

For the potluck supper, according to the announcement, "Please bring your favorite dishes for a community meal. The meat, drinks, tableware, plates and napkins will be provided."

Saturday, is to feature a judging contest for youth followed by a Shorthorn show and a semen auction. The judge for the event is to be Dale Muck, from Illinois.

As an added bonus, there are also 40 tickets reserved for a trip to Camden Yards to see the Baltimore Orioles baseball team play the Minnesota Twins. Make reservations now by calling a member of the field day committee.

Field day committee members are Martin Hamilton, home (401) 442-2497, or work (410) 313-2707, or fax (410) 313-2712; Carl Holland II, at (301) 972-0859; Ray Ediger, at (301) 898-9945.

According to a newsletter from the sponsoring organization, the Maryland Shorthorn Association Inc., "We are looknig foward to another fine day of competition and fellowship among Shorthorn breeders. Dr. Roger Hunsley, executive secretary of the American Shorthorn Association, will join us this year."

Also, the newsletter states that, "To help offset the cost of the field day, we are asking for class sponsors. A donation of $15 will sponsor a class in either the junior or open class division and will help offset the expenses for ribbons, trophies, and the judge's fee.

"Class sponsors will be listed in the catalog and announced during the show. If you would like to be a class sponsor, please indicate the information in the area indicated on the entry blank ... and send your donation with you entries. If you do not plan to enter any cattle at the Field Day, use the entry blank to foward you class sponsorship ... "

The Howard County Fairgrounds are located off of I70, 28 miles east of Frederick, Md., at the Rt.32 interchange, Exit 80.

National Dairy Board Seats Members, Elects Officers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board held its annual meeting recently at the Park Hyatt in Washington, D.C., to celebrate its 10th anniversary, elect officers and conduct business.

During the three-day event, the 36 dairy farmers serving on the board began by seating 12 new members, electing officers and appointed committees.

According to several news releases from the NDB, Patricia Jensen, USDA acting assistant secretary of Marketing and Inspection Services, seated 12 new members and presented awards to retiring members during a first-day ceremony at the hotel.

Dairy farmers newly seated include Mary Cameron, of Hanford, Calif.; Jack S. Davis, of Kuna, Idaho; Jimmie L. Davis, Green Forest, Ark.; Ronnie Hornstra, Avon, S.D.,; Lyle Tjosaas, Kasson, Minn.; David Krug, Owen, Wis.; Roger Rebout, Janesville, Wis.; Myron Erdman, Chenoa, Ill.; Roger Crossgrove, Archbold, Ohio; William HIgginbotham, Washington, Ga.; H. Wallace Cook Jr., Newark, Del.; and Paul Kirsch, Varysburg, N.Y.

Farm and dairy groups nominated dairy farmers for open seats on the board, and active dairy farmers also submitted applications to be considered for a board seat. In the application, candidates acknowledged a commitment of 25 days each year of their term to NDB activities. The U.S. secretary of agriculture appointed board members from at least two nominations for each open seat.

In other business, the board reorganized and reelected Robert Giacomini, of Point Reyes Station, Calif., a dairy farmer, as chairman.

Giacomini milks 450 cows and is director on the Western United Dairymen Association and the Alliance of Western Milk Producers boards. He is a member of California Cooperative Creamery and president of the Marin Agriculture Land Trust.

David Noss, of Port Royal, Pa., was elected vice chairman of the board. A member since 1993, Noss served on the board's Public Relations Committee last year.

In partnership with his brother, Noss milks 60 cows and raises replacement heifers. He is a director on the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association and Penmarva boards.

Five-year NDB member Sylvia Hemauer was re-elected secretary. She was a member of the board's Advertising and Sales Promotion Committee as well as the Export Market Development Committee.

With her family, Hemauer milks 100 cows in Plymouth, Wis. She is a member of the Wisconsin and American Holstien associations, and the Sheboygan County Dairy Promotion Committee. Hemauer is also a county 4-H leader and was a charter member of the Wisconsin Milk Marketing Board.

New Salem, N.D., dairy farmer Robert Gaebe was re-elected treasurer of the NDB. In that office, he is to chair the board's Finance and Administration Committee.

Gaebe milks 100 cows with his family, and also serves on the Executive Committee of Land 'O Lakes and the Export Committee of National Milk Producers Federation.

With the NDB, Gaebe served on the Market and Economic Research Committee last year and in other years was a member of the Export Market Development and Public Relations committees.

During the three-day annual meeting, the NDB also appointed its committees for the year.

This year committees were organized by the board's business priorities — fluid milk, cheese, milkfat, export market development and dairy image.

Assignments on the Fluid Milk Committee is chair Joseph Bavido, from Sharon, Tenn.; vice chair Alvin Sherman, of Coupeville, Wash., Todd Arant, of Bowman, S.C.; H. Wallace Cook, Newark, Del: Francis Gregerson, Longmont, Colo.; Ronald Quinn, Tulare, Calif; and John Sullivan, of Superior, Neb.

On the Cheese Committee is chair Slyvia Hemauer; vice chair Tony Souza, Jr., of Tulare, Calif.; Paul Kirsch, of Varysburg, N.Y.; Shirley Mower, Jordonville, N.Y.; David Noss; and Lyle Tjosaas.

On the Milkfat Committee is chair Mary Parente, of Chino, Calif.; vice chair John Malcheski, Pulaski, Wis.; Myeron Erdman; Robert Gaebe; David Krug; and Alice Moore.

On the Export Market Development Committee is chair Elwood Kirkpatrick, of Kinde, Mich.; vice chair kay Zeosky, of Turin, N.Y.; Jack Davis, of Kuna, Idaho; Jimmie Davis, of Green Forest, Arlk; harold Howrigan, of Fairfield, Vt.; Harold Lehnhart, of Thurmont, Md.; and Allard Peck, of Chippewa Falls, Wis.

On the Dairy Image Committee, is chair Maynard Lang, of Brooklyn, Iowa; vice chair Myron Schmidt, of Newton, Kan.; Mary Cameron; Roger Crossgrove, Archbold, Ohio; Williman Higginbotham; Ronald Hornstra, of Avon, S.D.; and Roger Rebout.

The officers and chairs of each committee make up the Finance and Administration Committee. As treasurer of the NDB, Gaebe is chairman of that committee. Elwood Kirkpatrick was elected vice chair.

Hess Earns First Loper Memorial Scholarship

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The first James H. Loper Jr. Memorial Scholarship was awarded to Jayne N. Hess of Gettysburg, Pa., by the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board at its annual meeting May 18.

The $3,000 scholarship and plaque was presented to Hess by Glenell Loper, Loper's widow, in honor of Jim's dedication to dairy promotion and the industry before his death July 19, 1993.

Hess, a graduate of New Oxford High School, was selected by three National Dairy Board members and three university scientists as the top student applying for a National Dairy Board Undergraduate Scholarship. Nineteen other students received $1,500 scholarships based on their outstanding academic performance, involvement in dairy activities, career commitment to the dairy industry, and demonstrated leadership, initiative and integrity. Hess received a National Dairy Board Undergraduate Scholarship last year, too, because she excelled in these areas.

"Jayne is an outstanding young lady, worthy of the scholarship honoring Jim Loper," said John Peachey, Florida dairyman and chair of the National Dairy Board's Dairy Foods and Nutrition Research Committee in 1993-94. "She exemplifies Jim's strengths in leadership and commitment to improving the industry for dairy farmers."

The daughter of John and Bonnie Hess, Jayne is a senior at Pennsylvania State University, majoring in agricultural science and monitoring in dairy science and agricultural communications.

Hess grew up on the family dairy farm. She has used that experience and knowledge to write curriculum for Pennsylvania 4-H members with dairy projects.

Hess has built her college experiences around the consumer and marketing side of the dairy industry. She got her first taste of dairy marketing and promotion as the 1991 Adams County dairy princess. Since then, Hess has helped plan the 1993 Coronation for the Adams County Dairy Promotion Board and the 1994 Ice Cream Festival.

At Penn State, Hess is a member of the Dairy Science Club and the American Dairy Science Association (ADSA). She won second place in the marketing division of the 1993 ADSA undergraduate paper competition for her entry titled "Current Trends in the Marketing and Consumption of Dairy Products."

Hess was recently named the GAmma Sigma Delta Outstanding Junior in the College of Ag Sciences. She has been named to the Dean's List and the Penn State College of Ag Sciences Honor Roll, which recognizes the top one percent in the college. She is also a member of Golden Key National Honor Society and Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Fraternity.

For earning a perfect 4.0 grade point average, Hess received the Penn State Presidential Award for Freshman in 1992. She is also president of the Coaly Honorary Society, a Penn State Ag Advocate and is a member of th Ag Student Council.

After college, Hess plans a career in dairy product marketing.

Winter's Effects On Tree Pests Less Than Expected

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — This winter's heavy snowfalls and severe cold did not affect tree and shrub pests in Pennsylvania as much as experts had expected, says an entomologist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"The severe winter did not reduce the gypsy moth, elm spanworm, or eastern tent caterpillar in the numbers we'd hoped," said Gregory Hoover, senior extension associate. "This means nursery owners, landscapers, aborists and others who care for trees and shrubs may be in for another difficult growing season."

Hoover evaluated the effects of winter on these pests by collecting egg masses from trees and letting them warm up in the laboratory. "We're observing significant hatching from these egg masses," he said. "Packed snow may have insulated some egg masses from the extreme cold, but even masses collected above the snow line have been hatching."

Gypsy moth, elm spanworm, and eastern tent caterpillar spend winter in the egg stage. When warm weather arrives, they hatch. Research conducted at the University of Maine indicated that gypsy moth eggs exposed to temperatures of minus 20 degrees Fahrenheit for two to three days should result in significant pest mortality.

"According to one study, three days of such cold temperatures should kill about 92 percent of exposed gypsy moth eggs," Hoover said. "We had the cold weather, but based on our preliminary studies, the weather had little impact on these pests in Pennsylvania."

In 1993 elm spanworm alone defoliated 1.2 million acres of Pennsylvania's forests. Eastern tent caterpillar, gypsy moth, and elm spanworm will be hatching across the state now through May, but it is not too late to help protect your trees and shrubs.

Hoover suggests homeowners examine their property for egg masses, paying particular attention to the twigs and branches in the crowns of trees. People can protect their trees and shrubs by removing egg masses from tree branches and trunks, then disposing of them properly.

"This is a great way to affect the pest population without using chemicals," Hoover said. "However, you should be careful not to damage the bark of the plant."

Eastern tent caterpillars lay masses of 150 to 350 eggs around small twigs of cherry, crabapple, or apple trees. The eggs are dark grey with a varnished appearance. Elm spanworms lay compact clusters of olive grey to brown eggs on the underside of twigs or large branches or on tree trunks. Gypsy moths lay tan or buff colored masses of 400 to 600 eggs.

"It does no good to just scrape the egg mass from the tree to the ground because the eggs will still hatch," Hoover said. "They must be destroyed. Put them in a sealed container, burn them, or bury them."

"If your trees are severely infested, you may wish to have a professional arborist treat them," he said. "The timing of management is important. Treating infested trees with a registered material when small caterpillars are active is most effective."

"We're pretty disappointed that such a tough winter didn't have more of an effect on these insects," Hoover said. "We hoped Pennsylvania's trees would get a break this year, but it doesn't look as though that will be the case."

For more information about tree and shrub pests, contact the horticultural agent in your county's Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

Extension Introduces Interactive Video Series

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Maryland at College Park and University of Maryland Eastern Shore was created in 1914 to provide Maryland residents with "useful and practical information on subjects relating to agriculture and home economics."

Extension's goal today is much the same, although the means of achieving it have changed over the years.

Where information was once shared on a one-to-one basis, many agents and specialists currently interact with their audiences through group meetings, newsletters, videotapes and, now, interactive video.

On April 27, Extension demonstrated the effectiveness of this emerging communications technology by sponsoring the first in a series of three interactive video education programs for Maryland veterinarians. The programs are co-sponsored by the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine and the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association and funded by a $2,500 grant from the University of Maryland System (UMS).

The Interactive Teleconference Series on Veterinary Radiology is being transmitted via the System's Interactive Video Network (IVN), a component of the University of Maryland Academic Telecommunications System (UMATS). IVN is a computer-driven, videoconferencing system that makes possible two-way audio and video communication among multiple sites in Maryland. UMS has 16 IVN sites on-line, with another 3 being installed. An additional four sites are on-line at various community colleges and three more are planned.

Each site contains a video monitor, a tablet-like keyboard, and three voice-activated cameras. The equipment allows individuals at each site to talk to each other, show videotapes, slides, radiographs and other visual materials, and to access the Internet as necessary.

"This is truly an interactive technology," said Richard Rose, UMS director for telecommunication systems. "Unlike the more familiar teleconferences that involve one-way video with two-way audio at some sites, IVN allows participants at all connected sites to see and be seen by each other and to share a variety of visual materials. And thanks to the cooperation between the University of Maryland System and Maryland's community colleges, the education potential is enormous."

The first veterinary program drew more than 90 veterinarians—80 of whom are registered for all three programs—to eight linked IVN sites. There, they participated in a hospital rounds-type program led by two veterinary radiologists. The radiologists reviewed several radiographs of the abdomen and thorax of several animals, explaining how the images could be used to guide diagnosis and treatment decisions. They then responded to questions from participants at different sites.

The other programs—on May 25 and June 22—will focus on radiology of the thoracic cavity and the musculoskeletal system. The radiologists will discuss case histories presented by selected practitioners from different sites. Participants will determine a diagnosis for each case and the presenters will discuss treatment and outcomes.

The interactive video approach to education offers several benefits, according to Dr. Douglas Carmel, associate professor and extension livestock veterinarian, who wrote the grant proposal and organized the programs.

"It breaks down geographic barriers by bringing together people from different areas of the state," he said. "It also allows participants to accumulate continuing education credits without traveling great distances or spending valuable time away from their practices."

Feedback from presenters and participants in the first program was positive. "It's a very handy technology, especially for people who live and work a considerable distance from Washington, D.C. and Baltimore who may not be able to attend many continuing education seminars," said radiologist Dr. Kristina Schwensen of Gaithersburg, who presented part of the program from the Shady Grove site. "The presentation of radiographs worked as well as slides."

Dr. Edward Jendrek, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association, was even more enthusiastic. "It was great!" he exclaimed after attending the seminar at the Towson State University site. "This technology is the wave of the future. I've been a practitioner in the Baltimore area for 22 years, and I've never seen anything like it. It puts veterinary medicine on the cutting edge."

Coverts Training Project Planned

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Woodland owners, managers, and others interested in forest and wildlife management can apply to attend a free training workshop on October 6-9 at the Shepherd's Spring retreat and conference center near Sharpsburg in Washington County.

The workshop is part of an ongoing outreach and training program called the Coverts Project, which is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service—University of Maryland at College Park and the Ruffed Grouse Society.

The project gets its name from thickets that provide a sheltered habitat for wildlife.

Thirty individuals will be chosen for this year's Coverts workshop, which focuses on general forestry and wildlife management principles. The workshop demonstrates how good forest management can make wildlife more abundant, healthy and diverse.

In return for free training, reference materials and followup seminars, the participants — dubbed "Coverts Cooperators" — will be asked to establish a sound forest and wildlife management plan for their own property, as well as share what they have learned with others through a variety of outreach programs.

If you are interested in learning more about becoming a Coverts Cooperator, contact Jonathan Kays, western Maryland Research & Education Center, 18330 Keedysville Rd., Keedysville, MD 21756, (301) 432-2735; Robert Tjaden, Wye Research & Education Center, P.O. Box 169, Queenstown, MD 21658, (410) 827-8056; or your local cooperative extension service office. Applications for the August workshop will be accepted until June 25.

Ficklin Grain Carts

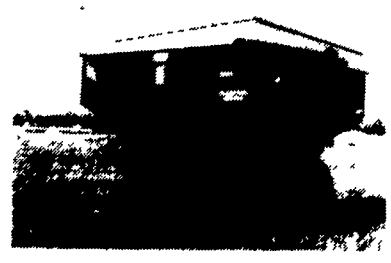
SAVE TIME - SAVE MONEY

The large capacity FICKLIN GRAIN CART allows you to load on the go, to keep your combine running. Sizes range from 470 bu. to a whopping 600+ bu. can be augered out in approximately 3-4 minutes.

Big 12-inch 12 ga. tube with 1/4-inch double flight screw folds hydraulically close to grain cart. This front-fold auger, with a spring loaded bearing to assure auger alignment, can easily be seen by operator from tractor and requires less shed room.



3,340 pounds of the loaded weight is transferred to the tractor tires. The remainder of the weight is carried by big 18.4x26 10-ply tires to reduce solid compaction. The FICKLIN GRAIN CART comes with a 1,000 P T.O. and can be used with a 540 R.P M tractor by using an adapter.

Carts available in orange, green or red.

Woman Pioneers Raising Beef For '90s Market

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

STRASBURG (Lancaster Co.) — When Luann married Don Brubaker, a poultry and pig farmer, she quit her office job with the intention of having her own farm project.

She considered several options. The thought of raising pigs brought a nose wrinkle. Chickens were OK when it came to helping her husband, but it wasn't what she had in mind for a project she could call her own.

Luann, who grew up on a Blair County dairy farm, had a special affinity for calves so when she heard about a carefully monitored program that results in producing tender, lean beef, she quickly became enthusiastic. She is now one of Lancaster County's pioneers in a new breed of cattle raising to fulfill consumer demands for low-fat meat.

Luann raises about 350 head of Holstein bull calves annually for Tend-R-Leen Beef. The simple grain and pellet feeding program has no-roughage and results in beef that is lower in calories but has the same tenderness and eating quality of ordinary beef.

Luann said, "The concept is to have a genetic beef breed that is consistent in taste and appearance with no fat and lots of flavor."

This type of program was used in the midwest as early as the 1930s, but only recently has been introduced by Pennfield Feeds in this county. The Brubakers researched the pros and cons for about six months before deciding to invest in the project.

"I love doing this. The calves are just like children. All have their own personalities, some are easy to handle, others stubborn and difficult, but they are so personable and want attention," she said.

The calves chew on her clothes, nuzzle her, and follow her around.

"They think I'm their mother," Luann said as one of the calves attempted to crawl into her lap.

Calves are bottlefed at 6 a.m. and again in late afternoon. Weaned calves are fed a corn and pellet diet, which is made from the corn Brubaker raises and mixes with the purchased pellets. Luann uses a golf cart to transport the milk and the feed to the hutches and the feeding lot.

When things go smoothly, it takes two to three hours for morning feedings and about 1½ for afternoon feeding. There is always the unexpected. A calf with scours, blizzard-like conditions, respiratory problems, or a calf that refuses to be weaned. Nonetheless, it has been Luann's experience that bull calves are much easier to wean than heifers. And the calves have good appetites with an average daily weight gain of 2.9 percent.

The Certified Tend-R-Leen is a U.S. Patented Program and requires that all animals sold as Tend-R-Leen must follow stringent requirements.

Calves must receive four quarts of colostrum within 12 hours of birth.

Calves must wear an ear tag and a health feeding card is kept to enter in a computer tracking program that follows through to marketing.

Bulls must be castrated, dehorned, and vaccinated before four weeks of age. Luann holds the calves and her husband does the cutting and the shot giving.

The Brubakers have a contract with Robert Rohrer, who operates a 700-head dairy in Washington Boro, to purchase all bull calves, crossbreeds, and twin offspring. The program, which is closely monitored, requires that only Holstein bulls can be used. Therefore, the cross breeds and twin heifers are sold elsewhere when they reach 200 pounds.

"I can't ask for better people to work with than the Rohrers," Brubaker said. "They always cooperate with the colostrum feedings and we pick up from three to 15 calves weekly.

Luann raises the bulls to they reach about 350 pounds or at four months, when they are sold to a Mt. Joy farmer for finishing.

Although the calves are Louann's project, Brubaker lends a helping hand and was instrumental in preparing the operation.

He built two rows of hutches so that the newborn calves can be raised separately until they are weaned. Weaning averages 35 to 40 days.

Then, they are transferred to a super hutch, which Brubaker also built. It holds 16 head. Later, the animals are moved to a feedlot.

Ideally the pens should not need to be cleaned out but are designed to dry out. However, the pens are often refilled within the day, which requires Brubaker to clean out the pens.

The operation has about 4 percent fatalities at this point, but that was due to the extremely cold winter.

Don and Luann Brubaker stand in front of one of the super hutches where calves are transferred after weaning. Luann oversees the largest county operation of calves being raised to market under the Tend-R-Leen label, which uses Holstein bull calves that are strictly monitored and fed to produce lean and consistent top quality beef.

Although the Brubaker farm has only 28 acres with 90,000 chickens that produce 700 ton of manure annually, it was easy to receive township approval for the calf expansion to 450 head. Manure from the chickens is sold to a local mushroom processing plant that hauls it out about six times a year.

At this point, the Brubakers have the largest starting operation in the county for the Tend-R-Leen program. They have a buyer for every calf that they raise and another buyer waiting in the wings if the first one should renege.

"Raising the calves is not physically hard work, but it takes patience and not everyone wants to do it," Luann said.

Some dairy men who raise their own replacements are experimenting with putting their bull calves on the Tend-R-Leen plan, as it offers an opportunity to make another one or two hundred dollars per head. But most farmers prefer to sell the bull calves rather than take the time required to closely monitor them and to followed the restrictive feeding program.

Although Brubaker refers to the calves as "Luann's project" he grudgingly concedes that he has fallen in love with the calves as much as his wife has.

This was a surprise to him, because Brubaker's mindset was whole hog on raising pigs, which he did for many years.

Although he grew up on a chicken farm and enjoyed it, when he graduated as the top ag student from Lampeter-Strasburg High School, there wasn't room on the family farm for him. He started working in Pennfield's hog barn and later became assistant manager of the hog operation for Keener Enterprise.

When his father died in 1989, Brubaker returned to help his mother Miriam with the poultry operation.

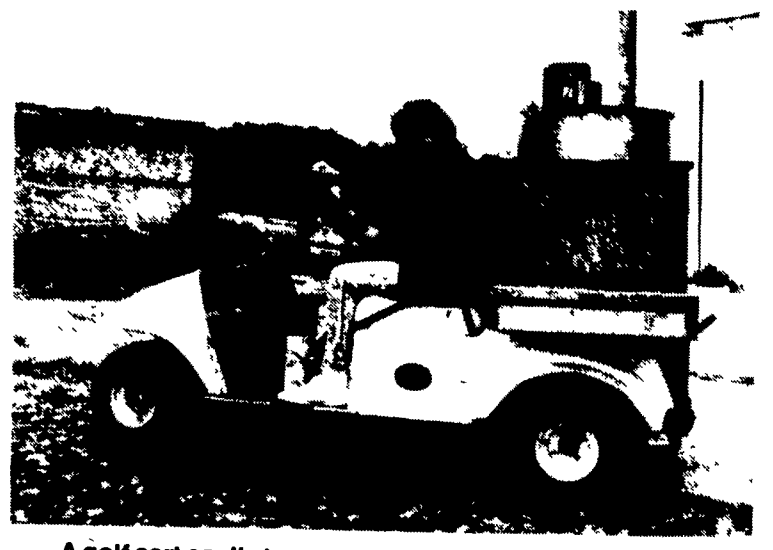
"It was a really tough decision to give up working with pigs, but one that I don't regret," he said.

After updating the existing three chicken houses and adding a fourth one to raise 90,000 broilers, Brubaker purchased the farm from his mother.

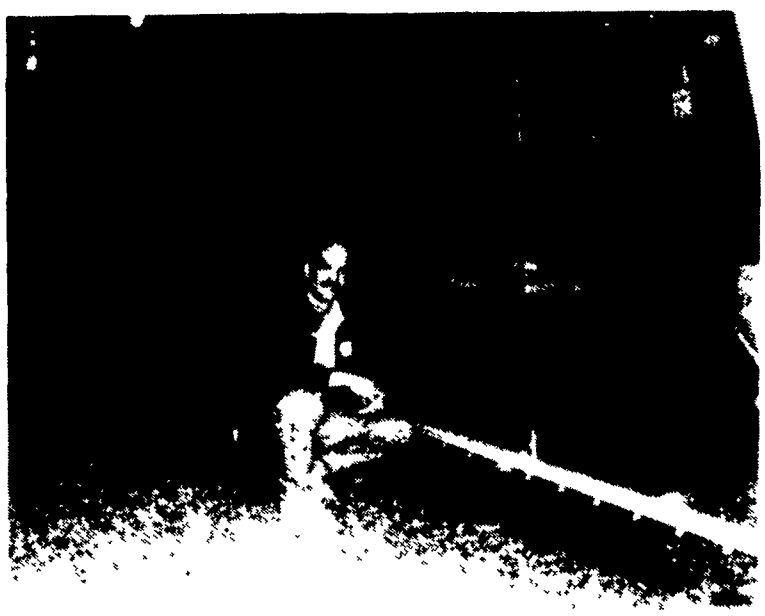
"I'm really thankful for my mother and for my brothers and sisters who were willing to let me buy the farm cheaper (than market price) so that I could farm," Brubaker said.

(Turn to Page B3)

"These coats saved many a calf," Luann said of the coats she had made to protect calves from cold weather.



A golf cart easily transport the milk and the feed for morning and afternoon feeding of the calves being raised to market under the Tend-R-Leen label.



Does this say anything about technology? Don said that after nine major renovations of two of the chicken houses, the last house he built has round feeders, dirt floor, and curtain sides just like the previous ones had when he was growing up on the farm. Don now has 90,000 broilers on his Strasburg farm.

Homestead Notes

Woman Pioneers

Since Brubaker's parents purchased the farm in 1952, it has undergone many changes.

"We have done nine major renovations on the first two chicken houses," he said. "The first chicken house was built with round feeders, dirt floor, and curtain sides. Over the years we changed that to adapt to new technology. The last house we built again had round feeders, a dirt floor, and curtain sides. Does that tell you anything about technology?"

The chickens are under a 10-year contract with Pennfield.

Although the calves are raised independently, it is with the agreement that Pennfield will pay at least $1 per pound and will take care of advertising and selling the beef.

According to the Brubakers, the positive side of raising chickens is that it allows the family vacation time during replacement time. Raising calves is different as it requires year-round work. Luann hopes she can find a person who will work with her a few weeks and then be able to handle it for a few days independently.

"We want to find someone like ourselves who is good and dependable," Brubaker said.

Although the Brubakers had carefully researched the project before they invested in it, the project has not been without surpises.

"Time-wise it takes more of a commitment than she anticipated. Each season brings new challenges," Luann said. "In the winter, it was the snow, then it was mud and spring respiratory illness, and now it's flies."

She admits that if she had known all the obstacles before she began, she probably would not have done it. Nonetheless, she said, "I'm glad that I didn't know all the drawbacks, because I absolutely love caring for them. They are just like children."

While some people have the preconceived impression that bulls are nasty, Luann said that she finds the furry, playful bull calves are more personable and easier to care for than heifer calves.

When the couple are not working on the farm, they are involved in church and agriculture-related activites. Brubaker is vice president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association. Both he and his wife are active at Refton Brethren In Christ Church. He teaches Pioneer Club. She is a choir member, sings solos, and is president of the Women's Ministries.

Both enjoy photography, hiking, and the outdoors. Luann gardens and preserves produce and dabbles in painting still life pictures.

In a 1979 newspaper article on Brubaker, who was then Lancaster County FFA president and recipient of several awards and a Burroughs Scholar for being the top ag student in his class, was quoted as saying, "I really love farming. I wouldn't be happy doing anything else."

For Brubaker that philosophy hasn't changed. His wife shares his viewpoint.

She said, "I love doing this even if it is a lot more work than we anticipated."

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Many Americans are interested in shaking the salt habit. In the past, salt was used primarily as a food preservative. Today, it is still used as a preservative in cured meats and brined vegetables. However, its main function in many recipes is for flavor alone.

When salt is reduced or eliminated from recipes, alternate ways of enhancing flavors will probably be needed to improve product acceptability. (Be careful about reducing salt in yeast bread recipes. Salt helps to slow down the action of the yeast. Without salt, bread will rise faster and have a coarser texture. If you wish to reduce salt in yeast bread, cut the amount in half and expect a quicker rising time.)

As people learn to use smaller amounts of salt they discover the seasoning value of spices and herbs. Spices, in contrast to the mineral, salt, are aromatic vegetable products used either whole or ground (for example, pepper or nutmeg). Herbs are plants or plant parts used either fresh or dried.

Most herbs and spices do not contain sodium. (Sodium is the part of salt that most people are interested in avoiding.) The flavors that come from the herbs and spices make it easier to eliminate salt entirely from cooking. At first it is wise to use herbs and spices sparingly because a little goes a long way. However, if fresh rather than dried hergs are to be used, use twice the amount in order to get full-flavor development. Other flavoring substances, such as black pepper, onion, green pepper, lemon juice and vinegar will also enhance the goodness of food without the presence of salt.

There are not strict limits to the use of herbs and spices. A good general rule is not to mix two very strong herbs together. Rather, one strong and one or more of a milder flavor create the most harmonious blends. STRONG flavors include: bay, cardamon, curry powder, ginger, hot peppers, mustard, pepper (black), garlic, rosemary and sage. MEDIUM flavors include: basil, celery seed and leaves, cumin, dill, fennel, French tarragon, marjoram, mint, oregano, savory (winter and summer0, thyme and tumeric. DELICATE flavors include: burnet (plants in the rose family, chervil, chives and parsley.

Other ideas for reducing sodium include:

— Substitute unsalted chicken or beef broth for bouillon cubes in recipes.

— Use unsalted or low sodium tomato juice, paste or sauce in place of regular tomato products. Season with herbs.

— Make your own "low sodium" white sauce to replace canned cream soups in casserole recipes. Your white sauce can be flavored with a variety of herbs or spices, depending on the other ingredients in the recipe.

— Try using low sodium soy sauce, or cutting the amount of soy sauce in half in a recipe.

Another tool is to keep an herb shaker handy instead of a salt shaker. To make your own herb shaker, use the following recipe:

Herb Shaker

½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 tablespoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon each of the following ground seasonigs: basil, thyme, marjoram, savory, mace, sage, black pepper, onion powder.

Salt Substitue

1 teasoon chili powder
2 teaspoons ground oregano
2 teaspoons black pepper
1 tablespoon garlic powder (not garlic salt)
2 tablespoons dry mustard,
6 tablespoons onion powder (not onion salt)
3 tablespoons paprika
3 tablespoons poultry seasoning

Mix all seasonings together and put in your salt shaker.

One final reminder about seasonings. Flavored salts such as onion salt, garlic salt and celery salt can be replaced by onion or garlic powder, and celery seeds or flakes. Usually, slightly less powder than salt can be used and still keep the desired flavors.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

All was peaceful. Quiet.

Mist hung over the meadow, while the sun began threading its way through broken clouds. Sky reflections on the pond were stirred only by the passage of our Canada geese couple and their six, pudgy goslings.

A chorus of robins, sparrows, blackbirds poured from the thick cover of maple leaves overhead, accompanied by the solo squawkings of one loud, but off-key bluejay. And the baby squirrels raced up and down one large tree trunk, like so many kittens chasing each other about.

Amazing, this quiet and peacefulness. Not a single four-legged, black-and-white body romping around anywhere outside the fences.

Truly amazing. Because this spring, we have encountered a rampant, epidemic case of heifer escapeeism. Led by what The Farmer calls The Gang. The Gang is a pack of about 15 good-sized, bred heifers, whose bloodlines somewhere picked up the escape abilities of a weasel.

One evening a few weeks ago, I glanced at the alfalfa stand on the southeast horizon and found it dotted with grazing bodies. They've been turning up there on a regular basis ever since. Even that wouldn't be so bad, if they stayed there in the alfalfa and grazed. But after sneaking out a few times when there was no one immediately available to counter the attack, they discovered the silage bag packed with high-moisture corn grain.

Soon, The Gang slipped out to make a beeline for the bag every chance they got. Then they would wander around the yard, examine the garden, visit their relatives at the dairy barn and trash the nursery alleyway while they sampled calf grain. and that was when they weren't messing around the neighbor's yard and garden on the opposite side of the meadow.

This got old fast. Real old. Real fast.

Key problem is the two cattle guards installed where the field equipment road enters and exits the meadow pasture. The cattle guard excavations, dug the width of the road and bridged with a series of heavy steel bars with open spaces between, are nearly two feet deep. Theoretically, equipment can be driven over the bridge, while the gaps between the bars keep the cattle from crossing it, because their feet slide through.

Theoretically, I said.

Over the years, the excavations had filled somewhat with ground and manure, deposited bit-by-bit by hundrerds of passes over the bridges by equipment and manure-truck tires. After the first few busy-body heifers discovered they could tiptoe through the bars of the guard closest to the farmstead and step through to nowshallow hole beneath, it took only a day or two for the rest to perfect the trick.

The Farmer re-dug the excavation in the more shallow of the two crossings. Which barely halted the worst of the offenders, who banged, bruised and bloodied their legs while scrambling between bars now spanning a deepened hole. Fencing would have been the answer — but the cattle guards had to remain open to accommodate the last of our seasonal, dawn-to-dark manure hauling.

Thoroughly irritated, The Farmer proceeded to dig the second crossing even deeper, after cutting out bars to widen the gaps on the first one. It worked. For about a day.

The Gang is out-persisting him. They're now taking a running start, and making flying leaps across the bars - laughing the whole way, for sure.

Genetic engineering just introduced to society a new, improved, long-lasting tomato.

Clearfield Plans Dairy Pageant

CURWENSVILLE (Clearfield Co.) — The 26th Annual Clearfield County Dairy Princess program will be held June 25th at the Curwensville Civic Center. The evening will begin with a dinner at 7:30 p.m. followed by the ceremonies.

There will be a Dairy Maid crowning for those girls 9, 10 and 11 years of age as of June 1. They must live on a dairy farm, father work on a dairy farm or be a member of a 4-H dairy club. The girls must write an essay on one dairy product (250 words) and a paragraph on why they would like to be a dairy maid. They are to be mailed to Mary Ann Way, RR 4, Box 80, Clearfield, PA 16830 by June 20.

Any girl who is 16 and not over 24 years of age is eligible to compete in the Dairy Princess Contest. Qualifications are to be the daughter of a dairy farmer, a farm manager or herdsman, or someone employed in a dairy related industry. She may also be employed herself as one of the above or owner of two dairy animals in a 4-H and/or FFA project.

The 1993 Dairy Princess, Rebecca Glass kept busy this past year. She is working on school programs, has been in parades, and passed out ribbons at the county fair and 4-H show. Becky with WQYX Radio and Allied Milk Producers gave away ice cream parties to area businesses. She spoke at the Cooperative Extension Banquet and the Clearfield Women's Club. Becky was assisted with the promotions by Dairy Maid, Laura Sankey.

Make reservations along with $4 for each meal ticket to Mary Ann Way, RR 4, Box 80, Clearfield, PA 16830.

Search For Tioga Dairy Princess

COVINGTON (Tioga Co.) — For Tioga County Dairy Princess Rebecca Bechtel, holding the title of Dairy Princess was a very "rewarding experience."

"I can't believe the year's coming to an end already," said Bechtel. "It seems like only yesterday that I was preparing for my county pageant. As I look back on the year, it's filled with many exciting and busy times from my Dairy Princess experience. From my trips to Harrisburg to Penn State to Gettysburg and back to Tioga County, I feel I've covered a lot of the state."

Throughout her reign, Ms. Bechtel rode in parades, attended seminars, meetings and conducted school promotions.

"I think being the Tioga Country Dairy Princess has helped me grow into a more responsible person. I hope to see more girls competing this year because it's a real rewarding experience," said Ms. Bechtel.

Now as her reign comes to a close, the search begins for a new princess.

This year's Tioga County Dairy Princess Pageant has been set for Monday, June 27 at the First Methodist Church of Mansfield, at 7:30 p.m.

All young women between the ages of 16 and 24, who have a farm background or who are engaged in a dairy related industry, are eligible to compete for the title of Dairy Princess. In addition, contestants must be single and never married, have had no children and must not marry during her reign. She must also present a wholesome, healthy appearance.

All contestants must five either a speech or a skit. The winner and a first alternate will receive cash awards and will attend the dairy princess training seminar at Lycoming College, July 5-8.

Girls between the ages of 13 adn 16 can become a Tioga County Dairy Maid. A Dairy Maid promotes milk and dairy products at various functions throughout the year with the Dairy Princess and her court.

Dairy Princess and Dairy Maid applications are available at the Tioga County Extension office or can be obtained from Bonne Baker by calling (717) 549-7931. Applications should be returned to Bonnie Baker by June 13. Please send them to Ms. Baker at RR 1 Box 74, Covington, PA 16917.

Avoiding the Rent-to-own Temptation

When's the last time you said, "I want it now. I don't want to wait."

Kids say that all the time, don't they? Well, sometimes I find myself saying it, too. I want a new linoleum floor in the kitchen NOW. I want the lawn to be weed-free NOW. Waiting is difficult, and our culture does little to encourage the practice of saving. Instead it tends to promote the buy now-pay later strategy. Instant gratification is quite popular.

For some families, the desire ends up taking them to rent-to-own store. It may be the only option they see that stereo or refrigerator or bedroom suite now. The stores do everything they can to attack buyers — "No money down. No credit check. Free repairs."

How tempting! The family with little savings and lots of bills may be very interested in this kind of offer!

But this kind of offer can lead a family down the path to financial disaster. For example, a $299 TV from a retail store could end up costing a family as much as $850 when purchased at a rent-to-own shop and paid for a bit at a time. And the situation could become worse if the family misses even one payment. In most cases the store can immediately repossess the item if a payment is missed. And usually any previously paid money is forfeited.

If you find yourself being tempted to give in to the rent-to-own temptation (or if a member of your family purchases items from these stores), remember:

✔ The desired item can probably be purchased at a discount retail store for much less.

✔ There may be no grace period if a payment is missed.

✔ You are responsible to pay the fair market price if the item is lost, stolen, damaged or destroyed.

When you're tempted to buy now and pay later, I suggest two principles to follow. First, read the fine print on any purchase contact that is presented to you. This is true for any purchase not just one at a rent-to-own store. Don't allow the salesperson to rush you into a hasty decision. Ask questions like:

Are there any other charges — delivery, renewal fees, taxes?

Can I get only the item I NEED, or do I have to buy the set as packaged/displayed?

How will I get a receipt if I do not make payments in person?

How much will my total cost end up being including taxes?

This will help you get the full picture about the purchase. If you find that clerks are hesitant to give information or seem impatient, reconsider making the purchase.

The second principle I would suggest is to shop around before spending hard-earned money. Check newspaper sales circulars, want ads, browse around sales floors and make notes on a piece of scrap paper. The notes will help you to remember where the best deal was. Before shopping, discuss with your family the highest amount of money you are willing to send to get the product. These suggestions will help you avoid the rent-to-own temptation.

Make Tax Filing Easier

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Was filing your income tax return this year especially frustrating? Did gathering information to compile your net income seem an endless task?

Keeping organized financial records can help spare you this anxiety, says Dr. Marilyn Furry, assistant professor of agricultural and extension education in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Good record keeping also can help you improve your financial situation," says Furry. "Accurate records are useful when considering major purchases, savings plans, loans, investments and other financial decisions."

Creating an efficient filing system is the first step in improving your record keeping. "The filing system doesn't have to be elaborate or costly," says Furry. "Clearly labeled folders, envelopes or boxes will do the trick."

Your financial files should include account books, bank statements, a list of tax-deductible expenses, canceled checks, previous tax returns, credit transactions, and receipts and receipted bills.

"It's also helpful to file related materials, such as safe-deposit box numbers; keys and list of contents; health, education and employment records; credit card numbers; warranties; and copies of wills with letters of instruction," Furry says.

Be sure everyone in the family is acquainted with the files. "Someone may need to get information in a hurry if there is an accident or crisis," Furry says.

Some financial records are difficult to replace and should be kept in a safe-deposit box. These include automobile titles and bills of sale, government and corporate securities, and mortgage and real estate papers. Items such as birth certificates, original wills, and marriage and divorce records also should be kept in a safe-deposit box.

"When your records are in order, you always have your financial picture at your fingertips," says Furry. "You'll be better prepared when tax time arrives next year."

Two meals in one make grilling more fun — and midweek meals less hassle! Sesame-Ginger Grilled Sirloin stars in a steak dinner the first night and later, in a main dish salad.

GRILL ONCE AND ENJOY IT TWICE!

When you fire up the grill, make it work double-time for you. Cook once and make two meals!

Call it a dividend or a bonus, but cooking once for two meals is a smart thing to do. Think beyond leftovers — make a completely different second meal. For example, grill a sirloin steak; serve half of it the first night. A night or two later use the remainder in a salad or sandwich.

That's easy to do with Sesame-Ginger Grilled Sirloin. A reserved portion of the ginger-sesame-soy sauce marinade for the beef also doubles as a salad dressing for the second meal. Here's how it works.

Meal #1: Marinade a beef top sirloin steak, then grill with bell peppers. Reserve half of the grilled steak and peppers to use in the salad; serve the remaining steak and peppers.

Meal #2: Cut the reserved beef and peppers into strips, toss with the reserved dressing, pea pods and cooked vermicelli. In 20 minutes, dinner is served.

Because sirloin is a tender beef cut, it only needs to marinate 15 minutes to take on the flavor of the marinade. Marinating should always be done in the refrigerator. (Tip: A heavy-duty plastic food-safe bag is ideal for marinating.)

SESAME-GINGER GRILLED SIRLOIN

Total preparation and cooking time: 45 minutes
Marinating time: 15 minutes

2-pound boneless beef top sirloin steak, cut 1½ inches thick
4 red or yellow bell peppers, each cut lengthwise in half

Sesame Dressing:

3 tablespoons soy sauce
3 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon dark sesame oil
2 teaspoons grated fresh ginger or ½ teaspoon ground ginger
2 cloves garlic, crushed

In small bowl, whisk together dressing ingredients. Reserve ⅓ cup for Spicy Sesame Beef & Noodles; cover and refrigerate.

Trim fat from beef steak. Place steak and remaining dressing in plastic bag; turn to coat. Close bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 15 minutes, turning once.

Remove steak from marinade; discard marinade. Place steak and bell peppers on grid over medium coals. Grill 25 to 30 minutes until steak is medium-rare to medium doneness and bell peppers are tender, turning steak and bell peppers once. For Spicy Sesame Beef & Noodles, reserve ½ of cooked steak (12 ounces) and ½ of grilled peppers (4 halves). Carve remaining steak into slices; serve with remaining peppers. Makes 4 servings (serving size: ¼ of recipe).

Nutritional information per serving: 193 Calories; 26 g protein; 7 g fat; 4 g carbohydrate; 3.1 mg iron; 250 mg sodium; 76 mg cholesterol.

Cook's Tip: To check the temperature of the coals, cautiously hold your hand, palm side down, at cooking height (just above the grid). Count the number of seconds you can hold your hand in that position before the heat is uncomfortable and you have to pull it away: 4 seconds for medium coals.

SPICY SESAME BEEF & NOODLES

Preparation time: 20 minutes

12 ounces cooked beef steak from Sesame-Ginger Grilled Sirloin
4 ounces uncooked vermicelli or thin spaghetti
4 grilled pepper halves (reserved from Sesame-Ginger Grilled Sirloin)
½ (6-ounce) package frozen pea pods, defrosted
⅓ cup Sesame Dressing (reserved from Sesame-Ginger Grilled Sirloin)
¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1 teaspooon dark sesame oil
2 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro

1. Cook vermicelli according to package directions.

2. Meanwhile carve beef steak into thin slices. Cut peppers into thin strips. In medium bowl, combine beef, peppers and pea pods. Add dressing and pepper sauce; toss to coat.

3. In large bowl, combine vermicelli and sesame oil; toss to coat. Add beef mixture and cilantro; mix lightly. Makes 4 servings (serving size: 1¼ cups).

GAZPACHO SALAD

Salad:

4 tomatoes, seeded, diced
2 cucumbers, peeled, diced
2 green peppers, seeded, diced
1 medium onion, diced
1 can sliced ripe olives, drained
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Dressing:

½ cup olive. oil
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon parsley, fresh
2 garlic cloves, minced
2 teapsoons chopped green onions
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

In a glass jar or bowl; layer salad ingredients one-third at a time until all are used. Combine dressing and pour over vegetables.

Cover and chill for several hours or overnight.

LAMB CHOPS JALAPENO

(Serves 4)

4 American lamb shoulder chops, (1-1½ lbs.), 1-inch thick, round bone or blade*
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
½ teaspoon ground pepper
1 can (8 ounces) crushed pineapple, in its own juice
½ cup jalapeno jelly
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
*Leg or sirloin steaks can be substituted for chops.

Sprinkle lamb chops with seasoned salt and pepper. Grill lamb chops over moderate heat or broil 4 inches from heat source, 8 to 10 minutes on each side.

While lamb is cooking, combine remaining ingredients in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring until jelly is melted. Remove from heat.

Spoon jalapeno sauce over lamb chops or steaks for the last 5 minutes of cooking. Watch carefully to prevent burning.

Last Chance To Send Recipe For June Dairy Month Extravaganza

In a salute to dairy farmers, Lancaster Farming wants to show our readers how versatile and great tasting dairy products are when used in appetizers, dips, soups, breads, main dishes, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

Every person who jots down a favorite recipe using dairy products and sends it to us will receive a packet of 25 decorative recipe cards and a note pad.

Please send your recipe using a sizable quantity of at least one of the following ingredients: milk, cream, sour cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, ice cream, cottage cheese, ricotta cheese, cream cheese or any hard or soft cheese.

Print or type your recipe and be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, times, and sizes of baking dishes to use. Be sure to print your name, full address, and phone number on the recipe. Please include a few paragraphs about yourself or your family. Although it is not required, we'd like a picture of you or your family to include with the recipe when it is printed. Photos will be returned if you mark your name and address on the back of the photo.

All recipes submitted will be printed during the month of June. This is a popular annual event for our readers who enjoy the recipes and reading tidbits of information about the person who submits the recipe.

Send your recipe and accompanying information and photo to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Recipe Extravaganza, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St., Ephrata, PA 17522.

One recipe for family, please. Send it immediately. Recipes will be accepted through June 4.

Featured Recipe

Dinosaurs are "in" and it's easy to find dinosaur cookie cutters, but these cookies will taste just as good in any shape. You will be pleasantly surprised with this recipe because it adjusts to your schedule. You might mix the ingredients and refrigerate the dough one day; cut and bake the next day (be sure to let dough soften at room temperature before rolling out.

Dinosaur Cookies
Yield: 12 - 20 dinosaurs

½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup butter (1 stick), softened
½ cup peanut butter
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
1 cup all purpose flour
½ cup whole wheat flour
¾ teaspoon baking powder*
¼ teaspoon salt*
½ cup chocolate chips

You can use self-rising flour instead of all purpose; omit baking powder & salt.

Directions: In large mixing bowl, beat sugars and butter until light and fluffy. Add peanut butter, vanilla and egg; mix until smoothy. Combine flours, baking powder and salt in small bowl. Gradually add flour mixture to sugar mixture until well blended.

Refrigerate dough from 1 to 24 hours — depending on your schedule.

Roll one-half of dough on lightly floured board to ¼ -inch thick. If it is sticky, put some flour on your hands. Cut with 3 to 5 inch dinosaur cookie cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Add chocolate chips, laying them sideways around the back and down the tail of cookie and one for the eye. Repeat with remaining dough. Bake in preheated 350° F oven for 12 to 18 minutes or until golden brown. Cool slightly before removing to wire racks to cool completely.

Note: When refrigerating dough, cover with plastic wrap and drape with a dish towel. Let the dough soften again before rolling out.

Measuring Flour: Flour does not have to be sifted if lightly stirred and spooned into a dry measuring cup. Fill the cup, then level it off with a straight edge (knife or spatula). When measuring dry ingredients with a spoon, level off the same way.

You Ask ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? You Answer

In response to readers' questions, this column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for the answers. In the past, many readers sent non-cooking requests to Cook's Question Corner, a cooking column on page B 8.

"You Ask — You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. The concept is the same: When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper.. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask — You Answer, Lou Ann Good, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

QUESTION — A. Nolt of New Holland would like to know the words to the complete poem that was recited in the 1920s when her father-in-law went to school. The poem contains these lines: The carpenter's house is falling down. The preacher's kids are the worse in town.... Since this request appeared, Theresa Litecky, Eastampton, N.J., and several others have written to say they remember parts of this poem and can hardly wait to see the complete poem. Any readers who remember the complete poem, please send it immediately.

QUESTION — Marie Lorah, Box 299 R.D. 3, Tamaqua, Pa. 18252, is looking for water glasses with pictures of owls on them.

QUESTION — Romaine B. Answell, Sumerdale, would like to know who manufactured the Webalco electric skillet.

QUESTION — A reader would like to know how to keep bees away when holding outdoor picnics.

QUESTION — Barbara Davis, Sewell, N.J., would like to know where to purchase the old Parker Brothers card game called "Touring."

QUESTION — Judi Spurling of Limerick would like to know where to purchase a sturdy quality bent willow or twig settee for use in an outside country flower garden.

QUESTION — G. Depew, Mifflintown, wants to know where to buy signs to erect along the highway to alert motorists of tractors and farm machinery crossing the highway.

QUESTION — Dawn Lesher, Pitman, would like to know how to discourage birds from building nests in hanging basket plants.

QUESTION — Marie Loy of Pine Grove would like to know how to keep rabbits from eating garden plants. Also, voles have eaten all the tulip bulbs in her garden. How does she get rid of voles, which make holes in the ground not ridges as moles do?

ANSWER — Robin O'Brien, Reading, wanted to know some economical cleaning solutions to be used on everything from cleaning wooden floors to fiberglass tubs. Sarah Clark, Breezewood, writes that a good all-purpose cleaner is Try-It and Olde Masters Wood Cleaner, which can be purchased from a Stanley Product dealer.

Family Day At Longwood Garden

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — A day of family fun is in store at Longwood Gardens, Kennett Square, on Saturday, May 28, when the 1994 Festival of Fountains opens 18 weeks of concerts, fountain displays, flower shows and fireworks in exquisite garden settings.

The evening fun begins at 7 p.m. when Al Grout takes to the Open Air Theatre stage with his fast-paced original comedy and juggling routines with lots of audience participation. At 7:30 p.m., a memorable musical experience is in store for all ages when Utah's Dutton Family, mom, dad, and six brothers and sisters (ages 13-22), bring their special blend of country, folk, classical, and toe-tapping bluegrass music to the Gardens. This wholesome family of accomplished, versatile musicians sing, dance, and play banjo, mandolin, guitar, violin, viola, cello, bass and keyboards. All of the children are fiddling champions. In celebration of its 50th anniversary, the United Nations has proclaimed 1994 as "The International Year of the Family," and the Dutton Family was selected by the U.N. to record and perform its theme song in honor of the event. The United Nations global celebration involves 34 organizations and agencies within its system to pay tribute to families all over the world as the basic unit of societies.

Seating for 2080 is on a first-come basis in Longwood's historic Open Air Theatre. A half-hour illuminated fountain show in the Main Fountain Garden tops off the day at 9:15 p.m. All events are included in the regular Gardens admission of $10 for adults ($6 on Tuesdays), $6 for ages 16-20, $2 for ages 6-15, and free under age 6.

Longwood Gardens is located on US Route 1, three miles northeast of Kennett Square, PA, 30 miles west of Philadelphia, and 12 miles north of Wilmington, DE, in the historic Brandywine Valley.

For further information, call 610-388-6741.

QUESTION — A reader from Morgantown would like a recipe for spaghetti sauce that tastes like the Ragu brand.

QUESTION — R. Wenger, Dayton, Va., wants some cheese ball recipes.

QUESTION — Lavenia Campbell, Benton, is searching for a dill pickle recipe using an open crock method. The pickles are packed into an open crock, covered with liquid, and kept in a cool place to be used one at a time as needed.

QUESTION — Robin Svec, White Hall, Md., is searching for jam and preserve recipes similar to Polaner's All Fruit, which is sweetened only with fruit juice concentrate.

QUESTION — Christine Martin, New Bethlehem, would like a recipe for vegetable pizza in which the dough can be made from scratch instead of using refrigerated crescent rolls for the base.

ANSWER — M. Sauder, Mohnton, asked if anyone had a recipe for waffle cones. Thanks to Harvey Martin, Denver, for sending a recipe.

Super Ice Cream Cones

2 teaspoons baking powder
1¾ cup all-purpose flour
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup butter, melted
¼ cup milk
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
3 eggs

Preheat electric pizzelle iron as manufacturer directs. Into large bowl, measure flour, sugar, butter, milk, vanilla, baking powder, and eggs. With electric mixer at low speed, beat until well blended, occasionally scraping bowl with rubber spatula. Spoon about 1 tablespoon batter into center of each grid. Close cover and squeeze handles together to spread batter; clip handles together while pizzelles bake, about 30 seconds or until golden. With knife or metal spatula, remove one pizzelle while pizzelle is still hot, quickly roll pizzelle into a cone shape. Repeat with remaining pizzelle. Remove pizzelle to wire rack to cool. Repeat with remaining batter to make about 30 pizzelles in all. This recipe was developed using an electric pizzelle iron that makes two 5-inch pizzelles at a time.

ANSWER — Lena Stoltzfus, Ronks, wanted a recipe for Long Johns. Thanks to E. Weaver, Mohnton, for sending one.

Long Johns

2 packages yeast
2 cups lukewarm water
2 cups mashed potatoes
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
5 eggs, beaten
10 cups flour or enough until dough works like bread dough.

Let rise. Roll and cut in strips and let rise again. Bake at 350 degrees. Don't overbake. They're finished before you think. Spread frosting or glaze over them when cooled.

ANSWER — Sue and Bruce Pardo, Jarrettsville, Md., wanted recipes for low-fat ice cream and low-fat frozen yogurt to be made in an ice cream maker. Thanks to John Zimmerer, Fallston, Md., for sending recipes.

Low-Fat Frozen Yogurt

⅔ cup sugar
2 teaspoons cornstarch
12-ounce can evaporated skim milk
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon vanilla
1½ cups non-fat yogurt

Put ingredients into ice cream freezer and freeze in accordance with manufacturer's instructions. Makes 8 servings — 153 calories per serving, 1 gram fat, 29 mg cholesterol. Calories from fat is 5 percent.

Lo-Cal Soft Ice Cream

4 envelopes unflavored gelatin
2 cups cold skim milk
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup sugar
2 14-ounce cans sweetened condensed milk
5 cups skim milk

Soak the gelatin in the 2 cups cold milk. Scald the 5 cups milk. Add the gelatin mixture, sugar, and condensed milk to the scalded milk. Add about 4 cups skim milk, enough to half fill a 8-quart freezer. Churn. Yields 8 quarts. One cup has 120 calories and 2¼ grams fat.

ANSWER — Carol Spatz, Harrisburg, wanted a recipe called either pumpkin spread or pumpkin butter. Thanks to John Zimmerer, Fallston, Md., for sending a recipe.

Pumpkin Butter

3½ cups cooked pumpkin
4½ cups sugar
1 tablespoon pumpkin spice
1 box powdered fruit pectin

Cook pumpkin, spice, and pectin. Stir until it comes to a boil. Add sugar and bring to a full rolling boil, stirring constantly.

Ladle quickly into sterilized glasses. Cover with ⅛ -inch melted parafin or put into freezer containers and freeze. Makes seven six-ounce glasses.

ANSWER — Shirley Hoover, Indiana, wanted to know why when she bakes cream pies, the pie crust gets soggy and filling turns watery. Thanks to John Zimmerer, Fallston, Md., for writing the following: When filling an unbaked crust with cream fillings, the crust must first be set. Pierce the crust all over, brush the crust with an egg white lightly beaten with a teaspoon of water. Chill crust for 30 minutes, then bake at 450 degrees for 5 minutes. Cool crust to room temperature, pour in filling and bake according to your recipe.

Never pour a hot filling into either a hot or cool pie shell. Both filling and pie shell should be cooled.

In reference to the watery filling, do not put the sugar for sweetening the cream filling into it while cooking. After removing the filling from the heat, stir in the sugar. The heated filling will melt the sugar.

ANSWER — Shirley Hoover, Indiana, wanted Jell-O salad recipes. Thanks to Janet Martin, New Holland, for sending recipes.

Lime Jell-O Salad

16 large marshmallows
1 cup milk
3-ounce package lime Jell-O
6 ounces cream cheese
20-ounce can crushed pineapple
1 cup whipped cream
⅔ cup salad dressing

Melt marshmallows in milk on top of double boiler. Pour over Jell-O and stir until dissolved. Add pineapples and cool. Blend in whipped cream and salad dressing. Chill until firm.

Jell-O Salad

1 small carton cottage cheese
20-ounce can pineapple, drained
15-ounce can fruit cocktail, drained
3-ounce package orange Jell-O or preferred flavor
1 large container whipped cream topping

Sprinkle dry Jell-O over cottage cheese. Add pineapple and cocktail. Mix together. Add whipped topping.

ANSWER — Luci Lowe wanted a coffee crumb cake recipe that appeared in the Family Circle magazine around 1935-1940. Thanks to Annette Huhn, Stroudsburg, who sent a recipe that comes from her husband's grandmother. In parentheses are the changes that Annette has used to adapt to her tastes. It makes a very good moist unsweet cake.

White Crumb Cake

2½ cups flour
1½ cups sugar
½ cup lard (butter)
1½ teaspoon baking powder (omit)

Rub all ingredients together. Add the following ingredients and beat:

1 egg (2 eggs)
1 cup thick milk made by adding 1 tablespoon vinegar and filling cup with milk
½ teaspoon baking soda

Save some crumbs to sprinkle on top of cake. Combine the crumb and liquid ingredients and pour into cake pan. Sprinkle with reserved crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes or until done.

Zany Day Of Rhubarb Fun

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — While many kids turn up their noses at the taste of rhubarb, they certainly had big smiles when they attended the 11th annual Rhubarb Festival on May 21 at Kitchen Kettle.

There, they found all kinds of delightful wonders of which rhubarb is capable.

For instance, there was The Rhubarb Race Car Derby, which featured miniature dragsters built from ruhbarb stalks and raced toward the finish line.

Some snazzy dragsters sported florescent blue, pink, and green paints. Hot pink wheels completed the look and enabled the dragsters to race down the runway.

Fred Homsher, Paradise, captured the first time with his work of art that had a driver carved from rhubarb.

Thirteen-year-old Allyson Ladley of Leola used puffy paints to catch the eye of the judges, who awarded her second place.

John Bratton, a former school teacher and now owner of Bratton's Woodcrafts, said that the contest was only open to employees and their families. Crowds gather to watch, the cars placed on the racetrack.

First prize in the speed category went to Jeremiah Sensenig of Intercourse; second prize went to Ricky Miller, and third to Dave Hoy.

All the kid's could enjoy the Rhubarb Arcade. There, such games as rhubarb pick up sticks, rhubarb bulls-eye toss, and Rhubarb Regatta were played. Those games and many more were played throughout the day. Face painting and cookie decorating were also available to visitors.

Yummie the Gingerbread Person mingled with the kids while Rupert Rhubarb handed out balloons.

A rhubarb pie throw was held for those who wanted to throw a pie in the face of Brother Weims from WIOV 105. Fourteen gallons of rhubarb sauce pies splattered Weims.

The pie throwing the the pie sales were not just for fun — although it was — but to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. This year $614 was raised for the Association.

Create Memories At Landis Valley Fair

LANDIS VALLEY (Lancaster Co.) — Create memories for you and your family at Lancaster's Landis Valley Fair the weekend of June 4-5. Visit a 1700s hunting camp, lacemaker or baker, watch horses pull plows or carriages, help your child play dress up or use early lighting devices.

Fairgoers may enjoy more than 65 activities and events, ranging from a magic show, performances by the Lancaster Co. Folk Music & Fiddlers' Society, sheep, rabbit and peep hatching exhibits to blacksmithing, knife, and bandbox making.

This 38th annual event at a scenic museum complex includes many hands-on activities for children and adults, such as cake walks, pie-eating contests, and making old-fashioned toys like button whizzers. The young at heart will also want to join in hayplay, spelling bees, and many old-fashioned games like sack races, sing along with Ubi Adams, take a pony ride, use an auger and have an 1890s school lesson.

Landis Valley, rated "exceptional" by AAA, is the largest Pennsylvania German museum. Its many historical buildings, from farmsteads and a tavern to craft shops and a firehouse, will be open. Visitors will also enjoy seeing kitchen gardens, groves, and orchards, and browsing at the herb and heirloom plant sale. The Fair includes tasty country food such as sausage sandwiches.

On Saturday of the Fair the Shop will feature Louise Stoltzfus and Jan Mast signing their book, LANCASTER COUNTY COOKBOOK.

Visitors will learn about traditional crafts and skills with demonstrations of 1700s angling, the autoharp, basketry, bookbinding, brick making, broom making, chair caning, coppersmithing, flax processing, gunsmithing, leather working, printing, punched paper embroidery, rug hooking, shoemaking, stone carving, tinsmithing, early veterinary practices, wagon making, weaving, wood carving and many other early arts.

The museum's historical farming program is adding two new major features. On Saturday a Plowfest will be taking place most of the day. Visitors will see skilled horse teams plowing a field. On Sunday the Red Rose Carriage Club will perform precision movements (dressage), displaying a variety of horses and carriages. To raise funds for the museum's farming program, volunteers will be running Cow Chip Bingo at the Log Farm.

The Plowfest shows old-time plowing by horses, mules, oxen, and ponies. Participants will plow down the field, drag it, disk it, and plant. Visitors can watch the entire process.

The public will delight in meeting a variety of Civil War era personages - The Patriot Daughters of Lancaster, deeply concerned about the welfare of Union troops; the Lancaster Guard, showing camp life and medical procedures; Southern women visiting Wheatland, who find themselves behind Union lines at the War's start.

Most activities will be under roof and will go on rain or shine. Admission is free for ages 5 & under, $5 for ages 6-17, $6 for ages 60+ and $7 for adults. No discounts or group rates apply at the event. It is located 2.5 miles north of Lancaster on Rt. 272/Oregon Pike, a marked exit off both Rt. 30 & Rt. 222. Call (717) 569-0401 for more information.

York County Dairy Princess Kelly Jo Myers with her parents, Carolyn and Morrell Myers.

York County Selects Dairy Princess

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

BAIR (York Co.) — Kelly Jo Myers has been selected the 1994 York County Dairy Princess.

Her crowing was the highlight of the annual York County dairy princess pageant, held May 21 at the county 4-H Center.

Kelly Jo, 17, is the daughter of Carolyn and Morrell Myers, Thomasville R2. A junior at Spring Grove High School, she serves as class secretary and is active on the track team. Her future education plans are to enroll in Penn State for undergraduate studies with a career goal as a veterinarian.

Active in 4-H, Kelly is a member of the county's dairy, lamb, beef, and swine clubs and exhibits her own two head of Brown Swiss dairy cattle. She works on the family's Moovin' Meadows livestock and hay farm and is employed part time at Lincoln Speedway.

For her promotional skit, Kelly played the role of a school teacher, teaching a class about milk and dairy products. In response to a "fishbowl" question asking how she would handle a consumer asking her a dairy-related question to which she did not know the answer, Kelly replied that she would admit she did not know the answer and make an effort to find and forward it to the consumer.

First alternate is Angela Mummert, 16, the daughter of Diane and Dennis Mummert, Glen Rock R2.

Angela is a sophomore at Dallastown Area High School. She is active in sports and band front and participates annually in the community Walkathon for Multiple Sclerosis. Angela is employed part time at Bupplynn Farms.

In her promotional skit, Angela read an original dairy story she wrote to her cow puppet side-kick and to the children from the audience. Her fishbowl question related to how she would continue county promotions if, as a county dairy princess, she was chosen the state winner. Angela answered that she would make extra efforts to work with the county coordinator to continue fulfilling county appearances along with those as a state princess.

Tanya Thomas was selected the county's Dairy Maid. The 14-year-old daughter of Gail and Gary Thoman, Dallastown, Tanya is in the eighth grade at Dallastown Middle School and active in school chorus and band. She is a member of the 4-H dairy club and dairy bowl and of the York County Junior Holstein Club.

For a promotional poster presentation, Tanya spoke about the use and identification of "Real" dairy products. She was a York County Dairy Maid for 1993, as well.

Named Dairy Misses were eight-year-olds Lisa Jones and Nicole Marks. Both presented original dairy-related poems they had written and memorized.

Lisa is the daughter of Paty and Dennis Jones, Shrewsbury. She is a second-grader at Southern Elementary School and a beginning, cloverbud member of the 4-H dairy program. Lisa was a 1993 Dairy Miss.

Nicole Marks is the daughter of Barbara and Melvin Marks, Airville. In the second grade at Clearview Elementary, she is a cloverbud 4-H diary member.

Judges for the pageant were Mary Waybright, dairy farm woman and partner with her husband and family at Way-Brite Dairy Farms, Gettysburg; Sharon Hykes, owner of Buttons-N-Bows Bridal Shop, York; and Scott Deputy, East Berlin, dairy specialist for Purina Mills and chairman of the Adams County dairy promotion program. Escorts for the princess candidates were Brad Walker, New Freedom, and Dan Cole, Glen Rock.

Rhubarb Festival Attracts 10,000 For Contest, Food, Fun

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — About 10,000 people showed up at the Rhubarb Festival held at Kitchen Kettle Village on May 21.

"I come every year to eat rhubarb. I love it, but I can't get it to grow in my garden," said a North Carolinan.

Pie, punch, jelly, cake, pancakes, muffins, cookies, French toast, pork chop casserole, chicken kabobs, and more — all with a touch of rhubarb — offered people a taste of the distinctive tart vegetable.

Visitors sipped on the free Orange Rhubarb Punch as they strolled through the village of 32 shops. The music of the Dixieland Express and Banjo Jimmy permeated the festival.

While the Rhubarb Derby and numerous rhubarb games attracted the younger set, it was the rhubarb pie competition that appealed to rhubarb connoisseurs.

The 25 entries demonstrated the originality and creativity that can be wrought with the magenta-colored stalks of rhubarb. Meringue, lattice topped, dusty crumb toppings, crunchy toppings, custard, double crusts and more added a distinctive flavor to each entry.

Some unusual combinations that enhanced the taste of rhubarb in the pie included lemon, banana, blueberry, apple, and peach. It was a difficult decision for the three judges who came up with three winning entries. First place went to Dawn Hauser of Intercourse for her Crumb Top Rhubarb Pie. Mary Ann Klimesh of Brownstown placed second with a family favorite called Rhubarb Pie Deluxe. Duane Groff of Paradise placed third with his Rhubarb Apple Pie.

Here are the recipes for the winning entries and for the rhubarb punch that was served to the crowd.

ORANGE RHUBARB PUNCH

5-ounce jar Kitchen Kettle Rhubarb Jam dissolved in 1 cup hot water
Add:
2 cups ice cubes
1 quart orange juice
1 quart brewed iced tea
2 cups Sprite or 7-Up
Garnish with fresh sliced strawberries

RHUBARB APPLE
Duane Groff

3 cups rhubarb
2½ tablespoons minute tapioca
¼ cup sugar
2 packages artificial sweetener
1 apple shredded
2 tablespoons orange juice over apple
Cinnamon candy, several
Mix all together. Put in unbaked crust. Bake at 375 degrees for 50 minutes or until done.

CRUMB TOP RHUBARB PIE
Dawn Hauser

Crust:
1 cup flour
Pinch salt
⅓ cup shortening
3 to 4 tablespoons cold water
Filling:
1¼ cups sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
4 cups ¼-inch sliced rhubarb
⅔ cup chopped pecans
Topping:
1 cup flour
⅓ cup sugar
½ cup butter

Heat oven to 400 degrees. In large bowl, stir together 1 cup flour and salt. Cut in shortening until crumbly. With fork, mix in water until flour is moistened. Shape into a ball. On lightly floured surface, roll into 12-inch circle. Place in 9-inch deep dish pie pan. Crimp or flute crust. Set aside. In large bowl, stir together all filling ingredients except rhubarb and pecans. Stir in rhubarb until well coated with sugar mixture. Spoon into pie shell. Sprinkle with pecans. Set aside. In medium bowl, combine 1 cup flour and ⅔ cup sugar. Cut in butter until crumbly. Sprinkle over rhubarb. Bake for 50 to 60 minutes or until topping is golden brown and filling bubbles.

RHUBURB PIE DELUXE
Mary Ann Klimesh

1¼ cups sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup cream or half and half
3 egg yolks
2 cups sliced rhubarb
Mix sugar with flour. Add cream and egg yolks. Mix with rhubarb and pour into unbaked crust and sprinkle with cinnamon. Bake in 450 degree oven for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for 35 minutes to finish. Beat 3 egg whites and sweeten with sugar; spread on baked pie and brown.

Third-place winner in the Rhubarb Pie contest is Duane Groff, left, who holds stalks of the celebrated vegetable.

Visitors sipped on complimentary cups of orange rhubarb punch. For sale were fresh rhubarb, recipe booklets, jams, and pies.

It was the first time that Mary Ann Klimesh entered a contest. Thrilled with the second-place win for her recipe that was passed down through the generations, Mary Ann said the recipe originated in Iowa.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The other week my husband and I went fishing. The problem was that we did not pay close attention to the weather forecast. So on our way to Schuylkill County we ran into heavy rain showers. When we arrived at Tuscarora State Park, we had to sit in our truck until the rain was over.

While sitting there, Allen saw a large bird far in the woods. Its red and white feathers attracted our attention. It was a big bird with an unusual call, cuk-cuk-cuk-cuk-cuk which rose and fell in pitch. It was a pileated woodpecker. My bird book says they are 17 inches and crow-sized. It certainly looked that way in the dense forest.

Finally the sun came out and we had two hours of sun while we motored from place to place in our boat trying to find a spot where the fish were biting. I only caught a small perch but Allen got a 14-inch catfish which made a nice meal for us the next day.

Soon afterward, I noticed a dark cloud, which was soon followed by thunder. When we started for the other side of the lake, we discovered that the battery was dead and Allen had to row across in a heavy rain shower. We managed to tie the boat to a limb and get out during the thunder storm. After climbing a rock-strewn hillside covered with wet leaves, Allen pointed me in the direction of our truck while he donned rain gear and finally brought the boat back to the dock.

In a little while the sun again appeared and some cars arrived bringing other fishermen who fished from the shore. One group contained a little boy who caught a small fish and his gleeful laughter could be heard across the water.

Next time I'll check the weather before we leave home.

4H HAPPENINGS

Adams Co. 4-H

Adams County 4-H Club presidents, vice presidents, secretaries, treasurers, news reporters, song leaders, and game leaders were acquainted with their duties and responsibilities at the 1994 4-H Officers Training session.

An Adams County 4-H senate committee planned the session to help each officer become better informed of their particular office responsibilities.

Specific workshop presenters were Mary Jane Hilber, PNC Bank, trasurers' workshop; Rob Holt, Gettysburg Times, news reporters' workshop; Mary Grim, secretaries' workshopo; 4-H teen leaders Denise Green, Gettysburg and Heather Hawkins, New Oxford, game and song leaders' workshop; and Debbie Wilkinson, 4-H teen leader, Gettysburg, and Jared Tyson, county 4-H agent, presidents' and vice presidents' workshops. More than 70 4-H members attended.

Each officer received a 4-H notepad and 4-H pencil from the Adams County 4-H Senate. Refreshments were served by the 4-H Sheep Club.

State Farm Women Celebrate 80 Years

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Four scores of the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women was celebrated at the group's 29th Spring Rally, held May 11 at the York Fairgrounds.

Song, scripture, humor, and fellowship marked the 80th anniversary celebration of the Society, founded in 1914 by Somerset Sounty farm woman Flora Black. Hosting the more than 400 members from across the state joining in the celebration was the York County Society and its president Carolyn Neal, Dillsburg.

Soloist Mary Burns and her piano accompaniest Ruth Kreitzer opened the day-long program, which focused on the theme "Four scores have passed," A former Pennsylvanian, Mary Burns recently became associated with the Bethesda Mission, an adult rehabilitation center. With her powerful singing voice and appropriate scriptural passages, she touched on the role of women and mothers as presented in the Bible.

Robert and Vera Kissinger's inspirational comedy team also brought a message, but in a completely different style. The husband-wife team from Mountville, Lancaster County, kept their Farm Women audience laughing while sharing thoughts about what is inside a person being more important than the outside appearance.

Afternoon speaker Joyce Bupp, Lancaster Farming columnist and dairy farm wife, spoke about the changes in the lifestyle of farm women in the 80 years since the founding of the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women.

State Farm Women Celebrate

State Farm Women president Dottie Stricker, Berks County,m announced that the 1995 state convention will be held on January 9, with a theme of "Families." The state project she has selected to focus on during her three-year tenure pertains to the strengthening of families. Spring Rally for 1995 will be hosted by the past state presidents, with the date and site to be announced.

Tour chairman Edith Diehl reminded members of the Society's upcoming tour to Branson, Missouri, scheduled for June 9-17. Members interested in more information are asked to contact her immediately.

Other Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women officers are Lois Hughes, Cambria County, first vice-president; Catherine Schott, Lebanon County, second vice-president; Audrey Gilbert, Somerset County, secretary; and Darlene Schmeltz, Dauphin County, treasurer. State directors include Lois Laffey, Chester County; Barbara Malehorn, York County; Barbara Nissley, Lancaster County; Gladys Meyers, Franklin County; Barbara Ramper, Huntingdon County; Janice Kress, Greene County, and Janice Yorlets, Cumberland County.

Members of the York County Society of Farm Women executive committee, which hosted the Spring Rally, include Carolyn Neal, president; Shirley Kauffman, first vice-president; Arlene Keener, second vice-president; Trudy Reichard, secretary, and Treva Stiles, treasurer.

York County members Pauline Thomas, left, and Nancy Perry, look over the Farm Women's cookbook. Nearly 18,000 of the cookbooks have been sold in three years, with the book now in its eighth printing. Cookbook sales have raised more than $35,000 for the Society's scholarship fund.

FFA HAPPENINGS

Cedar Crest FFA Participates in Land Judging

The Lebanon County FFA land judging contest was recently held in the Eastern Lebanon County School District at the Victor Zeigler farm.

Fifty-nine contestants from Lebanon County chapters of the FFA participated.

The contestants scoring took into consideration such aspects of the land as slope, stoniness, texture, depth of soil, and internal drainage.

The students also had to identify conservation practices to be used on the land and hazards in special uses such as home building and ponds.

The Cedar Crest placings were as follows: Ryan Gates finished first with a score of 227, Dan Atkins place second with a score of 222.5, Jeff Zimmerman placed fourth with a score of 200.5, Brandon Hardy placed fifth with a score of 200.5, Chris Kepley placed sixth with a score of 191.5, Joe Hershey placed seventh with a score of 191.5, Wendy Atkins placed eighth with a score of 191.5, Charlie Aurentz placed ninth with a score of 189.5, Tim Showers placed thirteenth with a score of 165.5, and Jon Harnish placed fifteenth with a score of 161.5.

The team placed first.

After the contest, milk was served compliments of the Lebanon County Conservation District.

Ann Fackler and Tim Emerheiser from the Soil Conservation Service judged the event.

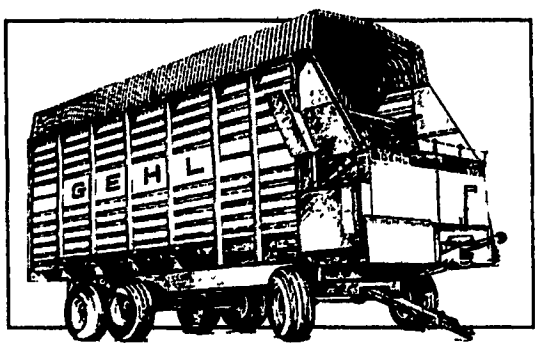
GEHL

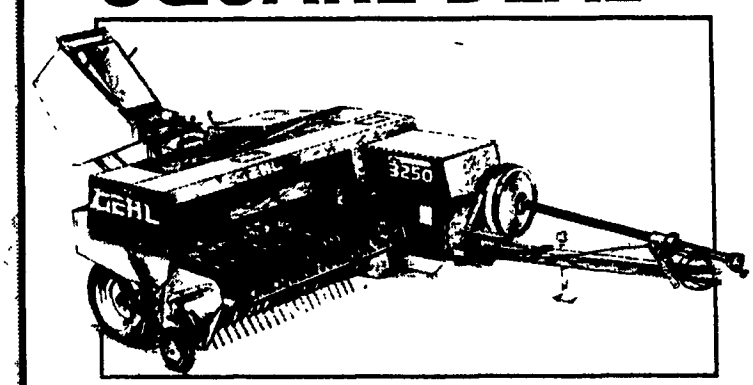
NORTH AMERICA'S #1 FORAGE BOX



Gehl makes the best-selling forage box in North America Here's why

- Five sizes deliver the capacity to match your forage harvesting operation
- 10-Year Warranty against rust through on sides, endgate, stakes and roof
- Wide 23-1/2 inch cross conveyor extends nine inches beyond the box side, for easy positioning to the blower
- Even-Feed third beater has extended tines to break up clumps for smooth crop delivery to the cross conveyor
- Four-speed drive system features #50 roller chain for added durability
- Heavy-duty Gehl running gears match the capacity of Gehl forage boxes

SQUARE DEAL



Gehl's introduced two new square balers to complement our great line of round balers and other Gehl haytools Both balers make standard 14x18 inch bales and offer these proven features

- Dependable knotter – Has fewer parts for more reliability and stronger knots, tie after tie
- Wide pickups – With close spaced tines, flared side sheets and standard gauge wheel, the pickup brings in all of the crop
- Plunger system – Self-aligning for reduced wear.
- Bale tension – Easily adjusted with two handles
- Hydraulic bale thrower – Has a self-contained hydraulic system and electric controls on the tractor (optional).
- Big twine storage – Holds 6 balls of twine

4H HAPPENINGS

Adams County 4-H Presentation Night

Adams County 4-H Presentation Night was held at Biglerville High School on Thursday, April 28.

Sixteen junior and six senior 4-H illustrated presentations were presented by 24 4-H members.

Five junior and seven senior prepared speeches were presented. Six junior and eight senior 4-H members presented impromptu speeches.

The objective of 4-H Presentation Night was to provide a forum for 4-H members to practice and demonstrate their communication skills in a competitive format.

Junior 4-H members receiving a blue ribbon award for their presentations were Chris Jeffcoat, Littlestown, animal science; Jonathan Murren, New Oxford, animal science; Zachary Eckert, Gettysburg, general; Jessica Bange, Hanover, general; Derek Zepp, New Oxford, animal science; Andrew Alwine, East Berlin, animal science; Chrissy Dibert, Gettysburg, animal science; team of Sarah Smith, New Oxford, and Summer Staub, Hanover, animal science; Julie Zepp, New Oxford, food and nutrition; William Spicer, Gettysburg, general; Abby Lott, Aspers, general; Ann Bodenberg, Gettysburg, food and nutrition; the team of Shannon Holtzinger, East Berling and Mollie Van Lieu, East Berlin, animal science; Kristen Hill, York Springs, food and nutrition; and Addie Spicer, Gettysburg, general.

Following are Junior 4-H members who received a red ribbon award for their presentations: Mariah Weir, Hanover, animal science and Abby Hoffman, East Berlin, food and nutrition.

Senior 4-H members receiving a blue ribbon award for their presentations were Jesse Murren, New Oxford, animal science; Anthony Hill, York Springs, animal science; Julie Zepp, New Oxford, food and nutrition; and Ashleigh Van Lieu, East Berlin, general.

The following 4-H members presented prepared speeches junior division and received a red ribbon awarded: Megan Henseling, East Berlin and Jena Rhodes, New Oxford. Following are junior prepared 4-H speakers who received a white ribbon award: Janel Keller, Gettysburg.

The following 4-H members presented prepared speeches, senior division and received a blue ribbon award: Kelly Rockafellow, Littlestown; Joy Hess, Gettysburg, and Amber Day, Littlestown. Senior 4-H members receiving a red ribbon award for prepared speeches were: Wayne Flickinger, Biglerville; Shawna Ford, New Oxford; and Travis Rhodes, New Oxford. The senior prepared 4-H speaker who received a white ribbon award was Nichole Bodenberg, Gettysburg.

Junior 4-H members receiving a blue ribbon award for impromptu speeches were Zeb Eckert, Gettysburg and Jason Keller, Gettysburg. The following Junior 4-H members received a red ribbon award for impromptu speeches: Gabby Wells, New Oxford and Rebecca Hung, East Berlin. Junior 4-H members who received a white ribbon award for impromptu speeches were Ryan Zepp, New Oxford and Candice Flickinger, Biglerville.

Senior impromptu 4-H speakers who received a blue ribbon award were Emily Miller, Nex Oxford; Abe Bucher, Nex Oxford, Kristin Johnston, Gettysburg; Michell Brannen, Cashtown; Heidi Miller, New Oxford; Debbie Wilkinson, Gettysburg; Sadie Bucher, New Oxford; and Becky Frederick, Littlestown. This senior impromptu 4-H speaker received a red ribbon award: Eugene Hunt, East Berlin.

Judges for the evening were adult 4-H leaders and parents. During the evening awards program, Debbie Wilkinson served as MC. Refreshments were served by the Cafeteria Equest 4-H Club and registration was done by the Mt. pleasant 4-H Club.

Participants in senior and junior presentations, prepared speeches, and impromptu speeches will be eligible to participate in Regional 4-H Presentation Night contest to be held on July 21 at the Cumberland Valley School near Mechanicsburg. The senior presenters and preapred speakers are also eligible to go on to state competition.

Adams 4-H Horse Club

Adams County 4-H Horse Club members placed fourth in a Regional 4-H Horse Bowl competition held recently in Berks County.

The Horse Bowl is a setting similar to the "College Bowl."

A toss-up question is presented to two teams. The first team to answer the question then receives a bonus question. For each question answered correctly, the team receives points.

When the question period is over, the highest scoring team is the winner and goes on to play other teams.

The Adams County 4-H Horse Bowl team members were Debbie Wilkinson, Gettysburg; Samantha Lane, Biglerville; Teresa Scamack, Gettysburg; and Bobbi Jordan, Fairfield. The team is coached by Doris Wilkinson, Gettysburg.

The Adams County team will continue to practice for the State 4-H Horse Bowl competition to be held at State 4-H Achievement Days on August 2-4, at Penn State.

'I Care About My Animals' Program

More than 100 4-H members, parents, and leaders from Juniata, Mifflin and Perry counties attended the first annual Junior Livestock and Dairy Day held on Saturday, April 9, at the Juniata County Fairgrounds in Port Royal.

This activity was a joint effort of the Penn State Cooperative Extension Offices for the three counties involved, with hopes of making it an annual event.

Among the workshops offered by extension personnel and volunteers from the agricultural community were livestock handling, feeds and forages, animal health, sheep jeopardy, blue ribbon record books, world view of livestock production, retail meats judging, dairy fitting, and beef fitting.

A special program called "I Care About My Animals" was also offered to participants. The "I Care" program was originally developed by the American Farm Bureau to educate youth on how to respond to people critical of animal agriculture.

Juniata County Farmers Association sponsored the workshop along with Mifflin and Perry County associations who pitched in to provide special "I Care" T-shirts for all program participants.

County Wide Dairy Club

On May 7, the County Wide Dairy Club and the Blue Mountain 4-H Club got together at the Harry Thompson Farm in Carlise for a dairy showing workshop.

The day offered four different workshops for the 20 or so kids involved. Matthew Day and Emily Dietrich gave presentations on the parts of a dairy cow, while Craig Walton gave a talk on the new show ring code of ethics.

Steve Comman gave a talk and demonstration on how to clip your animal for the fair, and John Ocker talked on health papers and the Shippensburg Fair.

After a short lunch and competitive basketball game, everyone broke out their clippers and worked on four specially prepared heifers. Steve Comman then took one of the heifers that had been shaved down and gave her a show clip job on the top line.

On Monday, May 9, the County Wide Dairy Club then had their monthly business meeting, in which the workshop and the 4-H Roundup in August were discussed. Project books were the activity for the evening, as seven new members completed the level one in their project books.

The next meeting will be June 13 at Tri-Day Farm in Shippensburg.

LEADERSHIP AT WORK

Driving Clinic

Dauphin County 4-H will be hosting a Horse Driving Clilnic on Tuesday, June 21, at Twin Brooks.

This clinic will be part of a series sponsored by the State 4-H Horse Program Committee. The clinic will begin at 3 p.m. and run to dark. The cost is $5 for members and $10 for nonmembers to participate.

There is a limit of 20 horses. Therefore, preregistration of horses/ponies is required. Spectators are welcome at a cost of $2.

The clinic will be taught by Lore Homer, a distinguished authority on driving as a judge, teacher, and competitor.

Dauphin Gymkana Clinic

On Thursday, June 23, there will be a clinic for all 4-H'ers who would like to try their hand at the gaming classes. The clinic will be held at Twin Brooks and will begin at 6 p.m.

Come prepared to ride. Nonmembers are welcome to be spectators but only members may ride.

Instructors will be Jim and Darby Miller of York County. Jim is a former 4-H leader and one of the organizers of the Pennsylvania High School Rodeo Association. Darby, his daughter, is a former 4-H'er with considerable experience.

Centre County 4-H Sheep Club

The Centre County 4-H Sheep Club held its monthly meeting at the Penn State University Beef and Sheep barn on May 4.

During roll call, each member of the club gave a short project report about their 4-H animals.

The guest speaker for the evening was Dr. Wolfegang, V.M., who addressed the club on animal health care.

Club members where informed of market lamb weigh in to be held on May 21 at Centre County Grange Fairgrounds.

At the April meeting, the election of officers was held, with Ranie Kerstetter, president; Hannah Auman, vice president; Rachael Kerstetter, secretary; Jennifer Herbstritt, card secretary; and Greg McMurtrie, news reporter.

The next meeting will be held at the Penn State Beef and Sheep barn on June 1 with a guest speaker on sheep nutrition.

Yellow Rose Barrel Spectacular

On Saturday, June 4, the Yellow Rose 4-H Club will sponsor its Sixth Annual Barrel Racing Horse Show at the Luzerne County Fairgrounds on Rt. 118 in Dallas.

The show will start at 1 p.m., rain or shine, with youth riders on their ponies competing in timed events, followed by amateur and open divisions for both the men and ladies.

Exhibitors will be coming from New York, New Jersey, Maryland, and all across Pennsylvania to compete for some big prize money classes.

If you like the thrills of high speed competition, you won't want to miss this show. Admission and parking is free and the Yellow Rose 4-H Club will have refreshments available.

For more information call (717) 477-2204 or (717) 256-3531.

Lancaster County 4-H Swine Club

The May meeting of the Lancaster County 4-H Swine Club was held at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center on Thursday, May 12, at 7:30 p.m. The meeting was called to order by the president, Tina Umbrell, after which the pledges were led by Bob Stewart and Gerald Boyd.

The program for the evening was given by Dr. Robert Graybill, swine veterinarian. He gave the club a talk and slide presentation on "Raising Healthy Pigs."

After the meeting, refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, June 2, at 6:30 p.m. at the West Lampeter Fairgrounds, Lampeter. The club will hold an ice cream social with the 4-H Beef and Woolies clubs.

Mercer County 4-H Volunteers Honored

Mercer County 4-H leaders were recently honored for their volunteer service to the 4-H program. The volunteer leaders were guests at the annual appreciation banquet sponsored by the Mercer County Bankers Association and Mercer County Cooperative Extension.

"4-H volunteers are very special people," said Beth Lair, Mercer County 4-H youth extension agent. "The knowledge, guidance, and support they give to 4-H members is an investment in the future. Volunteers are the backbone of the 4-H program. There are many young persons that have evolved into productive citizens and fine leaders in society due to the support and care given by a 4-H volunteer leader."

Wayne Rogers from the Mercer County Bankers Association presented the 4-H volunteer leaders certificates and awards for their 1993 year of service to the Mercer County 4-H program.

HOW CAN I PREPARE FOR HEAT STRESS ON MY BIRDS?

Dr. Michael Hulet
Associate Professor
Poultry Science

Although it is hard to believe, the heat of summer will be on us before we know it. The problems of winter and cold weather ventilation will soon be forgotten and replaced by the present problems of dealing with the first heat wave of the year.

Usually the change to summer heat, if it is rapid can cause more problems than the same rise in temperature late in summer when heat is more of a chronic management problem and birds have adapted to it. Significant mortality losses for poultry as a result of heat stress usually occurs with the older and heavier birds, such as turkeys from 10 to 20 weeks of age and broilers grown past six weeks of age.

At this age the loss is especially devastating since all the investment in time, feed, and labor have been made without a possibility of financial return. Heat stress in turkeys is not thought to be as deadly because of the birds' ability to convect heat from the featherless head region with the aid of air movement. However, in situations of high heat, high humidity and stress, high mortality can occur in turkeys.

Traditional management strategies to compensate for acute heat stress and maintain growth and performance have been threefold. First, to fast the animals during the heat of the day and allow the birds to return to feed in the evening when the temperature will be cooler. This has been shown to be effective in broilers as well as turkeys. In a study by Mamputu and others from the University of Georgia, the authors reported a significant decrease (3 to 4 percent) in the mortality of turkeys when a daylight fasting method was employed when compared with full fed 18-week-old tom turkeys. Results similar to these have also been reported for fasted vs. full-fed broilers.

A second method has been the use of fans and misting systems to reduce the sensible heat in the house. It has been calculated that an effective misting-ventilation system can reduce the inside house temperature by about eight degrees Fahrenheit (F) when compared to the outside ambient temperature.

Two different methods of fans and misting have been used. One system uses hanging circulating fans to increase the interior circulation of air through the house in concert with strategically placed misting nozzles to help cool the birds. The newer method uses a tunnel ventilation system in which air is drawn through the house at about 400 to 450 feet per minute by the use of several large fans positioned in the end wall.

Misting nozzles are placed periodically (50 feet) in bands across the house to increase the cooling of the birds. This method is usually tied into a thermostat controller that will change a normally curtain ventilated house to a tunnel ventilated house when the house temperature exceeds 85 degrees F.

Timmons and Hillman from Cornell University found that increasing air speed was an effective means for cooling birds when outside temperature is below 95 degrees F. When temperatures are higher than 95 degrees F, misting or evaporative pads are needed to help cool the bird.

The third traditional method used to help birds cope with hot weather is changing the diet to reduce the heat of digestion. Nutritionists must also take into account the reduction in feed intake with changes in formulation during hot weather so that growth can be maintained.

Other management procedures to help reduce the mortality during high ambient temperatures are to reduce temperature of drinking water by draining hot lines and filling more frequently with cool water, increase essential amino acids in the diet, increase insulation of building, tighten and dress fan belts, clean fan blades, remove dust and debris from exhaust screens, and make certain that the alarm systems and generators are operating properly to prevent disasters.

Another innovative method that has been suggested by Arjona and associates at Virginia Tech for broilers (not turkeys) is to expose chicks at five days of age to high temperatures (95 to 100 degrees F) for a short period of time (24 hours). The temperature should be hot enough to stress the birds but not so hot as to cause any mortality. Birds treated in this manner were compared to birds that were traditionally brooded. At 42 days of age the temperature was suddenly increased from around 70 degrees to between 95 and 100 degrees F for eight hours per day for two days. The birds that had been previously heat stressed at five days of age were better able to withstand the heat stress at 42 days of age. The birds traditionally brooded had mortality levels of 12.3 percent for the two days of heat stress, while the birds that were stressed at five days of age had only 0.8 percent mortality.

These researchers reported no differences in body weight and feed conversion between the two groups. While experimental, this method seems to have some promise in helping to alleviate some of the problems associated with the acute heat stress that occurs each spring.

'Emu For The Future' At Conference

EREC is comprised of Emu farmers/ranchers from Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Connecticut, and Vermont.

The conference will feature speakers currently on the board of AEA, as well as a veterinarian from the New York area. Ralph Benton, Elkhart, Texas, has been a successful Emu breeder for many years. He is one of the foremost Emu ranchers in the United States and is dedicated to promoting the Emu industry.

Scott Morgan, president of the Arizona Emu Chapter, will be discussing contracts and will address understanding the Emu business and establishing clear communications from the perspectives of purchaser, seller, and caretaker.

Dr. Bruce Wittels, DVM, is the owner/operator of the Mid-Monroe Veterinary Hospital and the Tristan Veterinary Clinic, both in New York, as well as being involved in the ratite (ostrich, rhea, and Emu) business.

A lunchtime roundtable workshop has also been scheduled. An experienced Emu breeder will be at each table to answer specific questions and concerns, or to just give general information. This is the first time this type of workshop has been scheduled and we feel it will be very informative.

Also scheduled are short presentations by experienced local Emu breeders, a question and answer panel, an Emu cooking demonstration and tasting, as well as vendor displays. There will be lilve Emu on display, Emu related products for sale, Emu recipes, door prizes, and a silent auction.

For more information regarding hotel accommodations, please contact the hotel. Preregistration for EREC members is $80 per person and $125 at the door.

For more information regarding the seminar, contact Mark Annunziato, Seminar Coordinator, (201) 613-1142 or (914) 986-7553.

Trayers Receive Stewardship Award

CRESSONA (Schuylkill Co.) — Dr. Timothy P. and Debra Jo Trayer of Denver were recognized by the Department of Environmental Resources, Bureau of Forestry for participating in the forest stewardship program.

Forest stewardship is the wise management and use of forest resources to ensure their health and productivity for years to come. Paul Troutman, service forester for the Bureau of Forestry, Department of Environmental Resources, presented the award at the Trayers' property.

The National Forest Stewardship Program was initiated by the National Association of State Foresters. The program was authorized in the forestry title of the 1990 farm bill and is administered through the U.S. Forest Service. In Pennsylvania, the stewardship program is directed by the Department of Environmental Resources, Bureau of Forestry, with guidance from a stewardship steering committee. The Bureau of Forestry has enlisted the help of Penn State to address the education and awareness aspects of the program.

Donald P. Oaks, district forester for the Weiser Forest District of the Pennsylvanai Department of Environmental Resources, Bureau of Forestry, said that the Trayers started the process of becoming forest stewards by having a forest stewardship plan prepared by Barry Rose, a consulting forester from Lawn, Pa. The Weiser Forest District covers Carbon, Dauphin, Lebanon, Schuylkill, and Lehigh counties.

Oaks said that stewardship challenges us to look beyond our immediate personal needs, so we can leave a living forest legacy for future generations. Stewardship challenges us to understand the natural processes that take place in a forest. Then it challenges us to ensure that when we alter these processes, we do so in a way that continues to enrich the lives of all who depend on forests — wildlife, humans, and generations yet to come.

Troutman said that the Trayers have been managing their 65-acre forest for timber production and family recreation. Dr. Trayer said the property was originally purchased by his father Raymond S. Trayer in 1962. In 1963, the Trayers began planting pine trees. The Trayers have also been active as cooperators with the Lebanon Conservation District.

Rose said the stewardship plan which he prepared for the Trayers' property consisted of 15 management units. He believes the property is well cared for and the diversity of the forest poses many management opportunities.

Harvesting timber with proper forest management can have positive effects on present and future forest productivity and increase the forest's capacity to meet society's needs while satisfying the landowners' objectives.

The Trayers are looking at managing their stewardship forest for the next generation. Their two children, Troy and Amy, will be the third generation of Trayers to enjoy benefits that a well-managed forest has to offer.

University Of Maryland Holds Successful Ag Day

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — A new setting for many agricultural activities was the scene at the 1994 Ag Day held at the University of Maryland, College Park campus on Saturday, April 30.

A large crowd of students, parents, friends and families had an opportunity to observe many different exhibits and programs. The new agricultural engineering facility was also dedicated at a ceremony during the day.

One of the highlights of the day was the dairy and livestock competition involving students from the college of Agriculture. Students enrolled in the dairy cattle production course taught by Dr. Lee Majeskie participated in the dairy cattle fitting and showing competition.

Judging the dairy show this year was Bonnie Remsberg, Middletown, Md. Assisting with the activity as coaches were teaching assistant Anne Digges and Jamie Cranford, along with undergraduate teaching asistants, Kelly Hydoski, Elizabeth Charlton and Aaron Sanders. The show took place in the new outdoor showring that was constructed in the courtyard of the animal science and ag engineering complex.

In the five individual classes, the following students placed first in their class: Class 1, Denise Kurant, Baltimore; Class 2, Ashley Henshaw, Cleveland, Ohio; Class 3, Rikki Kane, Silver Spring; Class 4, Dawn Knill, Woodbine; Class 5, Kerri Deuchler, Ellicott City.

The grand champion and reserve grand champion trophies were sponsored by Remsburg Sale Service, Jefferson, Md. Receiving the grand champion award was Dawn Knill. The reserve grand champion showperson, Kristen Cady, Brandywine, placed second in Class 4. All of the Holstein animals that were part of the dairy cattle fitting and showing activity were from the dairy herd at the Central Maryland Research and Education Center, Ellicott City. This was one of the finest group of heifers that the students have had an opportunity to work with over the years and students will be exhibiting some of these animals at fairs later this summer.

For the first time, there was a dairy steer fitting and showing competition. Mark Butler, Emmittsburg, Md., was the jusge and Anne Digges worked with the students in this activity. The class winners were Laurie Zimmerman, Frederick, and Johanna Froelich, Eldersburg. Laurie Zimmerman was the champion showperson in the dairy steer competition.

In the afternoon activity, sheep and swine were also shown by the students. Again this year, there was a faculty swine fitting and showing contest that provided good entertainment for the hogs and the people at ringside.

For the overall fitting and showing competition, the champion and reserve champion showperson for dairy, dairy steers, sheep and swine participated in the activity. Providing the grand champion and reserve champion trophies was the Maryland Sales Division of Sire Power, Inc. After each student had an opportunity to exhibit their skills in showing the different species, the judges unanimously agreed that the overall showperson for 1994 was Laurie Zimmerman with the reserve champion honor going to Dawn Knill.

Conservation School For Youth Set

The answer is the Lancaster County Youth Conservation School.

Now in its 16th year of operation, the school is a joint effort between the Lancaster County Conservation District, the Federated Sportsmen of Lancaster County, and local environmental organizations.

Subject areas to be covered during the 1994 school include outdoor survival skills, forestry, solid waste disposal, wildlife management, aquatics, boating safety, firearm safety, soil and water conservation, archery, and trapping. Field trips and a stream improvement project are also a part of the week-long activities.

The resident school will be held July 24 - 30 at the Northern Lancaster Game and Fish Protection Association grounds. Space is limited. Sponsorships are available.

For applications or more information, contact Nevin Greiner at the Lancaster County Conservation District office, (717) 299-5361.

Accreditation Program

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The board of directors of the Egg Association of America (EAA) asked the egg industry, government advisors, and customers to join in developing and implementing an accreditation program that would assure customers' confidence in the egg production process.

"With so many new challenges facing us in food safety, environment, and animal welfare, it is important to collectively focus our talents and resources on the best way to meet these challenges," said Andy Wadsworth, chairman of the EAA board. "A lot of changes are happening so fast these days — in particular, globalization, reduction in government supports, and consumer attitudes. All these changes will impact agriculture."

The program is divided into three phases. Phase I, available now, is a pamphlet creating an awareness of the need for a customer-oriented accreditation program. Phase II, to be developed by industry and government experts, will describe management practices that will achieve desired goals. Phase III will consist of review and certification of the producer.

A conference is being organized to give egg industry leaders an opportunity to assist in setting broad guidelines for program developers.

For meeting details, contact Mac McLaurin (202) 296-8248. Meanwhile, for a copy of Phase I, write EAA, 808 17th St. NW #200, Washington, DC 2006. The cost id $5 for EAA members and $15 for nonmembers.

Pequea Valley FFA To Represent County In Envirothon

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — On May 11, five young men from Pequea Valley High School's Future Farmers of America (FFA) Chapter teamed together and defended their title as "Lancaster County Envirothon Champions."

In fact, this is the fourth straight year in a row they have managed to do so. Their closest competition came from Lancaster Mennonite High School (LMH), who sent two teams that claimed second and third place. Coached by Leon Good, LMH really made Pequea Valley FFA work for the win.

Who are these young men from Pequea Valley, and what is this "Envirothon Contest?"

Seniors Jason Artus, Jason Huyett, Keith Landis, Tony Miller, and Chad Slusser, coached by Vocational Agricultural teacher Clair Witwer, formed the "C Team." Pequea Valley also had "A dand B Teams" that took fourth and fifth place. The "C Team" not only triumphed over fellow classmates, but also kept 21 other teams from area high schools at bay.

The Envirothon is an environmental contest that tests students on their knowledge of the outdoors and the natural things you would expect to encounter. Teams of three to five students compete against each other. The teams are tested in the following topic areas: wildlife, forestry, soils, aquatics, ecology, and this year's current topic "acid rain."

The tests ae in written form; however, the students see, feel, smell, and hear the actual questions. It might be a tree or mammal they're asked to identify. It may be a bird call they are asked to know. Understanding the "water cycle" would definitely come in handy, as well as recognizing different soil characteristics.

On Saturday, June 25, Pequea Valley will be challenged once more as they will compete against other county winners at the state level contest. If Pequea Valley manages to claim first place at Montour County's "PP&L Montour Preserve." They will continue on as Pennsylvania's representative at the national level contest.

Pesticide Council To Hold Public Forum

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Governor William Donald Schaefer's Pesticide Council is seeking public participation and direct input during its monthly meeting.

The Governor's Pesticide Council was formed to provide a mechanism by which a variety of people could have input into evaluation and development of state pesticide programs relating to pesticide use. The council advises the governor and the secretary of agriculture on actions necessary to produce healthy agricultural products and to allow proper pest control while protecting the health and safety of Maryland citizens and the environment.

The council's 15 members represent pesticide manufacturers, regulators, scientists, pesticide users, local government, environmental organizations, and the public.

"We want the public to be a big part of our decision-making process and we are encouraging people or groups to give an oral presentation to the council on specific issues or concerns relating to pesticides," said Acting Secretary Lewis Riley.

The council generally meets on the fourth Wednesday of each month. Public forums are held regularly during the year at which the public may present their questions, issues or support relating to pesticide storage, sale, use or disposal programs. The May 25 meeting was the eighth in a series of scheduled meetings held to provide an opportunity for public comment.

The council has formed two subcommittees to focus on specific issues. The Regulatory Subcommittee is addressing pesticide use, storage, and disposal regulations or programs. The Education Subcommittee is considering integrated pest management (IPM) and pesticide education programs for farmers, commercial pesticide applicators and the general public. Both subcommittees are considering issues presented by members of the public during the prior public forums. Pesticide regulations recently have been adopted as a result of input from the public to the council.

Builder Earns Awards For Construction Excellence

MORGANTOWN (Berks Co.) — Valley View Construction, a construction firm based here, was honored recently with two awards from Lester Building Systems. The first was "Fast Track Award" for achieving more than $200,000 in first year's sales of Lester wood frame buildings.

The second is the "Award of Excellence." This is a national competition for Lester builders throughout the country. It recognizes those builders who have completed outstanding projects in the past year.

Lester Building Systems, a division of Butler Manufacturing Company, is based in Lester Prairie, Minn.

More Cutting Power With Vicon's New Disc Mowers

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — High-speed, three-bladed triangular discs are the key to the clean, no-plug productivity of Vicon's AM series mounted disc mowers.

At 9,000 strokes per minute, three blades on each disc make twice as many cuts per minute over two-bladed disc machines. Non-stop action even in wet, heavy hay and fire ant mounds, without plugging.

The extra suction created by the triangular disc shape helps lift material to the swath to avoid recutting. Blades are reversible doubling their service life.

New AM 2800/3200 mounted disc mowers cut over the entire cutterbar width at 9-feet 4-inches and 10 feet 6 inches respectively, enhancing the low weight to working width ratio of these machines even more.

New Engines In 4 New Ford Tractors

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — New Genesis™ engines give the Ford "10S" series economy tractors from Ford New Holland improved power and performance over the "10" series tractors they replace. These are basic, no-frills tractors that offer maximum power and work at an economical price.

Ford New Holland product manager Dave Dell points out the new tractors combine high horsepower-to-weight ratios to enable them to do more work with lower purchase cost. They have the features and performance needed for widest applications, Dell adds.

The new "10S" tractor series includes the 68 PTO HP 4-cylinder Model 5610S; the 76 HP Model 6610S; the 86 HP Model 7610S; and the 6-cylinder, 90 HP model 7810S. All have 540 RPM independent PTO. The 86 and 90 HP units offer both 540 and 1000 RPM PTO.

Four new Ford "10S" series economy tractors from Ford New Holland cover the 68 to 90 HP range. All are powered by the powerful, efficient new Ford Genesis™ engines. Mechanical 8x2 transmissions are standard.

AlliedSignal Announces Sales, Marketing Changes

HOPEWELL, Va. — AlliedSignal Chemicals has announced several changes in its ammonium sulfate sales and marketing organization.

AlliedSignal is the U.S.'s largest producer of ammonium sulfate, which is marketed as fertilizer under the brand name Sulf-N 45.

In Sales, Kenneth D. Kunz has been appointed to the newly created position of domestic ammonium sulfate sales manager. All district sales managers will report directly to Kunz.

"This position has been created to better coordinate sales and marketing programs nationwide, to improve internal communications, to pursue marketing opportunities for complementary products, and to more fully involve all sales personnel in our total quality efforts," said Guy Beardslee, director of ammonium sulfate sales and marketing.

On the marketing side, Steven E. Dewey is succeeding Zane Blevins as ammonium sulfate marketing manager for AlliedSignal. Blevins is retiring after 40 years with the company.

The marketing manager is responsible for promotion of the agronomic benefits of Sulf-N 45 ammonium sulfate fertilizer, coordination of domestic and international promotional efforts, and sales support for district sales managers.

In addition to the above changes, John Hardage, manager of marketing and distribution support services, will now report to Beardslee.

Local Dealer Offers Customers New Choices

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Bob Messick of Messick Farm Equipment has announced the introduction of a new line of Case International tractors ranging from 42 to 85 PTO horsepower.

"The line gives customers a new set of choices in the 40-to-90-horsepower range," Messick said. Five models — the 3220, 3230, 4210, 4230 and 4240 — follow the lead, in styling and productivity, of the popular Case International Magnum™ and Maxxum® tractor lines.

"Key reliability and productivity features, such as field-proven Case IH engines and high-flow hydraulic systems, are employed on the new 3200/4200 Series tractors," said Messick. New features include improvements to the transmission and cooling systems, several modifications to models with cabs, and new hood styling to enhance visibility and provide a family appearance with Magnum and Maxxum tractors.

The new cooling system is exceptional, according to Messick. Among other changes, a large front and side grill-screen area provides high air intake, while a new flare-tip fan optimizes air flow through the heavy-duty radiator. "Better cooling extends the life of the tractor," said Messick.

New 3200/4200 Series general-purpose tractors join the family lineup of Case International tractors, providing improved visibility, cooling systems and transmissions for greater reliability, dependability, and performance.

Massey Ferguson, Simplicity Announce Agreement

DULUTH, Ga. — Simplicity Manufacturing of Port Washington, Wis., a leading manufacturer of lawn and garden equipment, founded in 1922, and Massey Ferguson, producer of the western world's best-selling brand of farm tractors for 31 consecutirve years, have entered into a supply and distribution agreement covering lawn and garden tractors and related implements for North America.

A new line of riding mowers and lawn and garden tractors built by Simplicity Manufacturing for Massey Ferguson will be marketed by Massey Ferguson dealers in the U.S. and Canada.

The new Massey Ferguson lawn and garden line will include garden tractors from 18 to 20 horsepower, lawn tractors from 12.5 to 16 horsepower, and riding mowers from 8.5 to 12.5 horsepower. A full line of implements and attachments will provide year-round versatility.

Dense Chopped Bale Simplifies Feeding

COLUMBUS, Ind. — The Claas® Rollant® 46 Round Baler with Roto Cut cutting device produces a dense, evenly distributed bale that better retains hay quality and breaks apart easily, simplifying feeding.

Equipped with a 6½ ' pickup, the 46 Roto Cut Baler provides clean, efficient pickup of the widest, most uneven windrows of hay.

The Roto Cut cutting device features a durable rotor (Helix 4) consisting of four rows of star shaped tines that feed crop evenly into 14 knives. The result is increased throughout, reduced peak loads, and a denser bale.

For more information, contact Claas of America, Inc., 3030 Norcross Drive, Woodside Business Center, Columbus, IN 47202, (812) 342-4441.

Ford Offers Wide Clearance Tractors

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Four new wide clearance Ford PowerStar™ tractors from Ford New Holland feature 26.5 inches vertical front axle clearance. Tread width is adjustable from 68 to 96 inches to adapt the tractors for a wide variety of crops and conditions.

The new models include the 686 PTO HP Model 55640, the 76 HP Model 6640, the 86 HP Model 7740, and the 90 HP Model 7840.

Transmission options includea Pulse Command™ 16x16 speed unit with optional clutchless shuttle shift. Also available is a 12x12 dual range transmission which provides a 22 percent torque boost for each of the 12 speeds.

Ford New Holland offers four new Ford wide clearance tractors in the 66 to 90 HP range with 16x16 Pulse Command™ or 12x12 Dual Power transmissions. 8x2 and 16x4 mechanical transmissions are also offered.

Vermeer Introduces Fingerwheel Rakes

PELLA, Iowa — Hydraulic-folding, crop-driven fingerwheel rakes which create large, fluffy windrows for big bale systems are available from Vermeer Manufacturing Co.

The new Vermeer Wheel Rakes (Models WR20, WR22, and WR24) are easy to operate and feature a soft, smooth raking action that's particularly gentle on legumes. All three units require just a minimum 20HP tractor.

The units come equipped with dual raking assemblies that respond quickly by floating and pivoting to changes in contour or rolling terrain. Both frame-mounted units couple to a center-mounted fold mechanism that's hydraulically controlled from the tractor seat. An extra-wide wheelbase provides added stability.

Hydraulic-folding, crop-driven fingerwheel rakes which create large, fluffy windrows for big bale systems are available form Vermeer Manufacturing Co.

Case International 600 Forage Blowers

For your tall, big-diameter silos, 100 feet or higher, get the 600 Blower. It blows up to 110 tons of haylage or up to 180 tons of corn silage per hour!

- High volume with direct 30° feeding angle
- Drive-in convenience with 30½ -inch extendable hopper
- 37-inch-wide, high-volume hopper.

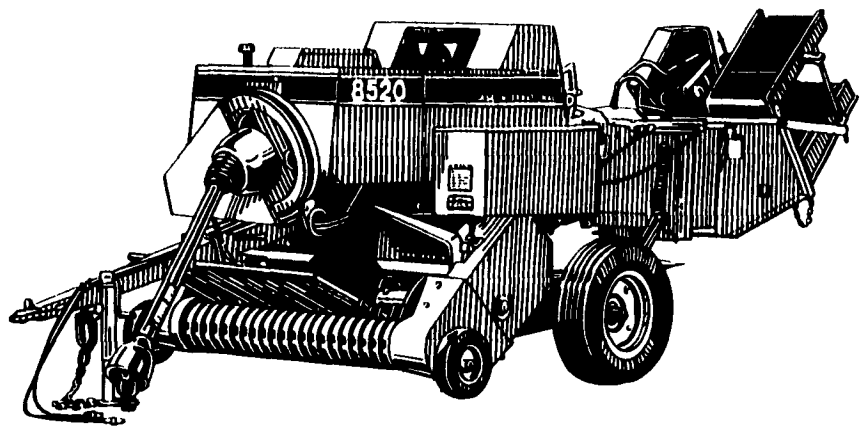
OUTSTANDING BALER PERFORMANCE MEANS GREATER NUTRITION AT AN ECONOMICAL PRICE



Case International 8520/8530 Rectangular Balers

These two balers both feature the Case IH center line design. Eliminates turning corners with the crop to get it into the bale chamber, as is common with conventional designs. This saves valuable protein-rich leaves. Also saves time because you don't have to change from field to road position for transport.

Other outstanding features are:

- Low-profile baler design provides excellent visibility to the rear of the baler.
- Low-profile pickup... reduces crop lifting height, saving nutritious leaves
- Hay goes straight into the unique prepacker chamber... regardless of windrow size... for uniform flake and bale density

Livestock Ledger

SUPPORTING THE SHEEP INDUSTRY

A Lancaster Farming headline two weeks ago, "Penn State Eliminates Sheep Programming," sure caught my attention and most likely caused a few doubletakes from sheep producers across the commonwealth.

According to the article, Penn State Cooperative Extension staff will be conducting sheep programs only in the western counties of Allegheny, Armstrong, Butler, Beaver, Clarion, Crawford, Erie, Fayette, Forest, Greene, Indiana, Lawrence, Mercer, Venango, Warren, Washington, and Westmoreland. What was missing from the article was the fact that extension programs will also be conducted in Lancaster and York counties in southeast Pennsylvania.

During the process of reviewing the College Future Committee's recommendations, a strong case was presented to Penn State Cooperative Extension Administrators defending the need for sheep industry programming in both Lancaster and York counties. Consider that Lancaster County ranks third behind Washington and Greene in sheep numbers with 8,800 head. That's more lamb and wool than the combined western counties of Allegheny, Clarion, Crawford, Erie, Fayette, Forest, and Venango.

Consider also that the Lancaster Stockyards is the largest sheep marketing terminal in the eastern U.S. trading 66,054 head in 1993. Finally, consider the formation of the Lancaster Sheep and Wool Growers Association in 1986, an organization with educational goals working together with Penn State Cooperative Extension to host two Keystone Shepherd's Symposiums, 35 educational meetings, and seven shearing schools with 129 graduates during the past eight years.

I write this article to reassure our local producers that Penn State Cooperative Extension will continue to provide sheep programming in the Lancaster and York counties. Shepherds throughout Pennsylvania may still phone their local county agent for sheep information, advice, and support. What may be missing in some counties will be planned programs and events. I hope that the many sheep associations throughout the state will remain active in their educational and promotional efforts.

Animal Housing Expo

Mark July 12 and 13 on your calendar now, as a reminder to attend Penn State's Animal Housing Expo at the Lebanon Fairgrounds. If you are a producer of pork, poultry, beef, or dairy products, a trip to this showcase of animal housing ideas, products, and tips may provide the direction you need in planning for building, expansion, or remodeling on your farm operation.

The show will feature more than 40 commercial exhibitors, expert speakers, educational displays, demonstrations, and new products. The expo will focus on proven, state-of-the-art housing systems, ventilation methods, safe animal handling, environmental concerns, and production efficiency.

Featured presentations this year include "Building Design for Rodent and Bird Control," "Fly Control in Confinement Housing," "Toold for Financial Planning," "Milking System Management," and "Functional Cattle Treatment Facilities."

A new aspect of the Expo will be Tuesday evening tours of new dairy and swine facilities followed by a pork barbecue at the fairgrounds.

Watch for details in the weeks to come!

Cattle Evaluation Workshop

Cattlemen are invited to participate in a workshop designed to improve knowledge and understanding of important aspects pertaining to the beef industry.

Scheduled for July 27 and 29, this two-day workshop will include live cattle grading by all participants, quality assurance tips, and advice on feeding for profit. Demonstrations at the packing plant will focus on beef that fits the box, hot fat trimming, injection site blemishes, and new grading proposals.

The live animal session will be held at New Holland Sales Stables, New Holland at 7 p.m. on July 27, where participants can compare their grading estimates with a panel of experts. The carcass aspect of the workshop will be held at 7 p.m. on July 29 at Stoltzfus Meats, Intercourse. During this program, actual carcass data can be compared with estimates, and participants will visualize the disadvantages of cattle that are too big, overly fat, or poorly managed.

The workshop is being conducted by Penn State Cooperative Extension with support from the Pennsylvania Beef Council and animal health companies.

Jackpot Show in York

Livestock show enthusiasts should reserve Saturday, July 30 to participate in the Keystone National Rib Cookoff and Music Fest's Jackpot Show, featuring the supreme champion selection of barrows, steers, and wethers, at the York Fairgrounds.

Sponsored by the Pennsylvania Livestock Association, the Jackpot Show is open to youth ages 8-19 (as of show day), with guaranteed jackpots totaling $1,700. Included are guaranteed premiums from $25 for first place to $5 for fifth.

For more information or entry forms, contact Chester D. Hughes, show manager, at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster, PA 17601, (717) 394-6851 or Cathy Stewart, PLA Youth Committee Chairman, 555 Willow Street, Lebanon, PA 17046, (717) 274-6911.

NEW

OSWALT® Mixers by J-STAR

TMR Ruffage Master

These new Oswalt® four auger Model 200/250 mixers are designed to process and mix all feeds, including baled hay, into a fully-blended TMR...better than anyone!

The aggressive, notched, 20"-diameter, full-pitch, four auger mixing pattern, dual shear shelf design and exclusive, self-lubricating Tuff-Glide® liners help feed materials flow more freely, reducing horsepower requirements and virtually eliminating material hang-ups and dead spots.

"IT IS TIME TO ONCE AGAIN GET SERIOUS ABOUT STORING YOUR VALUABLE FEEDS!!!"

The recent "innovations" and temporary methods of storing your grains and forages are just not protecting your feeds like they should, nor are they really efficient.

Research and practical experience has shown that "the tower silo has never been equalled in its ability to protect your forage quality." And remember..." on most dairy farms, forage quality is the single most important factor affecting profit."

Contact us soon to be sure you get on our schedule to have your poured concrete tower silo constructed in time!

No used silos!
No rebuilt silos!
No pre-owned silos!
All New For You!

If Your Silo Needs New Life...

Try Our Poly Silo Liners

-THE ADVANTAGE OF A POLY LINER-
- Spoilage is reduced around doors.
- Feed is exposed to less oxygen - better fermentation.
- Allows storage of high moisture grains or dry grains in a conventional silo.
- Delays repair or replacement of corroded silos.
- Prevents corrosive acids from contacting silo wall - extends silo life.
- Quick installation.
- Effectively seals silos from air and weather.

The Liners Are Manufactured To Fit Most Standard Diameter Silos.

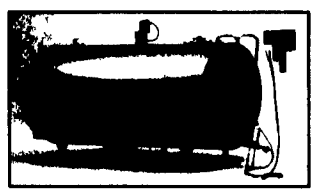
MUELLER DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Offer

Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850
Savings	$ 2,300

Contact your Mueller distributor for further comparisons.

- Discover the breed that still retains special traits acquired from its ancestors of Scotland.
- Great foragers, clearing most pest plants common to poor pastures
- Thrive in cold, damp climates
- Produce excellent lean beef in adverse conditions where other cattle would fail
- Docile and Hearty
- Calve easily due to small birth weights—something of interest to dairy people for servicing first-calf heifers
- Brucellosis, TB, BVD free herd and inoculated against rabies

☑ CHECK OUT Polygrate ™

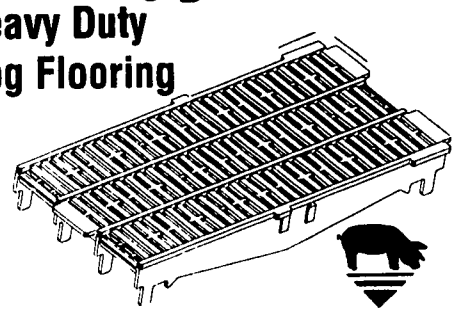
Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Faroex has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

◆ POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?

◆ More piglets survive until weaning
◆ Less splay/spraddle leg problems
◆ Heavier piglets at weaning
◆ Better conditioned sows at weaning

FOR A COMPLETE JOB WASHING DISINFECTING AND FUMIGATING

WE DO THERMAL FOGGING

- Disinfects
- Insecticide
- Long Lasting Fog

Kills all types of beetles and insects in hard to reach areas that cause structural damage. We recommend fogging in addition to our regular spraying.

COMPLETE PEST CONTROL PROGRAM

Programs available for rodent, fly and beetle control. We can tailor a program to suit your needs. Don't let rats and mice eat your profits!

INVITATIONS FOR BIDS

The Fulton Conservation District is requesting bids for the construction of several Ag Waste Storage Systems to be funded in part by the Chesapeake Bay Program. Construction of these projects is expected to begin in 1994. The sites are located in Fulton County.

Prospective contractors will receive a bid package which contains instructions to bidders, a sample contract form, the plans and specifications for the project and a bid sheet.

Small and minority businesses and women's business enterprises are encouraged to respond to this invitation for bids.

To obtain a bid package contact the Fulton Conservation District at 216 North Second Street, McConnellsburg, PA 17233 or call (717) 485-3547.

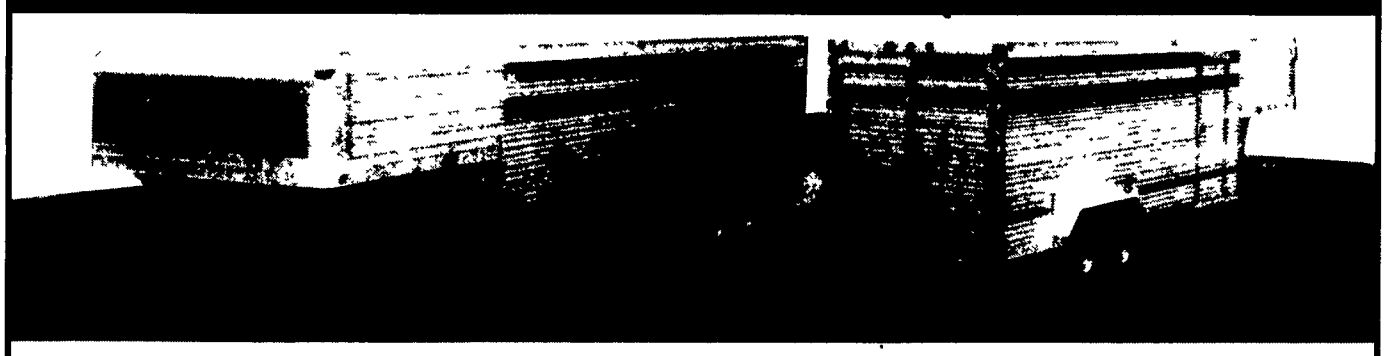
Anything Less Isn't Good Enough



If livestock is your business, Eby Gooseneck Trailers include these features to protect the livestock you transport:

- Durable all-aluminum construction with less weight for more payload
- Axies, wheels, tires and brakes that are designed to carry the weight the trailer will hold
- Gates and doors designed for easy loading/unloading
- Proven post and slat design to control airflow and easily close up for winter conditions
- Aerodynamic design to improve fuel economy

ROSE DALE FARM is a picturesque working beef cattle operation and has been family operated for over two generations. Located in the heart of the Shenandoah Valley near one of the most prospering areas of Stuarts Draft. The stately Circa 1852 brick home features many improvements, but original features such as 7 fireplaces, hand hewn floor joists & rafters and handmade peg doors still remain. The original bank barn has been expanded to add a covered feed lot with a Jamesway Feeder and electric waterers. Two silos, two large machine sheds & numerous other well maintained outbuildings add to the convenience of this operation. This 181 acre farm contains approximately 50 acres of tillable river bottom land, 22 acres of hardwoods and the remainder in hayfields and pasture. Surrounded by the Blue Ridge mountains with the South River flowing through the property, this quality location is at a sacrifice price of $475,000.

960 ACRE FARM/ESTATE
(Great Potato Soils)

Located in Berks, Lehigh and Montgomery Counties, PA

A rare opportunity to own a beautiful private valley. Formerly the world class Masten Potato Farm, the land consists of level to gently rolling fields, and a beautiful stream valley with water for irrigation. The buildings feature an exceptional circa 1730 Stone House with six bedrooms and four huge fireplaces with a quaint entryway to the grounds, passing between the gate house and the stone bank barn and over two stone bridges to the Farm House. There is also a large Federal brick farm house. In total there are eight farm houses six of which are stone, two large stone bank barns and grain storage for 70,000 bushels. This farm has excellent potential for a potato farm or an equestrian estate. Call for a brochure on this and our other fine farms and estates.

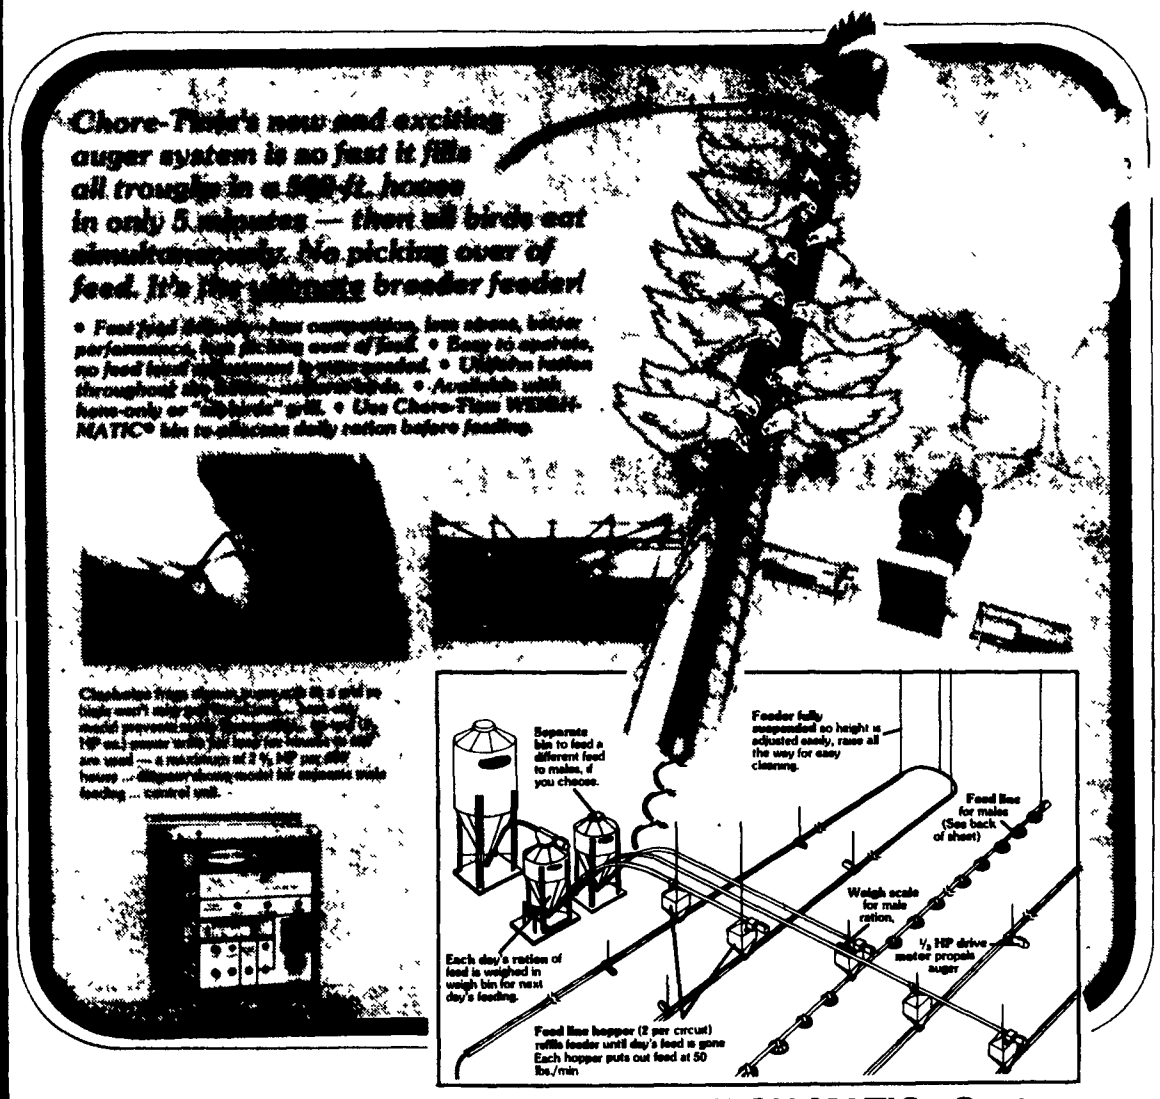
New breeder house designed & constructed by Northeast Agri Systems, Inc. featuring: Brown-out fan sheds & inlets

● CHORE-TIME® ULTRAFLO®
The feeder that has taken over the caged layer industry

● CHORE-TIME® 24" FANS

● VAL FLOOR WATERING SYSTEMS



Chore-Time's new and exciting auger system is so fast it fills all troughs in a 400-ft. house in only 5 minutes — then all birds eat simultaneously. No picking over of feed. It's the ultimate breeder feeder!
Separate bin to feed a different feed to males, if you choose.
Feed line for males (See back of sheet)
Weigh scale for male ration.
½ HP drive motor propels auger
Each day's ration of feed is weighed in weigh bin for next day's feeding.
Feed line hopper (2 per circuit) refills feeder until day's feed is gone. Each hopper puts out feed at 50 lbs./min

Chore-Time WEIGH-MATIC® System

● Coolair® NBF, 36" Fans with belt tighteners

● Colony style with automatic egg gathering

● BURCH cooler with Built-in heater

Woodlot Workshop Offers Management Options

DAVID HIEBERT
Westmoreland Co. Correspondent

GREENSBURGH (Westmoreland Co.) — An evening workshop on woodlot management drew about 55 registrants to the Mountain View Inn here recently.

Recent increases in both the value of timber and stories of timber sales where owners may not have gotten fair value for their trees is prompting closer management of timber, according to Anthony Quadro, Westmoreland Conservation District forester.

Sales of 100,000 board feet are common. Prices may go as high as $500 per thousand, making the total sale a significant amount.

Participants at the workshop heard four speakers.

- Anthony Quadro, forester/resource specialist for Westmoreland Conservation District, Greensburg - moderator
- Tom Fitzgerald, Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry

James C. Finley of Penn State's School of Forest Resources suggested that the concept of renewal is at the heart of any management plan.

Anthony Quadro, forest resource specialist for the Westmoreland Conservation District, discussed state regulations in a timber sale.

- Jim Finley, Peen State School of Forest Resources, University Park
- Ronald Rohall, a private sonculting forester, Ligonier.

Tom Fitzgerald's slide show and lecture grew out of his many years of experience in the forest service. Giving a brief history of logging in Penn's woods, he pointed out that in the founding documents of the commonwealth, William Penn gave provisions for preserving a portion of the land in trees.

As the needs of a growing nation in the late 1800s strained nature's capacity to produce, we were losing about 1,000 acres of Pennsylvania forest a year, he said. At its lowest point, only 30 percent of the state's land was wooded. Today nearly 60 percent of our Pennsylvania land is forested. However, management of that forest is a real concern, since about two thirds of it is in private ownership.

According to Fitzgerald, the state's original concern in forestry management was fire detection and prevention. At one point the state also attempted to reforest areas by tree planting. The trend now is to let the forest regenerate itself.

"The state has learned that Mother Nature plants trees, too," he said. That has led the forest service to seek realistic plans that work with, rather than against, nature, he concluded.

Jim Finley from Penn State's school of forest resources promoted the idea that most of our forests need to be managed as an even aged timber. "The stand structure of most Pennsylvania forest areas are aged within a plus or minus 10 percent." To manage such an even-aged stand requires a different strategy than an uneven-aged forest.

The diameter of a tree is not a good indication of its age, he asserted. Height is a better indication. In planning a timber harvest, Jim suggested that the owner/manager should give the timberland's best trees the opportunity to reseed the forest for the next harvest. By observing and aiding the natural selection process, he implied that the next harvest would be better and come sooner.

Ron Rohall, Ligonier, is one of the private consulting foresters on the commonwealth's recommended list. In his role as consultant, Ron is a person who can help manage a timber sale for a landowner. He said that the owner's long-term goals are the highest factor in guiding a consulting forester. With no connection to logging, or government, the consultant makes initial contacts with loggers, draws up a contract, and conducts a bidding process.

The consultant is there to help the logger know what is expected, prevent problems from getting out of hand, and following through on details that might slip past an owner. Fees for the consultant are usually based on a percentage of the sale.

During the seminar, several current practices were criticized as counterproductive or even harmful by several speakers. Some of these include:

- Minimum diameter cutting. To take out all the trees above 12 or 14 inches is pure gravy for the logger, said one speaker. And you are taking out the best genes for the next generation of forest, said another.
- Grazing cattle, sheep or goats in a forest or woodlot. Creates too many problems to enumerate, said one speaker.
- Lack of a plan for erosion control. Every logging operation should have a specific plan, including runoff diversions on sloping roads and runoff control into streams.

Getting professional help. This might come through the unpaid contacts with the forest service or a private forester if needed when considering a sale.

Talk with your neighbors about their experiences can prepare you before a timber sale.

Have a plan that includes the future.

Cold Weather May Help Control Pine Beetle

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Although much attention has been paid this year to the wiinter weather's negative effects on forest and ornamental trees, the extreme cold may have helped destroy populations of southern pine beetle on the Eastern Shore and in Western Maryland.

"In 1993, there was an extensive outbreak of the southern pine beetle on the lower Eastern Shore. Close to 3,000 acres of loblolly pine forest were infested and killed by the beetle last summer and fall. We are particularly aware of southern pine beetle because every year it causes millions of dollars of losses in pulpwood and sawtimber throughout the southeast," said Dr. Robert Rabaglia, Maryland Department of Agriculture forest entomologist.

The tiny adult beetles bore holes through the bark of pine trees and tunnel between the bark and wood. Healthy trees will "pitch" them out of the holes, but trees weakened by a hot dry spring cannot.

The female lays eggs in her tunne and tiny grubs hatch and feed on the inner bark. The grubs become adult beetles, tunnel out through the bark, and attach other trees. Small populations of southern pine beetles often live in weakened or dying trees in generally healthy forests and only become a problem after a warm winter or dry spring.

"The southern pine beetle, as its name implies, is a southern insect that occurs from Texas north to southern Maryland and Delaware. While the beetles are able to withstand the 'normal' winter temperatures that occur on the Eastern Shore, the extreme cold this winter may have 'frozen' many of the beetles," Rabaglia said.

Several days of near zero degree temperatures can kill the southern pine beetle eggs and young grubs that live in the moist area between the bark and wood. A survey of infected trees on the Eastern Shore conducted early this spring by the Maryland Department of Agriculture found nearly 100 percent mortality of the young grubs.

"Unfortunately, the more mature grubs living in the dryer outer bark, or those protected by the insulation of thick bark, may have survived, so the news isn't all good," said Rabaglia.

Previous outbreaks in Maryland and the southern Appalachians have reportedly declined after unusually cold winters. Temperatures this winter on the lower Eastern Shore bottomed out near minus four degrees Farenheit and remained near ten degrees Faren heit for over 24 hours, a combination which should significantly reduce populations of the beetles this spring.

In western Maryalnd, where there were several small, localized beetle infestations in Allegany and Washington counties in 1993, January's near minus 20 degree temperatures should certainly affect beetle populations this spring.

"Although beetle populations may be low this spring and early summer, southern pine beetles have a high reproductive capacity. By late summer, beetle populations could be back to high levels again. If spring and summer conditions remain cool and wet, trees should be able to defend themselves against the low spring population, but only time will tell us how they will fare this fall," Rabaglia said.

Grange Enters Statewide Deaf Awareness Campaign

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange is participating in the first statewide effort between public and private agencies to raise awareness about deafness and hearing loss.

"Ring the Bell for Better Hearing" is the theme of the campaign that has brought the Grange and other private organizations together with state government to raise awareness and mark May as Better Hearing and Speech Month.

"Pennsylvania must enhance its efforts to make all citizens aware of hearing loss and to improve resources to persons who are deaf or hard of hearing," said Denise M. Brownlee, deputy secretary, Department of Labor and Industry. "Hearing loss affects almost one million Pennsylvanians and impacts upon their families and often the jobs of those affected.

In addition, the Grange will take part in helping to distribute material to more than 200 libraries, malls, businesses, and senior citizen centers.

The campaign will also reach schools where posters, brochures, coloring books, posters, and essay contests are planned to be held.

The State Grange, according to Mary Jo Wojton, deaf activities director, held its annual essay and poster contests and prizes were awarded to the winners.

Wojton said the Grangé has been active in deaf awareness since 1971 when the National Grange chose it as a national health care project.

There is still a need for deaf and hearing loss awareness, according to Wojton.

In 1971, between 3-4 million people had suffered hearing loss, but that number has increased 10-fold. Between 36-42 million people today have hearing loss, Wojton said.

That's one reason why the Grange is participating in this campaign.

Teresa A. Nellans, assistant director, Office for the Deaf and Hearing Impaired for the Department of Labor and Industry, has been partially deaf since the age of 12 after contacting the measles. Nellans is administering the program at the state level.

Nellans delivered an impassioned appeal at the pressconference for the hearing world to better communicate with those who are deaf or hard of hearing.

"Because communication involves all people — not only those with a disability — it is important that those who hear well learn how to change their communication behavior so people with hearing loss are not excluded," Nellans said. "This campaign tells people that hearing loss is not something to be ashamed or embarrassed about.

"Together we can overcome the barriers to communication," Nellans said.

Wojton gave credit to the Pennsylvania State Grange for making deaf activities a community service project and for providing her an opportunity to serve as the organization's deaf activities director.

"When I became involved with deaf activities with the Pennsylvania State Grange, it was as a non-Grange parent of deaf children," Wojton said. "The Grange has always supported our work in deaf activities.

Events Highlight Link Between Research, Extension

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension will hold educational events for state legislators.

The events are part of a statewide effort by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and Penn State Cooperative Extension to illustrate the link between research at the university and effective educational programs delivered at the local level through cooperative extension.

"Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences truly is more than you think," said Dr. Lamartine F. Hood, dean of the college. "Only cooperative extension, with offices in each of Pennsylvania's 67 counties, can provide research-based education programs across the state. These county events are designed to showcase the breadth of those programs and their importance to people's lives."

Across the commonwealth, 45 county or multicounty meetings are planned, each tailored to provide information about local issues and concerns. Penn State faculty and staff members from the University Park Campus and hundreds of cooperative extension educators statewide will participate.

In preparation for the events, Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences has produced a series of 27 brochures that discuss some of the college's most successful research efforts and related cooperative extension programs.

The college also has produced a short video describing programs for Pennsylvania's youth at risk. Both the brochures and the video will be available after the event for people seeking more information about these programs.

To learn more about activities in your region, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — 7H4750 Plushanski Thor Victory-ET *TL, a young sire bred by Charles Plushanski of Kutztown, Pa., has been chosen to enter Select Sires' Program for Genetic Advancement (PGA) sire sampling system.

Based on his outstanding pedigree, 7H4750 has been selected as one of 200 Holstein bulls from throughout the United States to enter the program in 1994.

The dam is scored Very Good (87-EX-MS) and is a high solids milk producer, evident by her 31,848M, 1174P, and 3.7%P 2-year-old record. The second dam is a Big Al daughter with 31,020M and 1,066P as a 4-year-old.

Wholesale Market Opens

CHELTENHAM, Md. — The Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market is open for the 1994 season.

Three wholesale auctions have been held, primarily featuring bedding plants. The next scheduled auction is Thursday, June 2 at 7 p.m.

According to manager Prunty, the market plans to hold auctions every Thursday evening in June to allow growers a sales outlet for early crops and plants. Additional sale days will be added in July as the supply of fresh, local produce increases.

The market's peak season schedule will be Monday and Thursday evening sales at 7 p.m. and Wednesday and Friday morning sales at 11 a.m. As in previous years, a price report on each auction can be heard by calling (800) 638-2207.

The June 2 wholesale auction is expected to feature spring onions, greens, bedding plants, perennials, patio tomato plants, and other spring items. Interested sellers and buyers can call Regina at (800) 533-3276 for more information.

In addition to the wholesale auction, the retail market is featuring bedding plants Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

How Does 'Clean And Green' Act Affect Taxes?

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — To help preserve farmland, Pennsylvania's Clean and Green law lets farmers pay taxes on the agricultural value of their land instead of its higher development value. But it also cuts local tax revenues, said a Penn State researcher.

"Some of Pennsylvania's best farmland is at risk of development," said Dr. Tim Kelsey, assistant professor of agricultural economics. "Act 319, also known as Clean and Green, was enacted in 1974 to help farmers keep real property taxes in line with their income. Even if farmland is not physically affected by neighboring developments, higher property values mean higher taxes."

Kelsey calculated tax revenues lost because of Clean and Green as well as millage rate increases necessary to offset these losses using data on participation in the act in 1991. That year, 45 of the state's 67 counties had participants. More than 42,000 people and more than 3.7 million acres were enrolled in the program.

"The average county government with Clean and Green participants lost 3.5 percent of its real property tax revenue and 1.2 percent of its total revenue because of the program," Kelsey said. "These impacts varied dramatically across counties, municipalities and school districts.

"Fulton County, for example, lost a larger share of its total revenue — 8.9 percent — than any other county, even though it is under less development pressure than many counties," said Kelsey.

"On average, county millage rates would have risen 0.51 mills, and municipal millage rates would have risen 0.26 mills," Kelsey said. "School district millage rates also would have risen because of Clean and Green. This means the average owner of a house with a market value of $50,000 located in a county with Clean and Green participants pays an additional $38.12 in local property taxes each year."

Clean and Green seems to impose a large burden in certain areas, but are these unfair? The jury is still out. "Some people argue that the real property tax is unfair to farmers," Kelsey said. "Farmers at all income levels generally pay around 10 percent of their household income on real property taxes, while nonfarm households pay a smaller and smaller share as their income rises. Programs like Clean and Green help to correct that."

Raising taxes to make up for these losses shifts the burden from participating farmers onto other taxpayers. "How these costs are distributed may be more unfair than the size of the costs themselves," Kelsey said. "Some communities suffer large impacts even though they are under little development pressure.

"People living in Clean and Green communities pay the program's costs, even though all taxpayers benefit from the program. Other states with similar programs shift the costs from local taxing districts onto the state's income tax base. Pennsylvania currently does not do this, so rural residents pay a disproportionate share of the program's costs."

Preserving farmland might be worth the cost, but the benefits are hard to measure accurately, and there is no consensus on how effective programs like Clean and Green are in preserving farmland, Kelsey said.

A new publication from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences explores this issue in more detail. For a free copy of "Farmland Preservation in Pennsylvania: The Impact of 'Clean and Green' on Local Governments and Taxpayers," Extension Circular 411, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

Lackawanna County To Join Farmland Protection Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board has approved easement purchases for six farms in four counties, including the first easement purchase in Lackawanna County.

As a result of the Board's action, 605 acres of prime farmland were protected from development in Columbia, Erie, York, and Lackawanna counties.

"We're very pleased to have Lackawanna County as a part of the Farmland Protection Program," said State Agriculture Secretary and Board Chairman Boyd E. Wolff. "There are some good farms in that county that are being threatened by development."

Under the Farmland Protection Program, which began in 1989, the state and counties purchase development rights to guarantee that their farms will remain as agricultural land. Individual landowners apply to county Agricultural Land Preservation Boards.

If approved for possible easement purchase, the county boards may request state funding participation. Counties may participate jointly with the state in easement purchases or may purchase easements outright themselves.

Following are the properties approved, listed by county, owner, township, acreage and purchase cost:

- Columbia — Gene C. Miller, Locust Township, 103 acres, $96, 274.
- Erie — Lee E. and Mary E. Payne, Elk Creek Township, 92 acres, $83,095.
- Erie — Kenneth N. and Shirley J. Rogers, Elk Creek Township, 45 acres, $40,662.
- Erie — Jackson J., Margaret A., Douglas H., and Catherine J. Yost, Venango Township, 161 acres, $112,788.
- Lackawanna — Floyd and Rita Thomas, Madison Township, 31 acres, $49,628.
- York — willard and Ina Kilgore, Lower Chanceford Township, 173 acres, $172,048.

You'll get aggressive weeding in a wide range of crops and field conditions with a 6-row Case International 183 cultivator. Its precision ground tools penetrate to preselected depths for thorough cultivation without sway, wobble, or sidehill drift.

Choose Vibra Shank® tooling for pulverizing clods and knocking out weeds in rough field conditions. Or you can use Vibra Tine® tooling with S-shaped spring teeth for smaller weeds or lighter soil conditions at high speed, close cultivation of young seedlings.

For a rugged, reliable cultivator that wastes weeds season after season, come see us for a Case International 183 cultivator.

case IH made the BEST COMBINE BETTER!

The ROTOR is still the HEART of the AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE but check out these changes in the NEW MODELS...

- MORE HORSEPOWER...
  The 1644 has more engine HP than the model 1460 manufactured up to 1985... and the 1666 has more engine HP than the model 1480 manufactured up to 1985...

MODEL	HORSEPOWER
1644	- 180
1666	- 215
1688	- 260

- LONGER SIEVES...
  Both the chaffer and shoe sieves are 13" longer than previous models increasing the cleaning area by 25.9%...

- CROSS FLOW FAN...
  Patented chevron design moves air evenly over the entire sieve surface giving excellent grain quality in all kinds of crops...

- FIELD TRACKER...
  Permits the header to follow ground contours, independent of the combine by automatically tilting from side to side in response to terrain changes...

GARRETT IS BIG ON AG TURBOS

PLOW BIG SAVINGS ON GENUINE GARRETT TURBOS

Don't miss this opportunity to plow some big savings on Genuine Garrett Factory Remanufactured turbochargers. Your Authorized Garrett Distributor Penn Diesel Service should have a turbocharger or cartridge that fits your tractor, combine, or other farm equipment. If it's a turbocharged Ag engine, there's most likely a Garrett turbo on it. Look at the following list of OE's. There's a reason why they specify Garrett turbochargers for their engines.

- Allis Chalmers
- Deutz Allis
- Fiat Allis
- Ford
- International Harvester
- J I Case
- John Deere
- Massey Ferguson
- Navistar
- Perkins

For those same reasons, when it's time for a replacement trubo, it's time for Genuine Garrett. ABC GROFF — BRILLION YIELD-ENHANCING TILLAGE TOOLS

BRILLION HIGH CLEARANCE, MINIMUM TILLAGE CULTIVATOR

Brillion's Ro-Crop Cultivators break up soil crust, mulch and churn the soil to retain moisture, and kill weeds without damaging young growing plants. The legendary "no wobble" parallel linkage provides extra strength and rigidity for high-speed cultivation with extreme precision.
The BRH Ro-Crop Cultivator features 25" clearance, giving you more days to cultivate and control weeds. Extra long gang frames offer optimum clearance for minimum tillage residue. Available in 4 to 12 rows.

Brillion SUPER SOIL BUILDERS

The SUPER SOIL BUILDER has an expanded frame — 139" front to back — with three ranks of chisel shanks for smooth and easy flow of residue through the machine. The SUPER SOIL BUILDER is self-leveling, regardless of working depth.
Other features include a 4"X4" square tube weighted frame with 20" diameter coulter slicer blades. The machine depth control hdraulic cylinder is equipped with an adjustable depth stop. Hydraulic hoses to the tractor are included.

The I & J Cultivator

CULTIVATORS: 3 point of horse drawn available in 1-2-3 or 4 rows can be used as a field cultivator with a few attachments. Great for vegetables. We can custom build. Options: rolling shields, disc hillers, liquid side dressers, row tracking system.

RAKES: available in ground drive or PTO steel wheels or rubber tires Features: forms a very fluffy windrow, can also be used as a windrow inverter. Does not rope hay. A real leaf saver.

Look at what makes the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace a great purchase...
CLEAN. All dirt, dust, fuel and fire is outside No chance of chimney fire or flue fire ELIMINATES AIR POLLUTION IN THE HOME. Smoke, fuel odors and other causes of allergies are outside the home.
SAFE FOR MOBILE HOMES. Eliminates danger that other furnaces contained in a mobile home can cause
NO DANGER OR EXPLOSION. This is a zero pressure furnace
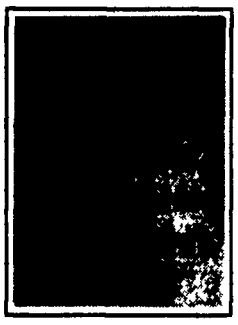
ENCLOSED COMPONENTS. The circulation pumps and electrical connections are enclosed in an insulated cabinet on the back of the Mahoning Outdoor Furnace.
ADAPTABLE. Install our furnace in any forced air heating or hot water system.

All Mahoning Units Come Installed with Grates Including An External Shaker Handle



★The only outdoor furnace made with a Catalytic Combustor.★

Mahoning Catalytic Combustor Will Help In the Following Ways:
1. Burn one cord of wood which equals 166 gallons of oil.
2. Your fuel source becomes enormous inexhaustible and poses few risks to public safety.
3. Over all efficiency of 85%, which means the heat no longer goes up the chimney!
4. You get more heat from a log compared to the non-cat. furnace.
5. More burn time - less reloading time!
6. Zap 90% of pollutants, made from fire source.
7. Saves you a lot of money!
8. User friendly, emits no smoke!

All Mahoning Multi-Fuels Can Burn Coal, Wood, Oil, Propane, Natural Gas

Proudly Built in Clearfield County, Pennsylvania

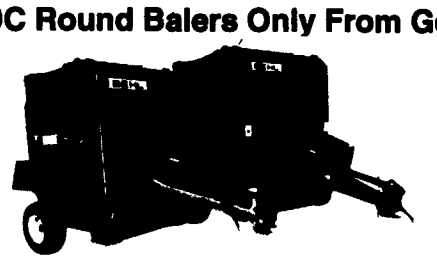
TDC Round Balers Only From Gehl



TDC-Total Density Control, is a patented "air-draulic bale" density system exclusively on Gehl round balers. This remarkable simple system allows you to vary bale density and core size to adapt to changing crop conditions-giving you the flexibility you need to make quality round bales. Both the 1870 and 1470 features texturized belts, constant velocity driveline, and the option manual or Auto-ElectricTwine-wrap.
STOP BY FOR A DEMONSTRATION TODAY!

DISC MOWER CONDITIONER

- High speed discs- Each disc has two knives.
- Sturdy frame-Cradles cutterbar for extra protection.
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch.
- Standard hydraulic tounge- Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat.

SQUARE BALERS

- Dependable knotter-Stonger knots, tie after tie.
- Wide pickups-Bring in the crops with close spaced tines, Flared side sheets, standard gauge wheel.
- Plunger system- Self- aligning for reduced wear.
- Bale tension- Easily adjusted with two handles.
- Hydraulic bale thrower-Self-contained hydraulic system.
- Big twine storage-Holds 6 balls of twine.

MOWER CONDITIONERS

- Full-width intermeshing conditioning rolls
- Simple sickle drive with pivot-arm design
- Fewer moving parts than competitive models
- Three-point flotation support protects the cutterbar
- Two models with 7 foot and 9 foot cutting widths available.

Efficiency Is Our Newest Resource

IXL Technology Is New, Different & Better

Modern lubricants are about as good as they are going to get. So IXL solves the problem of friction and wear by treating the metal itself.

Treated metal parts are smoother, tougher, heat and wear resistant. More importantly, the friction characteristic of the metal itself has been reduced by more than 70%! This allows lubricants to do their jobs better and last longer. Which means your equipment runs better and lasts longer—much longer; as much as two or three times the manufacturer's expected "normal" life!

IXL is nonflammable, biodegradable and nontoxic, IXL conditions the metal, not the oil. It does NOT contain graphite, moly or TFE.

HOW DOES IXL ANTI-FRICTION METAL TREATMENT ACTUALLY WORK?

Simply stated, IXL is a pressure treatment for steel. Picture iron or steel as a sponge soaking up IXL when heat and pressure are applied for a period of time. IXL is actually attracted to the heat and pressure found in your engine, transmission, differential, wheel bearings and other working parts of your vehicle. The more heat and pressure developed by these parts, the faster and deeper the treatment soaks into them.

Used as directed, the IXL treatment is longlasting and there's no resin coating or bonded film which can peel or rub off; just bare metal with IXL soaked into it. There's no buildup on the metal surfaces and no change of tolerances. The treatment even remains effective if the metal is heated red hot—way beyond the point where your lubricants have failed.

Friction created by the working parts of your vehicle is always wearing away at the metal surfaces. After treatment with IXL the friction of these surfaces is reduced by 70% or more providing "bare metal" protection and allowing your lubricants to do their jobs much more efficiently. Since friction and wear are a continuous process, we recommend (based on actual use) that you always use a little more IXL when adding or changing oil. As a result, friction and wear are always kept at a minimum. And the metal parts continue to be treated while they do their work.

HIGH PERFORMANCE LOW HASSLES

The high performance of the Model 790 forage harvester starts with the massive 12-knife cutterhead. It delivers a fine, uniform chop for high quality feed. The "790" is built tough to keep chopping season after season. And routine maintenance is easy to keep hassles to a minimum. Stop in and see for yourself.

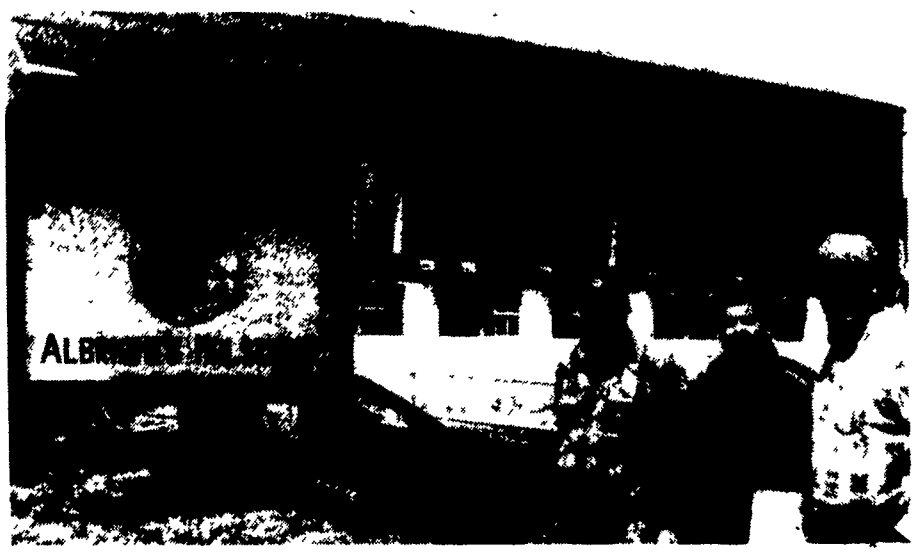
OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCE ON PURINA

Ralph and his brother Dean Albright own and operate ALRADA FARMS in Landisburg, PA. Along with their sons, they milk approximately 200 cows at two dairy farms, and merchandise thousands of dairy animals nationwide each year.

The feeding program at Ralph's consists of Corn Silage, Hay, Haylage, High Moisture Corn, and a custom concentrate formulated by Mark Kreider of Kreider's Mill containing PURINA 38% and PURINA SUPER-EXT 24%

Prior to Feb 1993, Ralph fed a mineral premix with soy, distillers, and roasted beans. High feed costs prompted Ralph to enlist Mark Kreider's help with the ration.



Ralph Albright, Mark Kreider, Joe Albright

Since Ralph changed his program his comments are:

"Cows Are Up In Production."

STARTED ON PURINA

"Feed Costs Are Lower." and "Cows Love The Feed"

PURINA MILLS and KREIDER'S MILL would like to thank Ralph for sharing his records, and wish him continued success in the future

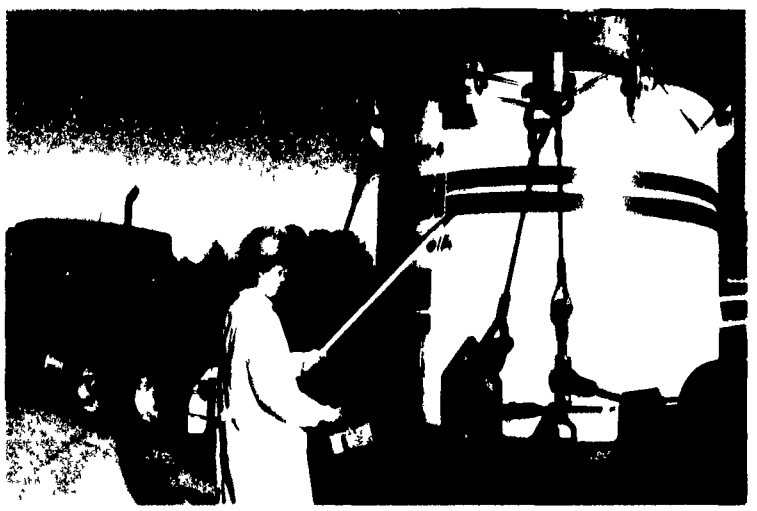
PROTECTING PENNSYLVANIA

SAFE MANAGEMENT OF LOW-LEVEL RADIOACTIVE WASTE



WHY THIS BROCHURE?

Pennsylvania citizens have been a part of the Commonwealth's low-level radioactive waste regulatory program since the mid-1980s. The low-level waste law and regulations contain some of the most stringent and unique requirements in the country and reflect the Commonwealth's commitment to address citizen needs and concerns. The broadest public involvement in the regulatory program will achieve the best results. Read on to learn how you can be involved. Addresses and phone numbers for further information are listed on the last page of this brochure.

Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources
Bureau of Radiation Protection

Robert P. Casey, Governor
Arthur A. Davis, Secretary

A Message From Secretary Davis

Federal law makes each state responsible for the disposal of low-level radioactive wastes generated within its borders. To fulfill this responsibility, state law directs the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources (DER) to see that a new disposal facility is built. Accordingly, DER has hired a private company (Chem-Nuclear Systems, Inc.) to site, develop, and operate one low-level radioactive waste disposal facility in the Commonwealth, which will operate for 30 years. DER oversees and regulates all of Chem-Nuclear's activities.

State law also charges DER with making sure low-level radioactive wastes are managed in a way that protects public health and the environment. Pennsylvania's regulations, developed with extensive public input, contain some of the most stringent and unique requirements in the country. The regulations specify an open site selection process, engineered barriers, extensive environmental monitoring, and local control of operations.

A statewide screening process is underway to identify potentially suitable sites. To date, approximately 75% of the state has been eliminated from further consideration as a potential site for the low-level radioactive waste disposal facility. In early 1995, three potentially suitable sites for the low-level radioactive waste disposal facility will be recommended for further study

DER recognizes that the siting of a disposal facility may raise concerns among the residents of the potential host community. This brochure is being distributed statewide to provide basic information on what low-level radioactive waste is and how the disposal facility will be sited, designed, operated, and regulated to ensure the safe management of low-level radioactive wastes.

I urge you to learn more about the program for safe low-level radioactive waste management We believe that the best location for this facility is a site that meets stringent technical requirements within a community that is familiar with the facility's operation and commitment to long-term safety. Please work with us to make that happen.

Sincerely,

ARTHUR A. DAVIS
Secretary, Department of Environmental Resources

A National Perspective...

Pennsylvania is one of the largest generators of low-level radioactive waste in the country. Currently, all of Pennsylvania's low-level waste goes to one facility in South Carolina.

Pennsylvania will develop one new disposal facility to safely manage this waste.

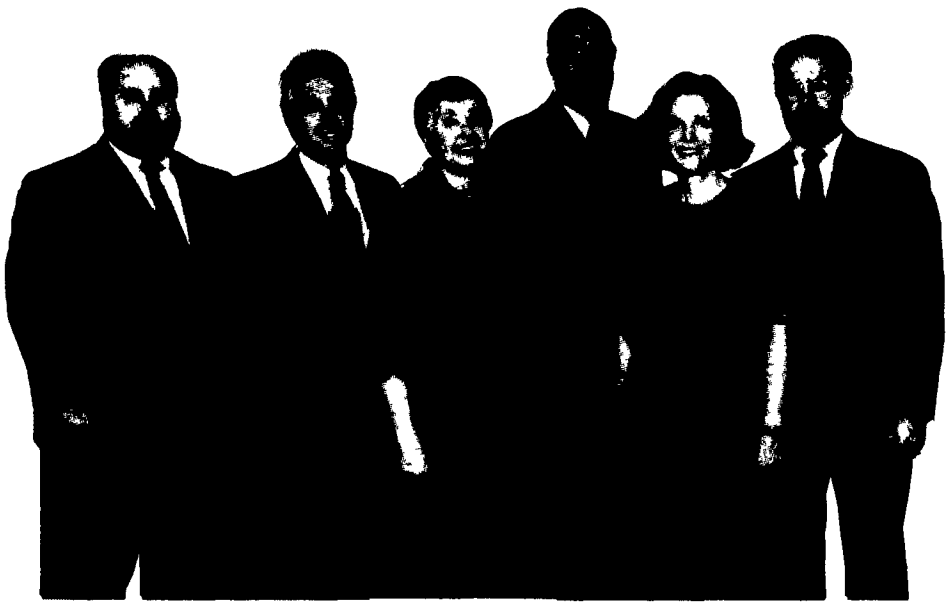
MEET THE PARTICIPANTS



Left to right Marc Tenan, Executive Director of the Appalachian States Low-Level Radioactive Waste Commission, William Dornsife, Director of DER's Bureau of Radiation Protection, Charlotte Glauser, Former Chair of DER's Low-Level Waste Advisory Committee; Michael Murphy, head of DER's low-level waste regulatory unit; Catherine Cowan, DER's Deputy Secretary for Air and Waste Management, Steve Jones, DER's low-level waste section chief*

* Mr Leonard Hess was elected Chair of DER's Low-Level Waste Advisory Committee on January 24, 1994

It takes a strong, capable team to safely manage low-level radioactive waste. Key to the team are members of t Department of Environmental Resources' (DER) Low-Level Radioactive Waste Regulatory Program. Sta law directs DER to oversee, license, and regulate the private disposal facility operator. DER regulatory tea members — health physicists, engineers, geologists — must be satisfied that the facility will be safe before a operating license is issued. Chem-Nuclear Systems, Inc. (Chem-Nuclear), the private firm that is developing th low-level waste disposal facility, must obtain a license from DER before building and operating the facility

The Environmental Quality Board maintains an independent evaluation role and must formally approv potentially suitable disposal facility sites proposed by Chem-Nuclear before the firm can proceed to study ther in detail. The board has 21 members, including citizens, representatives of the General Assembly, an representatives of 12 Commonwealth agencies. The board will hold public meetings and public hearings t obtain public comments before reaching a decision on the potential disposal sites.

Additional citizen involvement in the DER program is ensured through the active participation of the 23 member DER Low-Level Waste Advisory Committee. Representing government, industry, and civic and special interest groups, the committee has helped DER to develop strong regulations, evaluate and selec Chem-Nuclear, and oversee Chem-Nuclear's work.

Pennsylvania is the host state for the disposal facility to meet the disposal needs of four states. Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia join Pennsylvania in the Appalachian States Compact. By far the largest generator of low-level waste in the group, Pennsylvania must host the first disposal facility. Because of its lead role, Pennsylvania chairs the Appalachian States Low-Level Radioactive Waste Commission and it has two extra commission members. Once a site is selected, a host municipality representative will be appointed to the Commission by the Governor.

"Pennsylvania has the toughest law and regulations in the United States, due principally to active public participation."

- Leonard Hess, Chair, DER Low-Level Waste Advisory Committee

What is Low-Level Radioactive Waste?

Source: Appalachian Compact Users of Radioactive Isotopes.

Low-level radioactive wastes include ordinary materials that have become contaminated with radioactivity. Gloves, clothing, and trash can be contaminated. Resin beads, like those used in water softeners, remove radioactive contamination from cooling water at nuclear power plants. Nuclear reactor components, mechanical parts, tools, and equipment become contaminated during routine use. These materials must be disposed of as low-level waste.

Low-level radioactive wastes come from the generation of electrical energy, from industries that use radioactive materials to make their products, and from medical treatment and research. Low-level radioactive waste does not include high-level radioactive wastes such as fuel rods from nuclear power plants or highly radioactive wastes from weapons production. High-level radioactive wastes are a federal responsibility and will not be accepted at Pennsylvania's facility.

All radioactive materials "decay" or lose their radioactivity over time. Low-level radioactive wastes are classified according to the amounts of radioactive materials they contain and the length of time those materials remain radioactive

Low-level wastes may potentially remain radioactive for hundreds of years and must be properly managed and disposed of in secure disposal facilities. According to federal and state regulations, the disposal facility in Pennsylvania must be designed to keep radioactive materials isolated from people and the environment for 500 years.

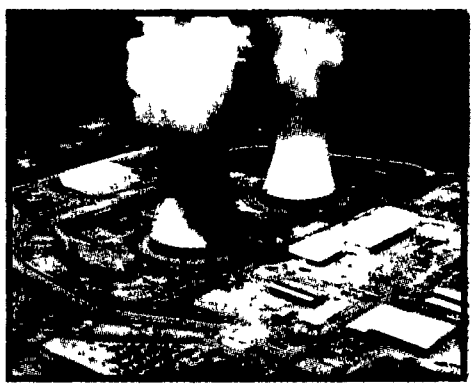
Where Does Radioactive Waste Come From?

There are more than 1,000 licensed users of radioactive materials in Pennsylvania. Each year, about 120 of them generate radioactive waste requiring disposal.



Source: Pennsylvania Power & Light Co.

Power Production

Nuclear power plants generate electricity for homes, schools, offices, and factories. Nuclear power plants generate between 35% and 37% of the electricity consumed in the state each year. As a result of frequent power exchange among utilities, most Pennsylvania citizens use electricity generated by nuclear power during the course of the year. Pennsylvania has 10 existing (nine operating) commercial nuclear reactors in five locations.

Medicine

Doctors routinely use radioactive materials to diagnose and treat disease. Radioactive materials are used to scan organs and follow blood flow through the body (images of the blood vessels of the heart muscle are illustrated in the photo to the right). Radioactive materials also contribute to the healing process, particularly in the treatment of cancer.

Consumer Products

Radioactive materials are used to produce a variety of consumer goods, ranging from smoke detectors to luminous exit signs. Radioactive materials are also used to check for cracks in metal pipes, bridges, and jet engines.

Research

Research laboratories involved in the study of disease and the development and testing of new medicines use radioactive materials, as do industries that manufacture radiopharmaceuticals and radiochemicals. In the field of environmental science, radioactive tracers are used to determine the effect of pollutants on plant life.

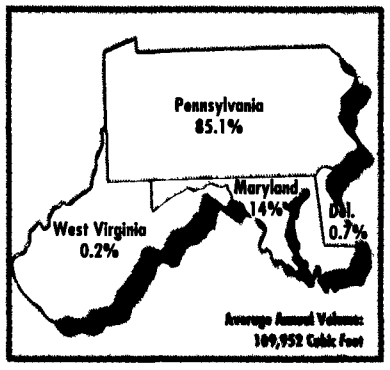
Why PA?

Federal law makes each state responsible for disposal of low-level waste generated within its borders. The law provides a key incentive for development of regional facilities: states that join compacts can ban out-of-compact waste.

LOW-LEVEL WASTE GENERATION–APPALACHIAN STATES COMPACT



Source: EG&G MIMS Database

Pennsylvania joined with the states of Delaware, Maryland, and West Virginia to form the Appalachian States Compact. Between 1987 and 1992, an annual average of 169,952 cubic feet of low-level radioactive waste was generated in the Appalachian Compact states. The percentage generated by each state in the compact is shown in the map above. Pennsylvania is by far the largest generator in the compact. For this reason, Pennsylvania is the first host state in the compact and it has the lead role in providing for safe management and disposal of low-level waste generated in the four states in the compact.

There are two existing disposal facilities for commercial low-level radioactive waste in the country. The facility operated by U.S. Ecology in Hanford, Washington, is no longer available to generators in the Appalachian Compact. Chem-Nuclear's facility in Barnwell, South Carolina, currently accepts waste from the Appalachian Compact region under an access agreement. This agreement expires on June 30, 1994, and is not expected to be extended. Because Pennsylvania's facility will not be in operation until mid-1999, generators will have to store their wastes for approximately five years.

Safe Management

Pennsylvania's Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management and Disposal Regulations (25 PA Code Chapter 236) contain the most stringent requirements in the country and reflect citizen priorities for safety, monitoring, and fairness.

Safe disposal of low-level waste requires isolating it from the environment. Over time, radioactive decay will eliminate the radioactive hazards (see box, below right). To achieve the goal of long-term isolation, a combination of natural and man-made safeguards is required, as described below.

SITING - WHAT MAKES A SITE SAFE?

The natural features of the site must work with the disposal facility to isolate low-level waste from the environment. Pennsylvania's regulations contain technical requirements to select a suitable site. For example, a suitable site must not be located in floodplains, near water supplies, or in poorly drained areas. The site must not be susceptible to landslides or severe erosion and must not have extreme slopes. Natural resources — such as national and state parks, historic sites, oil and gas wells, and special agricultural lands — must also be avoided. DER oversees the applicant's (Chem-Nuclear's) siting activities.

Identifying a suitable site for low-level waste disposal will occur in two steps. During the first step, the applicant will analyze the entire state and recommend three sites for Environmental Quality Board approval for further detailed studies.

In order to grant approval for further studies, the Environmental Quality Board must determine that the three sites meet the regulations The Board also must review the record and determine that the siting process identified three of the best sites The record consists of the applicant's information, public comments, public hearing testimony, and DER comments and recommendations.

The second siting step begins when the Environmental Quality Board approves the three sites for further studies. The applicant will conduct site characterization studies. These studies are expected to take a year or longer. Especially important is the collection of information that may vary with the seasons — such as weather and groundwater levels. From the three sites, the applicant will select one site as the preferred location.

The applicant's preferred site will be identified in its license application submitted to DER. The license application will undergo stringent technical evaluation and broad public review before a licensing decision is made. DER's approval of the license application will indicate that the site meets the stringent technical requirements and can isolate the waste from the environment.

DESIGNED FOR SAFETY

Pennsylvania regulations require that an abovegrade disposal facility be designed and built to keep low-level wastes isolated from people and the environment for 500 years.

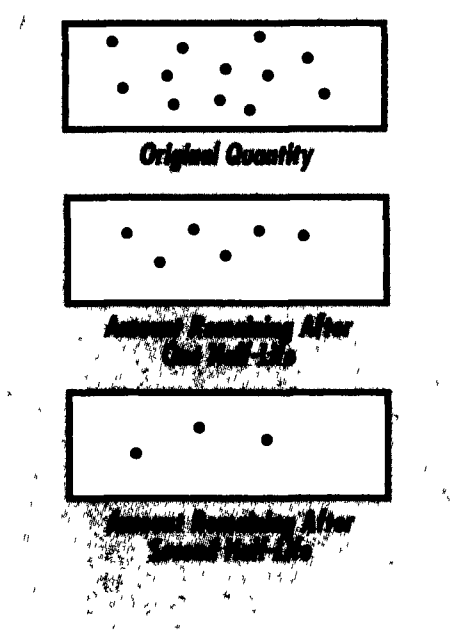
The design must work with the natural features of the site. It must handle the amounts and types of low-level waste that will be disposed over a 30-year operating period. As described on pages 5 and 6, the applicant's proposed design relies on layers of reinforced concrete and an engineered earthen cover to isolate the waste. Monitoring systems are required to verify acceptable operation. The design will allow waste to be recovered in the event a problem is discovered.

DER will review the final design during the license application review process. If the license is issued, construction of the facility will take approximately one year. DER inspectors will oversee facility construction.

"This is the most open to the public program I have seen during my 48 years in state environmental affairs."

- Oliver Smith, Former Chair, DER Low-Level Waste Advisory Committee

THE RADIOACTIVITY OF LOW-LEVEL RADIOACTIVE WASTE DECREASES OVER TIME



Facts About Radioactivity and Radionuclides

An atom that emits radioactivity is called a radionuclide The unit of measure for radioactivity is the curie, which is a measure of the intensity of radioactivity emitted from a radionuclide.

Over time, radionuclides lose their radioactivity through the process of radioactive decay. A half-life is the time it takes a radionuclide to lose half its radioactivity. The half-lives of radionuclides range from fractions of a second to millions of years, but the half-life of each radionuclide is precisely known. Most of the low-level wastes disposed at Pennsylvania's facility will contain radionuclides with half-lives of less than 30 years.

The level of risk associated with low-level waste depends on the types, concentrations, toxicity, and half-lives of the radionuclides the waste contains. All these variables form the basis of the low-level waste classification system, which determines the type and level of safeguards required.

nt and Disposal

REDUCING THE VOLUME, STABILIZING THE FORM

Both state and federal laws require generators to reduce the volume and toxicity of low-level wastes. Each low-level waste generator will be required to meet waste reduction goals to obtain a DER permit for disposal facility access. All low-level waste that is disposed must be in a solid, stable form and compressed tightly to eliminate empty space inside the package. DER will conduct inspections at generator facilities to verify that waste reduction, form, and packaging requirements are met before low-level waste is shipped for disposal.

The level of risk associated with low-level waste depends on the concentration, toxicity, and half-lives of the radionuclides it contains. These variables are the basis for the low-level waste classification system established in Pennsylvania regulations. This classification system specifies the types and concentrations of radionuclides that can be disposed as low-level waste.

Low-level radioactive waste is classified as Class A, B, or C. Most low-level waste is Class A, the least dangerous. It must be isolated from the environment for 100 years. Class B waste has more radioactivity and needs to be disposed of in packages that will maintain their size and shape for at least 300 years Class C waste contains higher concentrations of radioactivity than Class B waste and takes the longest to decay to safe levels, approximately 500 years. Class C waste must be specially packaged and stabilized, and disposed separately from the other waste classes disposed at the Pennsylvania facility.

Between 1987 and 1992, an annual average of 169,952 cubic feet of low-level waste, containing 111,804 curies of radioactivity, was generated in the Appalachian Compact. Class A waste accounted for 96% of the volume and 19% of the radioactivity. Class B represented about 3% of the volume and 6% of the radioactivity. Class C waste represented less than 1% of the total volume; however, Class C waste comprised nearly 75% of the radioactivity of low-level waste generated in the Appalachian Compact during this period.

During facility operation, DER, the host municipality, and the host county will have on-site inspectors responsible for inspecting waste packages received at the facility and inspecting the operations of the facility. The inspectors will have authority to refuse waste and shut down the facility if there is a threat to health and safety.

LONG-TERM CARE FOR THE HAZARDOUS LIFE OF THE WASTE

After 30 years of operation, the facility will be closed, according to a plan approved by DER. Chem-Nuclear, as the licensee, will decontaminate and dismantle the buildings, close and stabilize the disposal units, and continue to monitor the area. The licensee will remain on-site for at least five years after the facility is closed to ensure its stability. After this postclosure period, state law requires that control of the facility be turned over to a state custodial agency.

The state custodial agency will care for the site until the low-level waste decays to safe levels, which can be 500 years for a small portion of the waste. There will be a program of monitoring and maintenance as required to ensure safe containment of the radioactive waste. DER will continue to regulate activities at the disposal site.

To prove that long-term care is no longer needed, the custodial agency must demonstrate to DER that the waste has decayed to levels that allow unrestricted use of the site. To do so, the agency must show that unrestricted use of the site would not result in a radiation dose that is greater than the natural background radiation in the soil prior to site development.

Fast Fact

Between 1987 and 1992, an annual average of 144,099 cubic feet of low-level waste was generated in Pennsylvania. This compares to 27,000,000 cubic feet of municipal solid waste generated on an annual basis in Pennsylvania during this same period.

Benefits for the Host Community

Pennsylvania's law and regulations provide compensation for the host and affected municipalities, host county, and local residents.

Funds will be provided to police, fire, and ambulance services near the facility to handle possible emergencies, in addition to the emergency response services that are part of the facility operation.

Support for county emergency management planning, training, and central dispatch facilities also will be provided.

Funds also will be provided for:

- Payment of school and property taxes for residents living within two miles of the facility.
- Purchase of properties within two miles of the facility at presite values, on request.
- Direct payments to the host municipality in proportion to the amount and radioactivity of wastes accepted at the facility, with a guaranteed minimum payment.

The host municipality also will be able to negotiate additional benefits. These additional benefits could include preference for local hiring and purchasing, compensating services or payments, or other benefits to address specific needs of the local citizens.

FACILITY DESIGN AND MONITORING: HOW IT WORKS

THE GOAL: ZERO RELEASE OF RADIOACTIVITY

Pennsylvania law requires an engineered disposal facility be constructed on the ground surface. The regulatory goal is zero release of radioactivity. The applicant, Chem-Nuclear, plans to design and build waste disposal units that rely on four levels of protection:

- Waste in solid form, securely packaged
- Sealed concrete containers containing several waste packages
- Sealed abovegrade concrete disposal units
- Layered earthen cover over sealed disposal units

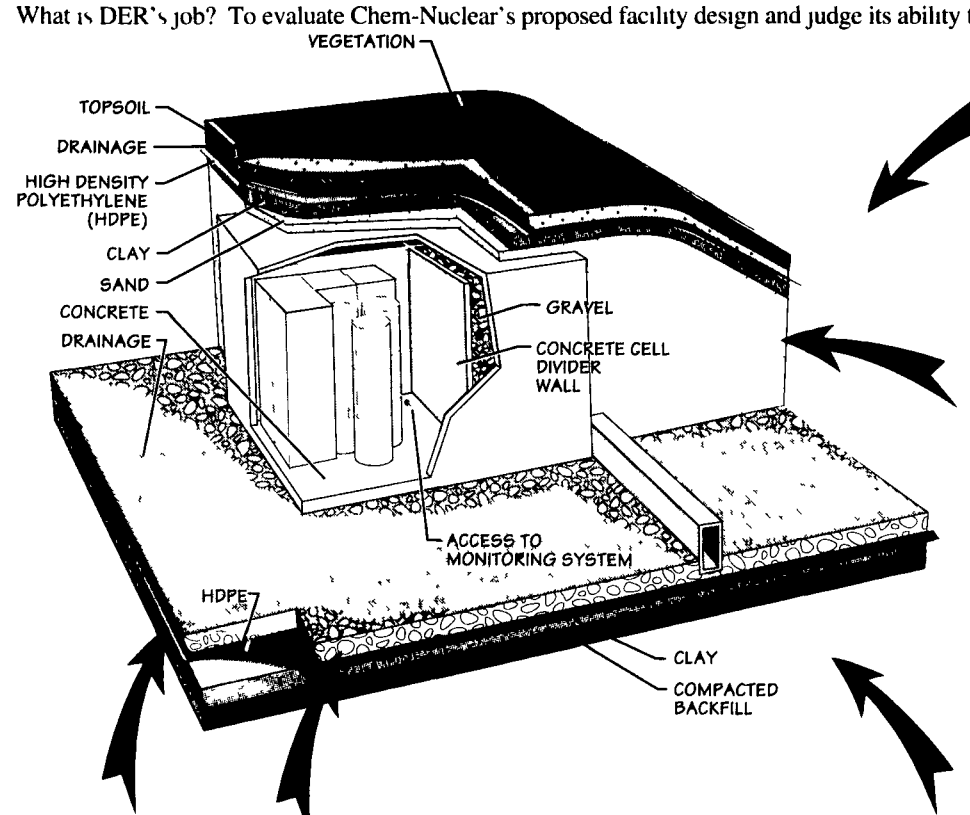
What is DER's job? To evaluate Chem-Nuclear's proposed facility design and judge its ability to isolate the waste.



DISPOSAL UNIT

The disposal unit is a thick-walled concrete structure with concrete floor, walls, and ceiling. This unit is built abovegrade. The concrete provides both structural stability and radiation shielding. Concrete overpacks (described below) are placed in the disposal units. After the disposal unit is filled, the spaces between overpacks will be filled and the unit will be sealed with concrete and covered with a multilayer earthen cover.

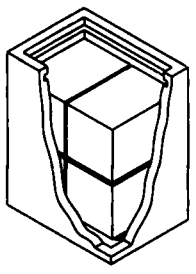
EARTHEN COVER

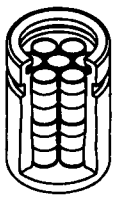
Keeping rain and snow off the completed disposal unit is important to maintaining the strength of the concrete. Chem-Nuclear must cover each completed disposal unit. Alternating layers of fast-draining materials and low-permeability soil will keep water from coming in contact with the concrete roofs of the disposal units. Grass or other vegetation will be planted on the top to help deflect rainfall and to prevent erosion of the final soil cover.

MONITORING GALLERY

An important part of the overall facility monitoring program will be built right into the disposal facility. A monitoring gallery will be installed beneath each disposal unit to detect any release of radioactive material. Each waste disposal unit will have a port that drains any outside water entering the unit into the monitoring gallery. Because of the multiple barriers, it is expected that the monitoring gallery will be dry. If there is any water passing through the disposal unit, it will be collected in the gallery and promptly tested. Corrective action, if necessary, will be taken immediately. Chem-Nuclear will be required to regularly inspect the gallery for any releases. DER and local inspectors also will have access to the monitoring gallery for inspection.

OVERPACK





Low-level wastes will arrive at the facility in drums, boxes, or casks. Before disposal, DER will require Chem-Nuclear to place the incoming waste packages into concrete "overpack" containers. Each overpack will hold several waste packages and will be sealed with concrete.

Source: Chem-Nuclear Systems, Inc

RECEIVING WASTE

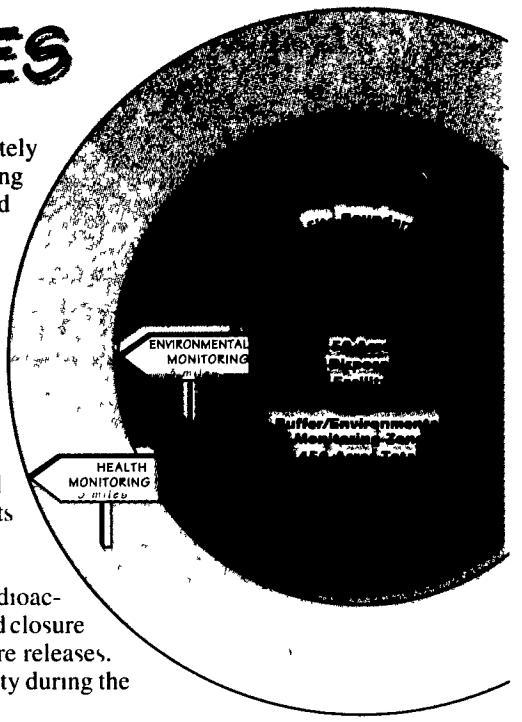
The licensee will be required to schedule incoming waste shipments in advance. As trucks enter the facility, they will be inspected and monitored. Inspection by DER on-site inspectors, local inspectors, and the licensee will confirm the waste volumes and types listed on the manifest. Inspectors will monitor all areas of the truck and shipment for radiation levels, as shown here, using sensitive monitoring instruments. Waste packaging will be inspected to enforce the requirement that the waste be dry and secure before it is loaded into the concrete overpacks.

Source: Chem-Nuclear Systems, Inc.

Fast Fact

The level of traffic to and from the low-level radioactive waste disposal facility will be low compared to truck traffic for a solid waste landfill. An average of two to three truckloads of low-level waste per day will arrive at the disposal facility. This contrasts with the dozens of truckloads of solid waste that arrive at a typical solid waste landfill each day.

ADDITIONAL ASSURANCES



Disposal of waste for the 30-year operating period is expected to require approximately 50 acres. The disposal facility will be located within a buffer/environmental monitoring zone of approximately 450 acres. The performance of the facility itself will be checked through the monitoring gallery and through evaluation of a test disposal unit. The test unit's stability and ability to contain the waste will be monitored for the entire disposal period.

Within the 450-acre buffer zone, DER will require the licensee to monitor the environment for the presence of released radioactive materials in samples of air, surface water, sediments, soil, plants, and groundwater. Permanent air and water sampling stations will operate at the site boundary. The environmental monitoring program will extend to areas three miles beyond the site boundary. Beyond that range, to the five-mile point, residents of the host municipality may request a medical evaluation for the presence of radioactivity in their bodies. Full disclosure of the results to those individuals is required.

Before the facility is licensed or constructed, the applicant must measure existing radioactivity to establish the environmental baseline. Monitoring during facility operation and closure will then confirm the safe performance of the disposal facility or indicate if there are releases. Monitoring also provides a basis for determining long-term performance of the facility during the postclosure care period.

LOCAL CONTROL OF FACILITY OPERATION

It is important that residents near the facility be familiar with the facility's operation and commitment to long-term safety. In addition to the stringent DER regulatory and inspection program, Pennsylvania law provides for direct local control over facility operation. In fact, local inspectors will have the authority to shut down the facility if there is a safety problem.

Waste disposal surcharges will be used to train local inspectors in environmental monitoring. Four full-time, trained on-site inspectors will be employed by the host community and county. Funding for these inspectors will come from the users of the facility. The inspectors will have independent access to all parts of the facility and all records. They will conduct independent monitoring and testing of facility performance. A written agreement between DER and the local and county governments will detail the authority of the local inspectors.

A local Environmental Advisory Council will serve as a monitoring and oversight body, receive all available information about the facility, and be informed of any problems. In addition, the host municipality and the county may each assign a member to DER's Low-Level Waste Advisory Committee to monitor statewide activities and the DER regulatory program. One local representative will also be appointed to the Appalachian States Low-Level Radioactive Waste Commission when the facility site is selected.

HOW CAN A ZERO RELEASE GOAL BE ACHIEVED?

State law mandates that, as a goal, Pennsylvania's disposal facility must have a radioactive material release capacity of zero. This is known as the zero release goal. The ability to meet the zero release goal is based on regulatory requirements for design, monitoring systems, and facility operations oversight.

DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION

The design (see "Facility Design," page 6) and construction of the facility provide the first line of defense to achieve the zero release goal. Specific materials and construction techniques will be used to contain radioactive materials and radioactivity within the disposal units. For example, the disposal unit will be constructed with concrete that must provide both long-term structural stability and containment of radioactivity.

MONITORING PROGRAMS

The disposal site must have monitoring systems. In the event that something goes wrong and radioactive materials are released from the disposal units, the monitoring systems must have the ability to detect radioactive materials before they reach the disposal site boundary. One monitoring system must be located within the disposal units (see "Facility Design," page 6). In the event the disposal facility fails and water infiltrates the disposal units, this monitoring system will detect the water, any radioactive materials in the water, and the origin of the water before it leaves the disposal facility. Corrective measures can be taken at this point to stop water infiltration, recover the water, and remove any radioactive material that may be in the water.

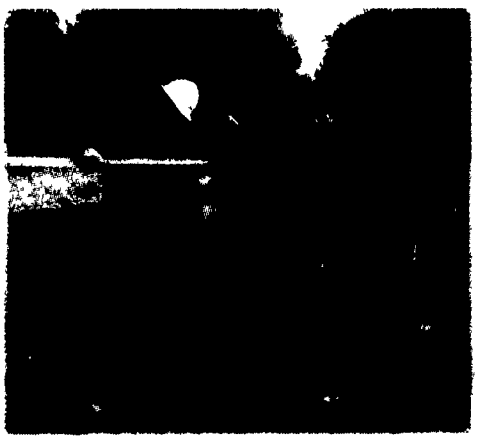
A second monitoring system (environmental monitoring system) must be located in the buffer/environmental monitoring zone that surrounds the disposal facility (see "Additional Assurances," above). In the event that the disposal facility fails and radioactive materials are not detected by the disposal unit monitoring system, the environmental monitoring system monitors air, soil, and groundwater for radioactive contaminants. This monitoring system must be designed so that contamination can be investigated and removed before it passes the disposal site boundary.

Before the facility is in operation, the applicant will have identified background radiation levels at the site. During disposal facility operations, the licensee must maintain the disposal unit and environmental monitoring systems. After the disposal site is closed, the custodial agency (a state government agency other than DER) is responsible for maintaining these monitoring systems.

INDEPENDENT LOCAL INSPECTORS

The state law allows the host municipality and county to each hire two full-time, qualified inspectors to perform both independent and joint inspections with DER. These inspectors have the right to inspect any and all of the licensee's records and activities at the site. The inspectors will ensure problems are investigated and necessary corrective actions are taken. For example, the inspectors will independently oversee the licensee's monitoring program. The inspectors have the authority to inspect any aspect of the facility, investigate any problems, and shut down facility operations if there is an immediate threat to health and safety

CONTINUOUS MONITORING PROGRAM

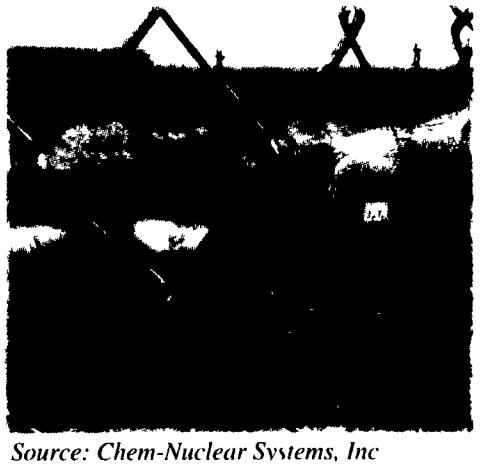


Source: Roy F. Weston, Inc.

Keeping groundwater safe is critical. Permanent monitoring wells will be installed in locations on and near the disposal facility to measure for the presence of radionuclides or other contaminants.

Source: Roy F. Weston, Inc.

Regular sampling of surface water in the area surrounding the facility will help ensure that no radioactive material reaches the environment.



Source: Chem-Nuclear Systems, Inc

HOW CITIZENS CAN PARTICIPATE

OBTAIN INFORMATION — Citizens are encouraged to obtain information by asking to be on DER's mailing list to receive newsletters, fact sheets, project announcements, and meeting notices. In addition, citizens are invited to call DER toll-free at 1-800-232-2786 to ask questions and provide feedback. Organizations listed below may also be contacted for additional information.

REVIEW AND COMMENT ON PROGRAM DOCUMENTS — Citizens are welcome to visit DER regional offices or libraries statewide to review copies of program documents. Documents have been placed in the state depository library system and in at least one library in each county in the Commonwealth. Public review and comment periods are scheduled for key program documents (e.g., potential sites recommendation and license application). Citizens may provide comments in writing or in person at public meetings and hearings.

MONITOR PROGRESS AND PROVIDE FEEDBACK — Citizens are invited to ask questions, express concerns, and provide feedback to DER. Citizens are also urged to offer suggestions on how DER can improve its public involvement program and regulatory oversight activities. Citizens are also encouraged to contact the applicant, Chem-Nuclear, at the address/telephone number listed below to obtain status reports and information.

REQUEST BRIEFINGS AND PRESENTATIONS — DER regulatory staff are available to address groups or organizations, answer questions, or provide additional information. Organizations can use DER's toll-free number to request briefings and presentations or other forums that meet specific communication needs.

INTERACT WITH DER'S LOW-LEVEL WASTE ADVISORY COMMITTEE — Citizens are welcome to interact with members of the Low-Level Waste Advisory Committee. The 23-member committee meets periodically to review program documents and provide advice to the Department. Meetings are open to the public. Members represent business, environmental, and civic organizations, as well as state and local elected officials. They communicate with members of their sponsoring organizations to obtain input and report progress on low-level waste issues.
